ACKNOWLEDGMENT

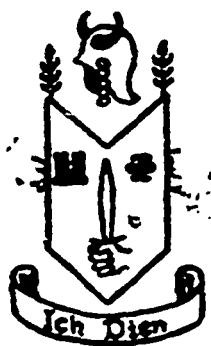

The early pages of this book have been made possible by the excellent research work done by Richard W. Staudt of Buenos Aires, R. A., and Rev. John Baer Stoudt of Allentown, Pa., in their collaboration: "The Stout Family of Pennsylvania." I have endeavored to take up where they left off and continue with the history of the family in the Northwest Territory, with such elaboration as I could find.

I wish also to acknowledge gratefully the general cooperation of the various members of the family, which was a material assistance in the work.

PREFACE

The history of Ohio shows that many of the Stout family have grown up with the state and with them the state has grown. Stouts are mentioned as first settlers in many of the counties, notably Adams, Henry, Highland, Holmes, Scioto, Meigs, Pickaway, Richland, Tuscarawas and others.

There is hardly a county that cannot number among its citizens several of this family.

Though histories of the State and its counties are full of mention of Stouts, there has been little written directly on their relationships. Many of our humbler brothers are unmentioned by history. "The meek shall inherit the earth, but they seldom get their names in the papers." It is only by industrious research and contributions of data from our far-flung family that any history at all is possible.

I realize the incompleteness of this book; perhaps many members are unmentioned, some, because unknown, others because of failure of known members to supply information. If every living member or friend of the family will endeavor to supply the missing data, it may be possible for myself or another to publish a complete history hereafter. Communications will reach me if addressed to me at Dover, Ohio.

In arranging this book I have attempted to assign each member a letter denoting the branch of the family and a numeral showing generation, natal and serial number. An * shows lack of further information, a † indicates numeral of father or mother for reference purposes. This system has many faults but is the best device I have at the moment to properly tabulate individuals.

The Reverend John Baer Stoudt of Pennsylvania has said: "Many people spend considerable sums in erecting valuable but silent tombstones to honor and perpetuate the memory of those who have passed away. * * * On the other hand, a family history edited at far less individual expense will give a vivid and perpetual picture of all their kinsmen and guarantee that their memory will live now and in future days, not only in the hearts of their grandchildren and great-grandchildren but in the hearts of all who can feel proud to be of the same descent."

INTRODUCTION

The name of Staudt (Stoudt, Stout) is a very old one. Very likely originally it was given to or adopted by few people. Where and how it originated is uncertain. Some explain it as being derived from "staude," meaning shrub, others say it comes from "studu" (not a reflection on a prolific family, just a good old Anglo-Saxon word meaning boundary-pillar or milestone.)

History tells us the Staudts were prominent Crusaders but early European history is a notorious liar. The earliest mention in deeds of the name Staudt dates back to the middle of the fourteenth century. Staudts are mentioned in both the Palatine and Rothenburg country. These branches are doubtlessly related. We find Staudts about 1500 as patricians in the city of Worms, also in Speyer, independent towns on the left bank of the Rhine. We find them also as owners of the seigniorial estate of Staudterhof. north of Kaiserslautern, also in the Palatinate.

In 1549, Christoph Staudt, a member of the city council of Worms, died and as was the custom a wooden plate in his memory was hung in the cathedral at Worms and may be seen there today in the Museum. This plate shows a family crest, probably invented for the occasion. On the helmet one of the devices of the city is to be seen, i. e., a dragon's head and wing. Apparently the dragon degenerated by usage into a fox, which is today the ensign of the family.

The once-great family fell into decay about the time of the Thirty Year's War though in the sixteenth century we find many still in distinguished positions. The Staudterhof had been burned; the family scattered to neighboring villages and towns where they soon became members of town councils and intermarried with the prominent families (as well as with some of the less prominent.) They never recovered the position and wealth they had lost through war and misfortune but apparently their pride supplied much of the deficiency. In a modified sort of peace and prosperity they lived happily till the beginning of the eighteenth century.

Their homeland was then occupied by the French and conditions for its German inhabitants became a series of persecutions. The Edict of Nantes having been abolished, there were few Staudts who escaped oppression and injustice for having embraced the faith of the Reformation.

As a result, there was a general exodus of the family to more friendly lands: Northern Germany, Hungary, Roumania and the distant but welcoming shores of America. Called over by agents of the Penn brothers, John Michael Staudt arrived in Philadelphia in 1733, the first of a long line.

It took courage to break home ties forever and set out for a wilderness, but courage was one thing of which they were not lacking. The comparative freedom here, even when menaced by wild animals and savages, appealed to them and in the following forty years nearly twenty male Staudts of 21 years or over are mentioned in the old Colonial disembarking lists at the Port of Philadelphia, the focus point of immigration at the time.

The ocean passage was not without hardship. English ships did practically all trade with the colonies and the lack of competition led them to commit excesses. Families were separated; their goods and valuables lost, stolen and confiscated and the more fortunate forced to pay exorbitant passage-rates for those so impoverished.

This general depletion of finances, a condition by no means confined to that generation, led to various members of the family going into western Pennsylvania and the Northwest Territory, where land was cheap and wants were few.

