EXPLANATIONS.

This genealogy is arranged according to the plan adopted by the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, which has come into general use. Thus on page 21 the figures on the left of the page denote the successive numbers of the heads of the families which will be taken up again; when a number is omitted before a name it indicates that such a name will not be mentioned again. Thus 11, 1, William, etc., we find again on page 27, where he is brought up with full particulars and his full family record given. The small exponent figures as on page 27, which follow thus, William⁸ Scott (William², William¹), show the number of the generation from the common ancestor William Scott.

ABBREVIATIONS.—b. for born; d. for died; m. for married; unm. for unmarried; dau. for daughter.

OLD AND NEW STYLE.—All dates prior to 1752 are supposed to conform to the old style then used.

PREFACE.

Primarily the writer was prompted to undertake the compilation of the Scott Genealogy because of his connection with the family by marriage, and because so little had appeared in print concerning the descendants of William Scott of Hatfield. The quest for material has extended through the period of fifteen years, as time could be spared to devote to the subject. All available means have been resorted to for the purpose of rendering the work as complete as possible, by search in public records and through extensive correspondence in this country and Canada. A few families may not be found in this compilation because no response could be obtained in answer to solicited records, and a limited number of families seem to have dropped out of the reach of earnest inquiry.

Only those who have engaged in similar work can realize the needed patience and perseverance required to bring such a task to a satisfactory conclusion. For this reason the compiler desires to acknowledge his great indebtedness to the hosts of correspondents who have, in the main, so heartily responded to his inquiries, and have made the completion of the genealogy possible. He has been especially indebted to the late lamented William M. Scott of Cambridge, Vt., who took a deep and abiding interest in the prosecution of the work, and gathered a valuable amount of data pertaining to his branch of the Scott family. It was through his earnest search that the descendants of Daniel Scott were found in Canada, who had been lost sight of for an entire century.

The descendants of John Scott of Springfield have been given a place in this work, because by many he is thought to have been a near relative to William Scott, although the connection has not as yet been made clear.

As no work of this nature has yet attained to perfection, the compiler desires any one who may discover any error to kindly advise him of it, that it may be corrected in an addenda if advisable.

Again thanking all who have rendered aid, the compiler trusts that this completed work will prove an acceptable memorial of a time-honored family, whose sons and daughters have contributed so much to the material welfare of their respective communities.

INTRODUCTION.

Antiquity of the Name of Scott.*

"The theory of Professor Inness of Edinborough University, in relation to the original name of Scott in Scotland, is that long before surnames were known the people of that country who wandered into England received the distinctive appellation of Scotus or Scot, and returned to Scotland bearing the name of Scot in addition to their former name. The canny lad who crossed the border a plain Robert, returned in time from England as Robert Scot, and reared a family who retained the surname of their ancestor. In 1686 Satchells wrote a history of the name of Scott, in which he carried it back to the days of Charlemagne.

"Buchanan, in his history of Scotland, confirms this. He asserts that Charles the Great sent to Scotland for some learned and pious men who read philosophy in Greek and Latin at Paris, among whom were Johannes, surnamed Scotus. He was the preceptor of Charlemagne and left many monuments of learning which puts it beyond a doubt that the surname of Scot is of great antiquity.

"But Hector Boethius, and other historians, among whom are Vermundus, Cornelius, and Scoleger, claim a still more remote antiquity for the name of Scot than is accorded by Satchells. Boethius avers that the name of Scot originated from Scota, the daughter of that Pharaoh, king of Egypt, that was drowned in the Red Sea. Thus : — Gathelus, son of Cecrops, first king of Athens, and a native of Egypt, became so insolent and troublesome at his father's court that he was banished the kingdom ; wherefore with a large band of fugitives he left Greece and went to Egypt in the time of Moses, at a period when Pharaoh was engaged in a war with neighboring nations; joining his forces with the Egyptians, he was made a general and soon subdued the natives at war with Pharaoh, and so won the favor and confidence of that monarch that he gave his daughter, named Scota, in marriage. About this time Egypt was visited with the plague of which we read, because Pharaoh would not let the children of Israel go. In order to escape from the plague, which was carrying off multitudes, Gathelus and Scota, his wife, with a large number of Greeks and Egyptians put to sea and afterwards landed in Spain, called that portion of the country Port Gathale, which is now known as Portugal. Here he named the people "Scottis," from the affection he bore to his wife Scota.

