THE SHOEMAKER COAT OF ARMS

The coat of arms displayed on the opposite page is taken from "Matthews American Armoury and Blue Book," where are recorded coats of arms of numerous families, origin and authenticity not always traced.

It might be relevant to state for the benefit of those not conversant with heraldry that in ancient times the armor of metal worn by those in combat as a protection consisted of a shield or breast plate, a helmet etc., and the shield especially, as painted became characteristic of the individual bearers. And so it arose as a family insignia or distinction and descended to modern times and is used now in various ways on plate, jewelry, motor cars or in genealogies, or printed for framing, etc.

The coat of arms in the first place may have been usurped by a particular family or secondly granted by regal authority and thence handed down and considered as belonging to all descendants of the blood. The Shoemaker coat of arms is represented by a shield of sable which is a tincture of black represented by criss-cross perpendicular and horizontal lines. Within this shield are three chevronels. A chevron is a house rafter and chevronel its diminutive as worn on the sleeves of officers. These chevronels are shown in ermine, a white field with black dots. Above the helmet covering the head is the crest. This crest or ornament is represented as a demi-lion rampant, meaning a part of a lion in an erect position. The color designated is gules, which represents the ruby in precious stones. He holds in his dexter paw a regal mace. Dexter is right, regal characteristic of a king and mace, a staff surmounted by a crown. Guttee-Argent represents the other colors in ornamentation, guttee—a field sprinkled with tears of gold, silver, etc., and argent, a French word for silver with fields quite plain. The motto assigned to this coat of arms is Sapere Aude, meaning—Dare to be wise.

Shoemaker

BEHOLD: Of human life, inception, growth and marvel, meditate.

A young man comes 3000 miles, adopts a new world and mates.
He carves his future and works for daily bread,
The "Family Tree" is started, it grows and spreads.
The buds are formed, the first one blasted,
The next two grew to womanhood but fell for cause unknown,
Like in a field where seed is sown.
Then five more plants came forth and flourished,
Adding new branches as time went by,
Their lives abiding in various spans,
As used by each in nature's plan and God's commands.
Two hundred years have passed, the tree yet grows,
From that first seed, two thousand souls created,
Some scattered widely.
And what shall be two hundred years from now,
Who can perceive.

FOREWORD

The inspiration for this work, originated after a period of several years commencing with a search of the Steelman ancestry and concluding with that of Jacob Leamings, both of Cape May County, N. J., and both my maternal ancestors.

I then turned to the paternal or Shoemaker side of the family, of which I knew practically nothing, with the query of who was my great-grandfather; this was in December, 1933. I visited The Historical Society of Pennsylvania headquarters at 13th and Locust Streets for the first time December 26th in my preliminary search. I was surprised and interested to find plenty of Shoemaker history previously published pertaining to early families who settled in Germantown from 1692 to 1687, but could not trace my own ancestry.

I then started work in the region of my birth amongst the Shoemakers of Gloucester and Salem Counties, N. J. Few knew much of their ancestry. I visited cemeteries everywhere, and in Swedesboro located the grave and head stone of Conrad Shoemaker, Sr., by the side of the old Swedes, now Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church. The church records from early times, first in Swedish, repose in a fireproof vault. I examined these partially and found they had been photostated by Mr. Frank H. Stewart, long President of the Historical Society of Gloucester County. Great credit is due him for his various contributions, both historical and genealogical. These records, copied in convenient form and deposited with the Pennsylvania Historical Society, gave me my start and proved Conrad Shoemaker, Sr., my ancestor in America, since it tallied with information obtained from my grandfather's bible. My search continued throughout the two counties and then followed the trend of humanity toward the cities, to Camden and its outlying sections, into Philadelphia and the vicinity, and to far-away places.

I have been greatly aided in finding many old bibles, and am indebted to many people for their interest and co-operation, and especially to Mrs. Elizabeth Schultz, of Fairview, Camden, N. J., for her prompt and thorough work covering her full family line.

I have endeavored to be accurate, and where names and dates have conflicted have used bible records where obtainable as most reliable. I have made all the personal contacts possible to avoid errors and have aimed to follow down every name where there was a possibility of marriage if it was at all possible. Most of the works of this kind which I have consulted are hardly more than fifty per cent complete in this respect.

Through the process of transcribing and correcting thousands of dates and names it is impossible that errors should not exist of a minor nature. If you find such in your copy of the book, please correct it yourself and notify me if you desire, and I may issue later, addenda in pamphlet form with corrections and additional history which may come to hand, which can be inserted in each volume.

I have found in my contacts with probably one hundred units of the family that ninety per cent are interested in the subject, some extremely so. A few have said they were not interested in their family history and naturally were not free to volunteer information. Others have supplied me with more data than I have thought well to use in order to be fair to all, but the biographical part could have been more interesting and I would have been glad to incorporate more of this if I had been given the material. So if some member of your family has outstanding work or deeds to their credit, or has been pre-eminent in business or profession or excelled in school or college, please do not blame me for the omission as against such mention in other cases. If you feel your history has been too brief, I know it is not that you could not have given me more if you had so desired.