"The pride and delight of Americans," said Harriet Martineau, "is the quantity of land. If a man is disappointed in politics or love he goes and buys land. If he disgraces himself, he betakes himself to a lot in the West. If a citizen's neighbors rise above him in the town he betakes himself where he can be monarch of all he surveys."

The frontier life was not without danger nor did this family escape casualties. No one knew where peril might lurk. In the "History of Ohio" by Howe we find:

"During the summer of 1794, as the packet boat was on her way up, near the mouth of the Scioto, a party of Indians fired into the boat as it was passing near shore and one man, John Stout, was killed."

Despite this, each family thrived and flourished, with comparatively few dying in childhood. So it is that the family is larger here now than in Germany.

STOUTS IN OHIO

A word might be said of the so-called English branch of Stouts. Actually there is no record of any English Stouts in Colonial history. The misconception arose from the fact that a Richard Stout, of a family which had taken refuge in Holland, undoubtedly to escape some of the wars that swept the Rhenish provinces, had been in the British Navy. He arrived about 1643 in New Amsterdam and in 1645 married Penelope van Princes, daughter of a neighboring burgher in Holland. Mrs. van Princes had been the subject of a neat but ineffectual disembowelment at the hands of the Indians at the time of the demise of her first husband via a similar route several years before. The claim that the Stouts of New Jersey are the pioneer ancestors is quite valid.

While presidents and great statesmen have not risen from our ranks we still are able to take pride in a great family. For family blood has wet the battlefields from Long Island to France; the flag has flown above our heads on our men-o'-war in time of peace and war; the teacher and the clergyman, the executive and scholar grace our ranks but best of all we have the great body of our members, the unsung and scarcely-mentioned many, an honor to themselves and a credit to the family name.

Born in Zweibrücken, 24 January 1712. Arrived in Philadelphia, Pa., September 1737 on the ship "Virtuous Grace." Settled in Plainfield, Pa. With him came Jacob and Hans George Reimmel, Jacob Bollingen and Valentine Yent. We later find the Reimmels and Bollingen married to descendants of John Christian Stout.

His second wife was from Baden and a sister of Col. Peter Keuchlin of the Flying Camp which suffered severe casualties at the battle of Long Island. This may help explain the presence of Joseph and Christian Stout in that battle since they would be in the forces under command of their uncle who was captured.

Served in Capt. Arndt's company of Col. Baxter's battalion, Flying Camp, from Northampton County, Pa. In 1785, he bought the family homestead at Plainfield, Pa. In his father's will he was cut off with one shilling which meant that he had received his share with the homestead or was on his father's list. He was guardian of his nephews John and Christian, sons of his brother Joseph. About 1794 he went to Washington County, Pa. He later sold his land there and removed to Perry Twp. in Richland County, Ohio.

Guard your name the while you're livin'
Keep it free from what is bad;
It's the name your dad has given--
Mayhap it was all he had.

Keep it free of taint and tattle,
Keep its lustre shining bright,
In the fore front of life's battle
Keep it on the side of right.

Keep within the bounds of reason,
Let no blemish come to stain;
So with pride-- and in due season--
You may pass it on again!

John Stout

Probably a descendant of the Scaudts of the German provinces who fled to Holland in the fifteenth or sixteenth century. Historians like to give his residence as an English shire but so far as is known, nothing can be proven one way or the other. The reputed early spelling, "Stouce," is certainly not English. Only one son is known:

III 1645 w Penelope van Princes 1622-1732?

Ran away and was enlisted or pressed in the British Navy. On a visit to New Amsterdam he left ship, probably by desertion, and later married; his wife being supposedly the daughter of a neighboring burgher in Holland. In 1643 owned plantation eighteen at Gravesend. In 1664 bought land at Monmouth. Was an overseer there. Like many persons of his time, he was illiterate.

The Will of Richard Stout

Know all men by these presents that I, Richard Stout of Middletown, in the county of Monmouth, in East Jersey, being of Sound Mind and disposing memory, do make and ordain this to be my last will and testament, which is as followeth:

I will that all my just debts be paid; I give and devise unto my loving wife, during her natural life, all my orchard and that part or rooms, of t' e house she now lives in, with the cellar, and all the land I now possess. I give and bequeath unto my loving wife all my horse kind, excepting one mare and colt. My son Benjamin is to have for keeping my cattle last year.

I give to my sons John, Richard, James, Johnathan, David and Benjamin, one shilling each of them.

I give unto my daughters Mary, Alice and Sarah, each of them one shilling.

I give to my daughter-in-law Mary Stout and her son John one shilling each of them.

I give and bequeath unto my kinswoman Mary Stout the daughter of formerly Peter Stout, one cow, to be paid within six days after my wife's death.

All the remainder of my personal estate whatsoever I give and bequeath to my loving wife, and of this, my last will and testament, I make my son John and my son Johnathan my executors to.

For this my will performed, in witness hereof I have hereunto put my hand and seal, June the ninth day, in the year one thousand seven hundred and three.

His
RICHARD X STOUT
Mark

Signed, sealed and published in the presence of us:
