GENEALOGICAL SKETCH OF SOME OF THE DESCENDANTS OF ROBERT SAVORY OF NEWBURY, 1656.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.—FOR THE BASIS OF THE FOLLOWING SKETCH THE COMPILER IS INDEBTED TO JUDGE A. W. SAVARY, OF ANNAPOLIS ROYAL, N. S., FROM WHOSE INVALUABLE BOOK, "THE SAVERY AND SEVERY, SAVORY AND SAVARY GENEALOGIES," IT HAS BEEN TAKEN. IT HAS BEEN SUPPLEMENTED BY A GREAT DEAL OF WORK BY THE COMPILER, WHO HAS ALSO BEEN VERY MATERIALLY ASSISTED IN SOME PARTS OF IT BY MRS. SARAH F. JOHNSON, OF WEST NEWTON, MASS.

THE COMPILER.

ORIGIN OF THE NAME.

The most rational etymology of the name is that given by Ferguson in his work on English surnames. He makes it a compound of a word in the ancient Teutonic languages, saba or sabas, a sword (from which we get our modern sabre), and the old German termination, rih or rich, meaning rule or dominion, and generally rendered prince, thus making the meaning of the name, Prince of the Sword or Rule of the Sword.

There was a Gothic bishop in the fifth century by the name of Sabas. He was mentioned in Gibbons' "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire." The name or some compound of it existed in England before the Norman Conquest.

One of the earliest notices of the name in this country is among the passengers of the ship Mary and John. They took the oaths of allegiance and supremacy enacted before leaving England on the 24th day of March, 1633. In old style this would be the last day of the year. Thomas Savory's name is the twelfth on the list and William Savory's is the twentieth. William T. Davis, in his work, "Ancient Landmarks of Plymouth," states that Thomas and William were brothers. There is no record of children born to William, who came with Thomas on the Mary and John, from Wilts, or Wiltshire, in the southwest of England. This vessel arrived at Ipswich, Mass., on the first of May, 1634, after a passage of five or six weeks.

THE ESSEX COUNTY BRANCH.

ROBERT SAVORY, OF NEWBURY, MASS.

Robert Savory, of Newbury, is thought to have been a son of the William Savory mentioned above. If he was, he probably was born in England. He married Mary, widow of William Mitchell, on December 8, 1656. Her first husband had died July 16, 1654. If Robert was born in England it is probable that he was born in the Parish of Hannington, in the vicinity of which was the English home of the Rev. Thomas Parker, who became the first minister of Newbury.

Old Newbury, which contained the present towns of Newbury, West Newbury and Newburyport, was founded by a band of twenty-three persons from Ipswich in the spring of 1635. The Rev. Mr. Parker removed from Ipswich shortly afterward to continue his connection with the Wiltshire friends who had preceded him, while still more followed him there.

Robert Savory removed from Newbury to Bradford, Mass., about 1670, and was one of the original members of the church there. He died in 1690 while returning from Canada. He was probably serving in the expedition against Quebec commanded by Sir William Phipps. An examination of all company returns and lists as are preserved in the Massachusetts State Archives does not show any reference to the name Robert Savory. It does appear, however, among a list of proprietors of a township west of the Merrimack river and adjoining Contoocook, granted in 1739 to officers and soldiers who served in the Phipps expedition of 1690 under the command of Captains March, Greenleaf and Nelson. His widow administered March 29, 1692. She died December 13, 1704, and his eldest son, William, was appointed co-administrator March 5, 1704-5.

FIRST GENERATION.

Robert Savory married Mary Mitchell and had the following children :

1. Sarah, born November 12, 1658.
2. William, born September 15, 1659.
3. Samuel, born March 8, 1662. He may have been the father of the Benjamin Savory who "owned the covenant" at Bradford, December 25, 1709, married Lydia Parker December 8, 1715, and died September 28, 1747, having had two children, Martha, born March 4, 1717-18, and Benjamin, born November 26, 1721.

4. Rebecca, born January 20, 1663, married Robert Mullican, December 15, 1687.

5. Robert, born August 8, 1666, died April 9, 1685.

SECOND GENERATION.

William Savory, son of Robert, was born September 15, 1659. He married Hannah ——— and died about 1730. He was one of the original members of the church at Groveland, once East Bradford, in 1727. His wife was admitted to the church February 18, 1727-28. He had children as follows:

1. Hannah, born January 25, 1691.

2. Robert, born June 10, 1694, probably married Rebecca ——— who died October 24, 1763.

3. Samuel, born October 6, 1696, married July 24, 1724, Abigail Ordway, and died May 25, 1729, leaving two children, Abigail, born January 2, 1725-26, and Samuel, born November 20, 1727. His widow administered and Nathaniel Ordway was appointed guardian of the children July 7, 1729.

4. Thomas, born January 23, 1701-02, married Mercy Adams, of Ipswich, Mass. Intentions of marriage were published at Ipswich, August 10, 1723. His will was dated January 28, 1751, and was proved April 23, 1753. He died March 15, 1753. His son, John, was made sole executor by the will, but being under age, administration of the will was granted to the widow during his minority. She was also appointed guardian of children, William and Betty. She died November 10, 1785. He had the following children:

I. Hannah, born September 19, 1724, married November 26, 1744, Eldad Hardy.

II. Mercy, born October 23, 1728, married December 20, 1748, John Burbank. He was enrolled in the Second Bradford Foot Company and marched with that command on the Alarm of April 19, 1775. He was a farmer, took a prominent part in town affairs, and died September 18, 1802. He had a son, Nathan, who was born August 17, 1757, and married February, 1781, Elizabeth Palmer, daughter of Samuel and Mary Savory Palmer. He was only eighteen years of age, but he did service in the defence of Cape Ann in November, 1775, and died July 17, 1819.

- iii. Mary, born November 9, 1730, married January 24, 1749, Samuel Palmer, Jr. He was born March 3, 1727, the son of Samuel and Elizabeth Palmer. He was on the Alarm List of April 19, 1775, and marched to Cambridge in Captain John Savory's company. He died September 3, 1800.
- iv. William, born December 13, 1734. Died young.
- v. John, born May 21, 1736, married Sarah Wood September 11, 1755, and had two sons, Thomas, born February 16, 1756, and John, born November 18, 1757. He died April 5, 1805. His wife died June 4, 1823, and his son, John, died January 1, 1823. His son, Thomas, probably died May 24, 1829. He commanded the Second Foot Company, of Bradford, Mass., Minutemen, and was in command of the company at Cambridge when the troops assembled there after the Battle of Lexington. He afterwards led a detachment of his company to the defence of Cape Ann in November, 1775. Both of his sons and his brother were in the same company, his son Thomas being drummer.
- vi. Samuel, born January 30, 1737-38.
- vii. Betty, born July 11, 1740, married December 31, 1761, Solomon Tenney. He was born in East Bradford, now Groveland, June 19, 1737, being the son of Deacon Philip and Jane Hale Tenney. He had two children, Samuel and Savory Tenney. He was first sergeant in the Second Foot Company of Bradford and marched to Cambridge on the Alarm of April 19, 1775, and he also served in the defence of Cape Ann in November, 1775.
- viii. William, born December 6, 1743. He married Mary Gage, daughter of Thomas Gage, of Haverhill, in 1764, and died July 22, 1800. His widow died December 24 or 29, 1814. He was a sergeant in the Second Foot Company of Bradford, of which his brother, John, was Captain, and went to the defence of Cape Ann in 1775. He had the following children :

1. Ebenezer, born May 2, 1765.
 2. Moses, born October 5, 1766, married June 15, 1791, Susannah or Sukey Dutch. He was a merchant in Newburyport, Mass. He had a son, Moses, born September 30, 1792. His widow administered July 8, 1802.

He became a sailor early in life and in 1830, with four other white men and a party of natives, he started from Oahu, one of the Hawaiian Islands, sailed to and settled on Peel Island, one of the Bonin Group in the North Pacific Ocean. The Bonin or Archbishop Islands were discovered in 1827 by Captain Beechey, of the Blossom, who took formal possession of them for England. Peel Island was settled, as stated before, in 1830, Savory's companions consisting of an American, an Englishman, an Italian, a Dane and fifteen Sandwich Islanders, five men and ten women, under the auspices of the Union Jack. The inhabitants adopted a constitution in 1853, Nathaniel Savory becoming Governor. Besides pigs, goats and fowls, Peel Island produces sweet potatoes, maize, onions, yams, pumpkins, melons, lemons, tobacco and sugar-cane. Timber is also plentiful, though not of great size. Nathaniel Savory married a native of Guam and had five children. He died in 1877 or 1878. His strange career and character are described in Commodore Perry's account of his expedition to Japan, and in Harper's Magazine for March, 1856.

At the time the great tornado swept through Warner, N. H., Sunday, September 9, 1821, Daniel Savory's house stood right in its path. Hearing a fearful rumbling in the heavens, Samuel Savory, aged 72, the father of Daniel (who was away), hastened upstairs to close the windows. The women of the household started to his assistance, when the house whirled above their heads and instantly rose into the air, while that which was left behind, timbers, bricks, etc., literally buried six of the family in the ruins. The body of the aged father, Samuel Savory, was found at a distance of six rods from the house where his head had been dashed against a stone and he had been killed instantly. Elizabeth, his wife, was very much injured by the timbers that fell upon her. Mrs. Daniel Savory was fearfully bruised, and the infant, Emily B., whom she held in her arms, was killed. The family were extricated by the assistance of the elder Mrs. Savory, who though very considerably injured, had the most surprising strength in removing timbers and bricks, beneath which could be faintly heard the cries and moans of the sufferers.

Daniel Savory's buildings were not only levelled, but the materials and contents were dashed into ten thousand pieces and scattered in every direction. Carts, wagons, sleighs, plows, sleds, were carried a considerable distance, and so broken and shattered as to be fit only for fuel. Stone walls were levelled, and rocks weighing four or five hundred pounds were taken out of their beds by the force of the wind. An elm tree, near where old Mr. Savory fell, that was a foot at least in diameter (some say seventeen inches), and too strongly rooted to yield, was twisted like a withe to the ground, and lay prostrate like a wilted weed. Logs that were bedded in the ground, fifty to sixty-five feet long, were not heavy enough to retain their places. Not an apple or forest tree was left standing.

The house of Robert Savory stood very near this place, and that also was utterly demolished. Mrs. Robert Savory said that she anticipated a shower and went into a bedroom to take up a child, and was conscious of nothing more till she found herself among timbers and ruins, greatly bruised but the child unhurt, her husband buried altogether in the bricks with the exception of his head, and two children completely covered by the splinters and rubbish. This family of eight persons were all hurt, but none dangerously.

There were twenty-four hives of bees at the Robert Savory place, perhaps the property of both families. The ground was sweetened with honey for half a mile, but no hive and no sign of a bee has been seen since. Furniture and crockery were smashed and scattered about everywhere, as were also the legs, wings and heads of fowls. Several acres of corn and potatoes adjacent to the buildings were swept off clean, not leaving an ear, save at some distance, a few in heaps. One barn was taken up whole, and after being carried several rods, went to pieces and flew like feathers in every direction. The Savorys and Abner Watkins had captured a bear and had chained him to a sill of Robert Savory's barn. Though the barn was entirely destroyed to its foundation, the sill to which the bear was chained, being a cross sill and bedded into the ground, remained in its place, and the bear was unhurt.

No person could conceive, without visiting the spot, the horrors of that instant—it was but an instant, when houses, barns, trees, fences, fowls, etc., were all lifted from the earth into the bosom of the whirlwind, and anon dashed into a thousand pieces, a few large stones remaining in their places, and others strewn on each side for several feet indicated where a stone wall had stood ; a few fragments of timber and a small quantity of hay, which had since been gathered together, denoted the place where stood the barns ; a few timbers and bricks, and at one place, the floor remained of what composed the dwellings of the two Savorys ; and the feathers here and there discovered in the dust, showed that the very fowls of heaven that had often sported with the clouds, could not fly the swift destruction.