In a review of this work accomplished during a part of the last eighteen months and a survey of the characters in the shifting scenes as unfolded in my search, I am much impressed with the predominance of integrity, energy, industry, piety, courage, resourcefulness and initiative that has persisted in the family from generation to generation and which truly has made "Shoemaker" a good name. There are many fine examples running throughout the pages of this book and I want to say for those apt to cast aspersions that I have not yet found one very bad descendant.

I trust this will be an incentive to those of the seventh and eighth generations now in their youth to emulate and keep up the family traditions.

Full accounts of the family in Texas, California, Australia, Maryland, and Virginia are not now available, which I hope to add later on as well as a more complete history of Conrad Shoemaker, the settler.

I trust that this contribution of family knowledge in a permanent form will be useful to those now living and to generations yet unborn.

HUBERT B. SHOEMAKER.

PREFACE

There is not one of us that desires to go back and live over again the lives of our forefathers. That would be an experience far removed from our present period and custom of life, and altogether out of consonance with the most of that which now gives us pleasure and content.

Some one has said, "Who wants to live in the past," in opposition to the interest of looking into or searching for something we seem to be losing through lapse of time, which has not been set down and which is a connecting link with our present lives, and which information needs chronicalling for the benefit of those living long after we have passed away.

Supposing that from remote times no history had been handed down and that all knowledge of the past had been lost, then I think we of the present age would also feel lost, as much of what has been done and what we know of this, has been as stepping stones to achievement.

And so history has been written and is still delved in interminably, and the lives of the great for ages past are yet being written up. But the so-called great and the governing class have not been the moulders of civilization. That work has lain with that vast body of sturdy, industrious and conscientious men and women who have been the producers and pioneers of the world, that middle class which has founded homes and families and prosperity from generation to generation. That work is yet going on and that class in all nations is the force that keeps the world safe.

Then why not give credit where credit is long overdue and write of the doings of these numberless families and their genealogies. For is the man not more important than that which he brings forth, and more to be praised than good work?

And so this volume is a portrayal of that building by one of these representative families. Experience has shown there is no family branch much more important than another. Over a period of a hundred years there will be just as many shining examples which gain ascendancy and just as many ignoble lives in one part as another. Progeny also adjusts itself in such way that the descendants of one part will even up well with any other in number.

No one knows what is to come. We all live in the present and retrospect of the past. Then why give thought for the morrow, for who can tell what the future will bring forth?

THE SHOEMAKER FAMILY

The name SHOEMAKER was derived from the trade of shoe making, and those bearing it trace back almost wholly to Germany, Holland and England.

The first immigrants spelled it "Schumacher"; by 1689 it became "Showmaker," 1694 "Shewmaker," 1718 "Shumaker," and soon after that all the old records show it fully Anglicised to Shoemaker, which form has since prevailed with a few exceptions wherever the name is found.

There is a record of a Lt. Shoemaker from Holland in the Dutch East India Co., stationed at Ft. Orange or Albany in 1654. He settled in Orange County, and some of his descendants settled about the Delaware Water Gap about 1720. But the first records of Shoemaker families that have been traced were those of immigrants from Germany who came with others, mostly farmers and all "Friends," and settled Germantown, Pa.

They came to escape religious persecution, after William Penn, also a "Friend," who had been previously in missionary work amongst them, had founded Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania was three years old when the first arrivals landed. They came from Kreisheim, now Cresheim, a village in the Palatinate, the province of the Palatines (invested with royal privileges or rights). Cresheim is on the right bank of the Rhine near Worms. "They dressed plain and had simple speech and habits. They took not the sword and were entirely non-resistant."

AND IT CAME TO PASS, that Jacob Schumacher, single, one of the first of the name as a pioneer, a turner by trade, came with Pastorius and some others 6-6-1682, settled and married in Germantown. Became sheriff in 1693.

He was followed by Peter and family 8-16-1685, and by George and his family 1-20-1686 (George dying of smallpox on the way over). All came from the same place and were probably brothers. All were friends and all settled in Germantown and Cheltenham. Philadelphia had then about eighty houses, 1280 acres of land, and was bounded by the Delaware and Schuylkill rivers, and Vine to South Streets.

The family of George were settled about Cheltenham. George, Jr., helped lay out Old York Road, Shoemakertown, now Ogontz, was founded, and the old mill that stood so long was built and remained in the family until 1847. Part of their holdings later became the Widener and Wanamaker estates.

These three families multiplied and were prominent socially, politically, and economically. Benjamin Shoemaker became City Treasurer 1751-1761 and was Mayor of Philadelphia three one-year terms, and his son Samuel was also Mayor. The latter was a courtly gentleman and a Royalist during the Revolution. He went to England and had audience with the King. During his absence his property was confiscated in and about Philadelphia, and the records show 60,000 pounds turned in to the city treasury from the sales. After the animosities of the war had abated he later returned and retrieved some of it.

The fourth Shoemaker of record to arrive was Michael, 8-30-1737. Married in Germany, settled about Easton, and his descendants scattered about mostly in that vicinity and across the river into Jersey. From these various branches descendants of the name can now be found throughout the entire United States. A few only are on record in the war of the Revolution, but many are recorded as taking part in the Civil War, and indeed on both sides. The name can always be found in "Who's Who" and the Social Register, and is entered in the present Philadelphia residence directory over 300 times.

There have been several Shoemaker genealogies compiled, viz.:

"The Shoemaker Family," by Thomas Shoemaker, 1893, 112 pages.

"The Shoemaker Family of Cheltenham, Phila.," 1903, 524 pages.

"The Michael Shoemaker Book," 1924, 995 pages.

AND IT CAME TO PASS that these four families of Shoemakers and others of the name not recorded had become established in America, and brought forth children unto the third generation, that in 1734 a Conrad Shoemaker was born in Holland and came as a young man to America. His forbears are as yet unknown, but other brothers are said to have followed him. Henry, who settled at Deerfield, N. J., presumably was one of them, who came about the time of the American Revolution (N. J. Col. Records), from whom there have sprang as many descendants probably as are recorded in this book. This branch has been of importance in the history of Bridgeton as its home seat; from there they have scattered all over Cumberland County and distant parts. It is surmised that CONRAD SHOEMAKER, SR., landed at Chester, Pa., intending to locate in Jersey. The time is placed as 1765, when he was 31 years of age. He crossed the river and came to Swedesboro, then a hamlet of a few houses. Ten years before the place was known as "Raccoon," and Gloucester County for a long time was a place where no one was disposed to settle. It was generally regarded as a wild land where nothing would thrive. The possibilities of the world-famous "Swedesboro" sweet potato and of early tomato and melon growing had not been dreamed of. Nothing daunted, however, Conrad Shoemaker as pioneer located himself along the southern boundary of Raccoon creek near Centre Square, where he bought land, meadows, and cedar swamp, prospered, married, and started this family branch.

Cushing & Sheppard's history of Gloucester, Salem and Cumberland Counties of 1883, in their subject matter concerning Logan Township, formerly part of Woolwich, gives the following under "Early settlers and pioneer incidents": "Among the number who came previous to the war was Coonradt Shoemaker who like many others sold himself for his passage,—that is, he bound himself to a Mr. Kelly to work a certain number of years after his arrival in this country if Kelly would pay the passage money. After Mr. Shoemaker had served his time and earned his freedom he located between Raccoon and Old Man's Creek, about two miles from what is now Bridgeport. Here he became possessed of 200 acres of land and at his death in 1790 he left his property to his five children, four sons and one daughter. They all lived to quite respectable age. The first death among his children was that of Samuel, who attained the age of 80, dying in 1838. Conradt died in 1845, aged 63; Jacob in 1858, aged 82, and George in 1863, at the advanced age of 91 years. Sarah, the daughter, was the mother of the venerable Nicholas Justus, of Bridgeport. George Shoemaker, a grandson of Conradt, Sr., now a resident of Bridgeport, was born on the old homestead, July 22, 1811."

The above history was gathered 78 years after Conrad, Sr.'s, death. It has now been 52 years since its publishing, and the information now gathered and substantiated from headstones and Bibles prove most of the above dates wrong, but it does throw light on early happenings that otherwise would have been lost. When Conrad Shoemaker landed it is possible he spelled his name Coonradt. It was too late in 1883 for anyone living then to say "Has anyone here seen Kelly," who paid his passage over. It is quite likely that the Kellys were already settled and he became bound to one of them in order to get over. No doubt an ancestor of many of the name, spelled also Killè, are living in the vicinity. It is evident now, from the history in this book, that the immigrants coming to these parts landed in Raccoon Creek at its mouth or at Bridgeport, then known as "Lower Raccoon Bridge," being the last bridge down.

He died in 1805, not 1790, intestate. The children all died at different ages than as stated, which subsequent chapters will show. The George Shoemaker mentioned was George Key Shoemaker, grandson of Conrad, Sr., and the eldest child to live of fourteen children of his father George, who married Keziah Key. The first child, Mary, died at two and is buried by the side of her grandfather. Living people can relate happenings of bygone days which can be considered reliable, but it is easy to go astray on dates. Cushing & Sheppard further states "One of the peculiarities of the senior Shoemaker was his manner of dress, not only the old leather breeches, but a leather jacket or vest was a part of his attire. The vest was cut quite long with a large deep pocket in each side and in one of these pockets he invariably carried of his favorite old 'schnapps' and in the other a bottle of water. Although Mr. Shoemaker was a man of ordinary size, yet the weight of none of his children was less than 300 pounds when they arrived at the age of manhood and womanhood."

In the early days the farmers' products were carted to Bridgeport and then to Philadelphia by ferry. Later many flat-bottomed boats were used with a pole in center and an improvised sail. The New York market was out of the question until 1835. When George Shoemaker, of Bridgeport, now living, embarked in his first potato speculation, he engaged a sloop, put on board 1,000 bushels of potatoes and set sail for New York, by way of Cape May, reaching New York in three and a half days, where he disposed of his cargo. This was the first sloop load of potatoes ever taken from Raccoon Creek to New York, and "Uncle George" is almost seasick yet whenever he tells the story of his first voyage at sea.

LANDING PLACE OF THE SWEDISH PILGRIMS. To what is now the Township of Logan must be accredited the honor of having within its borders the spot upon which the first permanent settlers of West Jersey landed at the mouth of Raccoon Creek. Mickle, in his "Reminiscences of Old Gloucester," says, "The exact spot of their debarkation might, we imagine, be determined upon an examination of the place, and if so it would possess to us quite as much interest as any part in our country." "This spot," it has been well said, will ever be connected with recollections the most interesting to us and which it becomes us to cherish. We labor with patient perseverance to learn the streams of an ancient world and become familiar with every torrent and brook. We visit in fancy the borders of the Euphrates and linger by the side of the golden Hermus. All this is well, but must we suffer the scenes in our own story to be forgotten. Let every spot be noted that it may not be said in aftertime, "An ungrateful generation permitted the memory of their fathers to perish." Or, if we are prevented by no filial feelings toward the actors, we cannot be insensible to the movement here made.

Cushing and Sheppard.

"The advent of these pilgrims, small as was their number, was of more consequence to the interests of humanity than most of the brilliant achievements of martial hosts. Of the many battles that have been fought, of the many warriors who have figured in the field of conquest, how few have left a lasting influence for good? The victory of today is lost on the morrow and both victors and vanquished sink together into utter forgetfulness. But here a feeble band without art or arms, with no standard but the olive branch, laid the foundation of a work we trust will stand forever; and not only ourselves but our descendants through all generations shall look back to that 'Spot' and that hour with increasing feeling of gratitude and affection."

Mulford's Lectures, MS.

"As yet no sculptured marble adorns our Delaware Plymouth, but to the source every true friend of man can exclaim 'Circumspice'."

Cushing and Sheppard.

THE OLD HOMESTEAD

Original site where Conrad Shoemaker, Sr., immigrant settler, located and raised his family, showing the farm buildings partially rebuilt on a bluff at the southern edge of Raccoon Creek, reached by a one-third mile winding lane through swamp and woodland from the public road between Bridgeport and Swedesboro. About 1770 this was a plantation of farm land, cedar swamp and meadow ground comprising 200 acres. From 1808 division of the property followed through the course of the years between various members of the family. February 15, 1854, the central part here illustrated, reduced to 61 acres, finally left the family and was sold by Samuel Shoemaker, grandson of the settler, to Charles Davenport for $3000, whose daughter, now Mrs. Davis, of Clementon, N. J., succeeded to ownership and sold the property in 1921 to Charles Lang, who has lived there since that time. There are evidences on the site of an Indian encampment and burying ground in early days. Pieces of pottery and arrow heads are yet prevalent, and people have visited the place in a search for Indian history.

CONRAD SHOEMAKER THE SETTLER

Born April, 1734; died 3-1-1805, age 71. Buried by the side of the Old Swedes, now Trinity P. E., Church, in Swedesboro, N. J. Married, 6-23-1770, when 36, to SUSANNA SHOULDER, age 18, of Woolwich Township; born 6-10-1752. She was buried 2-1-1790 at the age of 38. They were married 20 years and had eight children, of whom the last five married and left descendants. His marriage license, date of marriage and inventory of personal property are in the Trenton archives. He died intestate. He owned farm land, meadows and cedar swamp south of Raccoon Creek near Centre Square, N. J., which passed to his two sons, SAMUEL and GEORGE, in 1808, from the other heirs in consideration of $2,000. His inventory totaled $1,679.36. His bible, of 1803 (Carey, of Phila.), passed to his youngest child and namesake, CONRAD, JR., and then to CHARLES, the latter's eldest child by a second marriage. CHARLES located in Texas and when he died his widow sent it to EDWARD, who was CONRAD's eldest child, and it then descended to EDWARD's son, EDWARD PAGE SHOEMAKER, now living in Collingswood. This bible is unique, and the vital records are illustrated in colored Old English print. They agree with those of the church where they were communicants, which latter have been copied and are in the archives of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania. His headstone is inscribed: "Sacred to the memory of CONRAD SHOEMAKER, sen., who died Mar. 1, 1805, aged 72 years. Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."

CONRAD SHOEMAKER was married secondly, 3-28-1795, to RUTH EDMAN, by John Croes, rector of Trinity Church. There is no record found of any issue or her death.

CHAPTER I

SAMUEL SHOEMAKER

AND HIS

2-4 SAMUEL SHOEMAKER AND HIS DESCENDANTS; 1-1 CONRAD

Born near Centre Square 8-14-1777, died July, 1838, age 61. Married, 1-12-1807, ELIZABETH WISER, of Woolwich Township; born 2-5-1786, daughter of George and Catharine Wiser. He farmed land south of Raccoon Creek, which his father had owned, all of which he and his brother GEORGE bought from the other three heirs, 3-1-1808, which was three years after their father's death.

SAMUEL's will and inventory are on file at Trenton, the latter totaling $955.11. His will, like many of old, begins "In the name of God, amen." Orders the payment of debts and funeral expenses. Bequests of $200 each to SUSANNA SHARP and MARY CRAIGHEAD, two married daughters. And, "I do give, devise and bequeath unto my beloved wife, ELIZABETH SHOEMAKER, during her natural life, one room in my house and household goods sufficient to furnish the same, and firewood for the use of said room. One cow and pasture for the same and also the further sum of thirty dollars each and every year to be paid to her out of the issues and profits of my real estate and for the payment of the aforesaid legacies I do bind and charge my real estate and other deacease the same to descend to my two sons, DAVID and SAMUEL SHOEMAKER." He appoints his son, DAVID, the guardian of SAMUEL, a minor, until age 21, at which time the estate is to be divided between them. The will was drawn the month of his death and witnessed by his brother, GEORGE, and Malachi and Joseph Horner, and proven at Woodbury, 7-23-1838.

An attributed remark about him in his latter years, as he would be coming along the streets of Swedesboro, would be "Here comes old Wiser," due probably to his mien or his wife's maiden name.

To SAMUEL and ELIZABETH were born four children, all of whom married and left descendants and died at ages 79 to 85. Buried in four different cemeteries within a radius of 15 miles in lots prominently located and with appropriate stones fully inscribed.

DAVID married thirdly SARAH SPARKS, widow, about 1870, daughter of Simon C. Sparks; born 1823, died 1901. Buried at Perkindown. No issue.

DAVID, as a young man of 31, bought two small farms along the eastern edge of Pedricktown and the boundaries of Old Man's and Beaver Creeks, comprising about 150 acres, including considerable meadow land. During the next 25 years he prospered; he then retired, having had built at the eastern edge of the town a house costing him $5,000, with an additional 12 acres of land adjoining. His will and inventory are on file at Trenton.

He had nine children in all, six of whom died before marrying. He was a member of the Friends Meeting at Pedricktown, but did not use the form of speech, although his bible was written in this style, as neat, plain and complete as any to be found, and begins with his father and mother. This bible was given to DAVID, JR., his eldest, and when the latter died he handed it over to his eldest child, CLARA SHOEMAKER DOLL, with the admonition never to part with it. No other entries were ever made.

4-4 ISAAC PEDRICK SHOEMAKER. Born Pedricktown, N. J., 8-13-1844, died 3-6-1884, age 39. Married, 1864, by Mayor Alexander Henry, of Philadelphia, MARY AMELIA LEAMING, daughter of Aaron and Ann (Pilgrim) Leaming, of Cape May, N. J.; born near Schillingers Landing, Cape May County, 10-14-1840, died at Pedricktown, N. J., 2-3-1933, age 92. Both buried at Pedricktown, N. J. She is a Mayflower descendant, tracing down as follows: JOHN HOWLAND PILGRIM—DESIRE HOWLAND—HANNAH GORHAM—HANNAH WHILDEN—CHRISTOPHER LEAMING—CHRISTOPHER LEAMING—JACOB LEAMING—AARON LEAMING—MARY. She was a school teacher in early womanhood in Salem County and finally at Pedricktown, where she met her future husband. ISAAC was a farmer the most of his short life. Was in the produce commission business and other work in Philadelphia for a few years after marriage. About 1868 moved to Beverly, N. J. Had a farm at Perkins Crossing. Then the big Freeman farm adjoining Beverly, south of the railroad. His brother, ARTHUR, back from the Civil War, was on the homestead farm at Pedricktown and died single. ISAAC went back there about 1872. He was educated at Fort Edward, N. Y., and was adept in art and invention. Would build or make anything—boats and nets for fishing, wagons for his boys, bookcases and cupboards for the house, sash for the hot beds and a first coal grate for a sweet potato hot house. First to start "Jenny Lynns" canteloupe seed in cold frames in inverted sod. Built an incubator and hatched chicks right after the first one came out. Fond of gunning, and a musician—a violinist, also trombonist with the old "Weccacoe" band. Left drawings and paintings of school days of much promise in that line. He had many talents. A stomach trouble developed, was probably never properly diagnosed and caused his early death. His widow never remarried.

SAMUEL SHOEMAKER DESCENDANTS

3-2 SUSANNA SHARP; 2-4 SAMUEL; 1-1 CONRAD SHOEMAKER
 4-14 GEORGE SHARP. Born 3-4-1839 at Swedesboro, died 5-31-1923 at Philadelphia, age 84. Buried at Fernwood. Married ELIZABETH SENCE, of Jacksonville, Ill.; born 1847, died 11-29-1931, age 84. They adopted a daughter, JULIA MARIE SHARP, born 12-29-1882. GEORGE, as a young man, enlisted in the Civil War and was in the Battle of Gettysburg. Later he came to Philadelphia from Jersey and became an overseer or Superintendent of the Fairmount Park grounds, which he held over 40 years. He bought a property at 1212 N. 28th St., Philadelphia, where he lived and which is yet occupied by his daughter. He moved to Perkins Lane, near Beverly, N. J., when his wife became sick, but after three years returned to the city. JULIA MARIE SHARP married, 1914, WILLIAM S. JOYCE, of Woodbury, N. J., son of Joshua and Abigail Joyce. They were later divorced.

4-15 THOMAS SHARP. Born near Swedesboro 10-14-1840. Married, about 1880, ELIZABETH ———, from the west. She died in 1893. Buried at Mt. Vernon Cemetery. He died 7-17-1932 in his 92nd year. Buried at Mt. Vernon Cemetery, Ridge and Lehigh Aves., Philadelphia. He was the eldest of his generation. A coincidence of his birth and death occurs with that of MARY A. LEAMING, wife of ISAAC P. SHOEMAKER. Both were born the same date in the same year and she died in her 93rd year six months after the death of him. ISAAC's father, DAVID, was brother to SUSANNA, who was THOMAS SHARP's mother. They had one child, dying in infancy, no record of name. He married secondly, 11-8-1894, LOUISA SENER VICE, daughter of William and Harriet (Smith) Vice; born 10-23-1855 and yet living at 1212 N. 28th St., Philadelphia. No children. THOMAS had a farm, mainly in asparagus, at Hamilton Square, near Trenton, N. J., for 20 years. He later came to Philadelphia and bought a residence at 1226 N. 28th St., near his brother GEORGE, who obtained work for him in Fairmount Park, in charge of the springs. He enlisted three times in the Civil War, served out each period and was honorably discharged. He was a Corporal at the Battle of Gettysburg, was captured three times and was in three Confederate prisons, Libby, Florence and Andersonville. He became ruptured and was later pensioned. The old home is still owned by his widow.

SAMUEL SHOEMAKER DESCENDANTS

3-3 MARY; 24 SAMUEL; 1-1 CONRAD SHOEMAKER THE SETTLER

3-3 MARY SHOEMAKER. Born near Centre Square 7-20-1812, died 2-31-1894, age 81. Buried at Clarksboro. Married ——— LEW-ALLEN. The only record of this marriage obtainable so far is that he fell off a horse soon after marriage and was killed.

3-3 MARY LEWALLEN married secondly JOHN CREIGHEAD. His history is vague. Reported a very fine man. He either followed the water or had a fishing vessel which foundered in a storm and he died from exposure a few years after marriage.

Issue:-	Born	Died	Age
4-16 SARAH EDITH CREIGHEAD	4-20-1835	6-27-1916	81
4-17 ELIZABETH CREIGHEAD	12-20-1837	1- 3-1894	56
4-18 WILLIAM CREIGHEAD Killed in Civil War

4-17 ELIZABETH CREIGHEAD never married. She lived mostly with her father's people at Westville.

3-3 MARY CREIGHEAD married thirdly JOSEPH KNISELL. His history is also vague to the present time. The first of the Knisells in Jersey was born in Germany and has a marble slab to his memory in the Swedesboro Episcopal yard. The Knisells I have contacted do not lead to MARY (SHOEMAKER) CREIGHEAD. The issue of this marriage was supposed as follows:

Issue:-	Born	Died	Age
4-19 ROBERT KNISELL	About 1842	Lost in Civil War
4-20 MARY KNISELL	About 1844	About 1855	11

3-3 MARY KNISELL married fourthly EDWARD HAM, of Woodbury, at Louisville, Ky., 10-3-1851. She was then age 39 and he, born 6-13-1819, was age 32. They lived together 32 years. In later life he had a home at the south edge of Woodbury with a few acres of ground which he tilled. He died from the kick of his horse while plowing, 7-13-1883, age 64. He had his coffin prepared before death and $10,000 was supposed to be spent for a monument, although this never transpired. The tallest one probably in Eglington Cemetery, however, marks the place where MARY and EDWARD are buried. After his death MARY bought a fine "Holman" bible, of 1884, and wrote on the fly leaf, an illustrated page, "EDWARD HAM to MARY HAM, Christmas, 1883." This bible is with her granddaughter, ADA DUFFIELD, of Jefferson. No other bibles of hers have been located. She outlived EDWARD HAM 10 years. A fuller record of these unions may be later obtained.

AN ANCIENT LANDMARK

A cedar post about one hundred years old, yet standing on Main Street in Bridgeport, N. J.; the corner of a pale fence of the double dwelling occupied by Mrs. Elmira (Shoemaker) Swain, widow, and Mrs. Elizabeth Pancoast, sisters, whose grandfather, Conrad Shoemaker, born 1825, and great grandfather, Jacob Shoemaker, born 1780, planted, as a part of a rail fence that they built along the road leading to Raccoon Creek when the town had but a few houses. The dwelling adjoining, south, is the home of Mrs. Rebecca Featherer (Shoemaker) Burke, widow, whose grandfather was James Shoemaker, a brother to the above Conrad.

JACOB SHOEMAKER DESCENDANTS

2-5 JACOB; 1-1 CONRAD SHOEMAKER THE SETTLER

2-5 JACOB SHOEMAKER was born near Centre Square 1-10-1780. Died 1836, age 56. Married JEMIMA BOYLES, of Gloucester Co., daughter of Henry Boyles, who died 10-2-1813. Jemima died 9-19-1837. Both supposed buried in the Episcopal Swedes Cemetery—no stones. His bible descended to his eldest child Joseph and then to the sixth child of Joseph and the only one yet living, William Homan Shoemaker, of Gibbstown, N. J., which contains the data given. Jacob and Jemima's eighth child, Conrad, lived the longest of any of the Shoemaker clan, dying at 96. There is no will or inventory of Jacob on record. He was a farmer in the vicinity of Centre Square. Jacob and Jemima were married twenty-five years and had nine children.

3-12 CONRAD SHOEMAKER. Born 5-16-1825, died 12-19-1921, age 96. Married, 2-17-1847, to ELIZABETH RAPP, of Bucks County, Pa. She was born 1826, died 1905, age 79. Both buried in Eglington Cemetery, Clarksboro. Of four generations of Shoemakers none lived as long as he. CONRAD, SR., died at 72. Of the latter's eight children GEORGE lived the longest, to 86, and of the third generation, of 39 souls, 13 of them lived to 80 and past, while the above CONRAD exceeded all by 10 to 15 years. He was a familiar figure in Gloucester and Salem Counties for many years, the only one of his generation living during the World War and the Philadelphia Press gave him a write-up at that time along with Undertaker Hannold, of Swedesboro, both past 90. At age 92 said he could do as good work sitting down as 70 years before, but his "underpinnin's was sort of givin' out." He carried an ear trumpet in his latter years and was rejected from Civil War duty on account of deafness. He related that during the rebellion a man came from New York to buy sweet potatoes. He sold him what he had and after carting them to the station the man paid him with a $1000 and a $500 bank note.

CONRAD was but six years old when his father died and he was put out with a farmer's family at 10 and raised a farmer, which line he followed all his life, managing some big farms. He was at Prospect, then at Cooper's seven years, Westville 12 years, Ewansville 13 years and then retired to Pitman. He died at his daughter Martha's home in Camden. His granddaughter, Mrs. Clasby, of Collingswood, has his old marriage license.

CONRAD and ELIZABETH had four children, of whom two yet live.

GEORGE SHOEMAKER AND HIS DESCENDANTS

GEORGE SHOEMAKER DESCENDANTS

2-6 GEORGE; 1-1 CONRAD SHOEMAKER THE SETTLER

2-6 GEORGE SHOEMAKER. Born near Centre Square 6-13-1782, died 2-2-1866, age 86. Married, 2-9-1809, KEZIAH KEY, of Gloucester County; born 5-23-1791, died 9-20-1849, age 58. Both buried in the P. E. Church yard at Swedesboro. Their headstones, the family bible (Perry, of Phila., 1853) owned by Edmund Weatherby, of Clarksboro, and a sheet of paper which Keziah gave to her granddaughter, Ann Amanda Parsons, of Philadelphia, all contain the records of births, marriages and deaths as assembled below, as well as the old Trinity P. E. Church records, where they were communicants as late as 1842. His will and inventory, filed in the N. J. Archives at Trenton, made 7-5-1860, proved 2-14-1868, appoints his son Charles executor. He makes bequests of certain things to his second wife, Catharine, and $50 cash, and divides the balance equally amongst all his children, except John. He joined with his brother, Samuel, in 1808 in the purchase of the real estate of their late father from the other three children, heirs-at-law—and he probably reared his children on a part of this plantation near Centre Square. The Woodbury Court records show more than 15 real estate transactions of his in these early days and a study of these shows his various farming activities.

He married secondly CATHERINE ———, who died 3-19-1863, in her 64th year, five years before her husband, and is buried in the Trinity Church yard.

GEORGE and KEZIAH were married 40 years and had eleven children.

4-60 WILLIAM BOWMAN SHOEMAKER. Born in Wilmington, Del., 3-15-1847, died at Philadelphia 11-30-1903, age 56. Married, 11-5-1868, to MARY JANE POSTAL; born Philadelphia 4-24-1846, died at the home of her son, Isaac, in East Orange, N. J., 7-15-1914, age 68. Buried in Evergreen Cemetery, Camden, N. J. She was the daughter of James and Sarah (Laven) Postal.

WILLIAM was raised a farmer on his father's farm near Thorofare until after marriage, then farmed for himself. Later gave up the soil and moved to Camden and worked in Philadelphia in the produce business. Next started a bakery in Camden, which prospered, and his products became known all over the city, requiring the help of three bakers. The inception of this business was due largely to his wife, who was an adept in culinary art. After many years he sold out and moved to Atlantic City. His health soon failed and they moved back to Camden, where death soon claimed him.

WILLIAM and MARY were married 35 years and were the parents of eight children, of whom three were born on March 7th of different years. All lived to adult life except the last born, and five are yet alive.

OLD SWEDES' CHURCH

Old Trinity (Swedes) Protestant Episcopal Church and cemetery at Swedesboro, N. J. Church founded by the Swedes before 1700 and where Conrad Shoemaker, Sr., and family were communicants, where his children were baptized and by the side of which he is buried. The first minister was Tolstradius, drowned in the Delaware River, 1705; he was followed by Abraham Lidinius, who also became pastor of "Pennsneck," where a church was built in 1717. A long line of pastors followed, some of them distinguished, down to the present day. A subscription list of about 225 names and pledging a total of 600 pounds for the finishing of the new church was dated January 1, 1793, and reads as follows: "Whereas the finishing of the new church at Swedesboro would tend in a great degree to its preservation, durability and convenience; would complete the elegant plan on which it was constructed, be an evidence of the public spirit and taste of the congregation, their zeal for the Glory of God and their large sense of the great benefits derived both to society and individuals from a regular, decent and constant public worship. And as sufficient time has now elapsed since its erection to have recovered from the burden it occasioned and no substantial reason can be for delaying it any longer:—We the subscribers in consideration hereof do severally bind ourselves, our heirs, executors and administrators well and truly to pay to the Rev. John Croes, Colo. Robert Brown, Capt. Felix Fisler, and Mr. Charles Lock, appointed managers for the purpose aforesaid, the sums affixed to our names in the manner following, viz: One-third part on the first day of March next ensuing, one-third part on the first day of May and the remainder to be paid on the first day of September next following the date."

THE FOUNDERS' HEADSTONE

Headstone of Conrad Shoemaker, Sr., the settler and ancestor of all of that name born in Gloucester and Salem Counties, N. J., whose family records repose in the fireproof vault of Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church at Swedesboro, N. J., by the side of which this stone stands. The old cemetery, extending from the church north towards Raccoon Creek, is large and kept in fine condition. About two hundred burials date from earliest days until about 1884, when a newer cemetery was started near at hand. Here headstones antedate the time of marble, as indicated by neighborhood field-stone shaped to the purpose. The wear of years has obliterated some names and dates but the date 1721 is easily discernible. Prevalent names of the early days are those of Black, Clark, French, Jones, Kirby, Lord, Mattson, Keen, Pierson, Rambo, Straughn, Summerill, Stille, Leap, Williams, Lock, Seneck, Mulicka, Hendrickson, Fish, Justice and Richman.

CONRAD SHOEMAKER, JR., DESCENDANTS

2-8 CONRAD SHOEMAKER, JR. Born near Swedesboro, N. J., 2-14-1787, the last of eight children. Died 3-9-1846, age 59. Married, 3-23-1815, KEZIAH BOYLE, born 12-6-1790, died 1822, at age 32. All dates agree with headstones and the old church records. He was buried in the Swedes M. E. Church yard, with stone inscribed "Sacred to the memory of CONRAD SHOEMAKER, who departed this life 3-9-1846, aged 59 years and 23 days." Quite similar to that of his father in the old Trinity yard. They were married seven years and had three children.

EDWARD SHOEMAKER was administrator of his father's estate. He sold at public vendue the real estate to Benjamin Lippincott, of Harrison Township, for $4,000 and executed a deed for the same on 6-19-1847. The land was in three lots totaling 121 acres and lay along Raccoon Creek out to the public road leading to Bridgeport. It bordered lands of the following persons. Walker, Clark, Uron, Jones, Hilyard, Black, Hendricks, Adams and Givens. Sold subject to the dower of CONRAD's widow, SARAH R. (KNISELL) SHOEMAKER.

He wrote he has traveled plenty, made and lost money plenty, and his work since he arrived there in 1880 has been ranching and mining. He settled in the worst country in the world, as big as the United States and only six and a half million people. Big parts of it no white man has seen and where there are so many rabbits people have to move out of their way. He knows where there is plenty of gold, but takes big capital and machinery to get at it. He is now nearly 87 years of age and been married 55 years. Had eleven children, nine of whom live and they all grew big. A partial record, gleaned from letters, follows:

The career of Mr. SHOEMAKER was marked by much brilliance of mind. He was a master teacher, a great organizer and promoter, and a gifted musician. He was well built physically and wore a seven and seven-eighths hat, made to order. He worked his way mainly, through the normal school at Trenton, then rose rapidly from his first school at Pedricktown to Principal of High at Pennsgrove. Was leader of the old "Weccacoe" band at Pedricktown. He later went to Columbia, Pa., as an office manager, then to Pierce's in Philadelphia as Professor of Mathematics, English Grammar and Bookkeeping. Next Principal of a Commercial College at Fall River, Mass., and organized the SHOEMAKER & CLARK COMMERCIAL SCHOOL at the same place. Sold out and went to Rochester, N. Y., in correspondence school work with much success. In 1906 went to Nevada when Goldfield was coming into full bloom and became wealthy with his operations there. Next went to Los Angeles, Calif., and engaged in oil enterprises, played into hands of sharks and lost most of his fortune. After this he did little for several years, then opened a branch of the American Letter Co. of New York, an enterprise of his eldest son. He contracted pneumonia on a jaunt to San Francisco, which caused his death.

4-137 EMMA MARIAH BARNART; 5-296 FRANK LESLIE BARNART

5-296 FRANK LESLIE BARNART was born at Carney's Point 7-6-1868. Married, in 1890, SOPHIA ISAACS, of Philadelphia. They had two daughters and later were divorced. She remarried a police officer by name of CRAMER and had possession of the children, location not known at present. MR. BARNART married secondly, July, 1910, ROSE ELLEN (CORDREY) STANDING, a widow, who was sick at the time and she died a few days after marriage. He married thirdly, January, 1913, ANNA RUTHERFORD (SCOTT) CAREY, a widow, born 5-20-1883, and has lived with her the past 22 years. No issue.

MR. BARNART is physically and mentally typical of the SHOEMAKER stock. He was a foreman with the Hale & Kilburn Mfg. Co. in Philadelphia in their palmy days and at one time was over about 600 men. When the plant was taken over by Budd he went with the latter firm in the same capacity for 5 years, until depression times, when he was not needed. He then transferred to Cutter's in Bridgeton, N. J., and after two years they went out of business. He is now connected with the 3,000-acre Seabrook farm enterprise near Bridgeton and lives on the plant.

INDEX

SHOEMAKER and allied family names. In order to simplify this subject and avoid repetition, no middle names are given and all females are entered under their maiden name. If you do not know a woman's maiden name that you wish to find, then look for it where you find her husband's name in the text of the book.

It is interesting to note that after 128 years since Conrad Shoemaker's five children began to marry, there have been marriages into over 500 different, distinct families in America, as recorded in this index.

Next to the Shoemaker name, Justice is most prevalent, with 71 different given names, followed by Moore, with 51; then Sharp, 42; Sparks, 35; Shute, 35, and after these, Featherer, Duffield, Fish, Miller. Horner and Costill follow as next in importance of numbers.

The Shoemaker name is given first in alphabetical order, followed by all the allied names in like manner.