"After years of bloody wars with the barbarians of Spain Gathelus, with his colony, sailed for and landed in Ireland, and afterwards went over to the northern part of Britain, which was called Scotland (the land of the Scots) from the Scots who planted themselves there.

"We have the testimony of Seneca that the name of Scot was known to some writer in the first century. The Bishop of Aberdeen, who searched all the monuments of antiquity of Scotland, says all concur that the name of Scot was derived from Scota, the most important person in the colony.

"Long anterior to the general use of surnames, natives of Scotland who domiciled in England in the same period, or other countries, added "Scotus" to their proper name to denote their nativity or descent, as Johannes, surnamed Scotus, mentioned by Buchanau; John Duns Scotus, one of the greatest scholars of his time, of whom Halles says "at Oxford 30,000 pupils attended his lectures;" Marianus Scotus, the learned monk of Fulde, historian, etc.

"As we come down to the Norman period in England, distinguished persons who had Scotch blood in their veins added the christian name "le Scot," as John le Scot last Earl of Chester, and his grand nephew, William Baliol le Scot, ancestor of the Scotts of Scotts Hall, Kent.

"In process of time the tendency of North Britain to pass into England became common, and as surnames came generally into use about the eleventh century, many descendants of Scotia assumed the name of Scott, usually spelled with one t, down to the beginning of the seventeenth century, with few exceptions.

"The Scotts of Harden, according to good authority, sprang from the Laird of Sintur, of which family was Sir Walter Scott; another notable member of this family is the Rev. Dr. Robert Scott, a proficient scholar and master of Baliol College, Oxford.

"The Scotts of Scotts Hall, Kent, trace their pedigree in an unbroken line through Dervorgille (daughter and one of the heirs of Alan, lord of Galloway, Constable of Scotland), the mother of William Baliol Scot, to Fergus, king of Scotland, in the time of Alexander the Great, to Rollo, first duke of Normandy; Baldwin, first Count of Flanders; Henry I, emperor of Germany; Waldimer the Great of Russia; Romanus I, of the Greek empire; Alfred the Great; William the Conqueror; and finally to Charlemagne; mainly through female branches; also to David I, of Scotland, and Stuard, earl of Northumberland, of a different line. The old Norman church at Brabourne, Kent, contains many monuments of the Scotts of Scotts Hall, some of which date back to the thirteenth century. In Kent, Staffordshire, and the Scotch border, for long generations the family of Scott has been one of great wealth and power; at one period it was said the Scotts of Scotts Hall could travel from Brabourne to London (some fifty or sixty miles) without leaving the estates of the family connections. It is an historical record that in 1665 "Lady Anna Scott was esteemed the greatest fortune and most accomplished lady of the Isle of Britain."

"In Scotch history we meet with John Scot, a native of Cheshire, England, who was elected Bishop of St. Andrews in 1178. The first of the name of Scot to be met with in English history after surnames came into general use was John Scott, the last earl of Chester, born A. D. 1206; Sir Peter Scott, first mayor of Newcastle in 1251, and Sir Nicholas Scott his son, capital Bailiff of Newcastle in 1269. The Scotts of Holden, Kent, date back to John Scott, 1442.

"During the last six centuries those bearing the name of Scott have earned honors in literature, arts and arms, and have frequently performed parts that have turned the tide even in the destiny of nations."

"Better hearts o'er the border sod
To seige or rescue never trod."

The Scott Coats of Arms.

The name of Scott ranks among the most prominent British surnames, nearly 60 coats of arms being assigned to it in the Herald's College, and Burke gives the arms of 94 of the name, while the London Directory shows about 200 merchants, traders and bankers of this name in that metropolis.

The Heraldic Journal, p. 103, gives good reasons for supposing that the Scotts of New England came from the branches of Scotts Hall, Kent Co., England, so as a matter of general interest I give a description of the coat of arms of this famous house as follows :

Shield of eight quarterings, viz : —

1. Argent, three Catherine wheels sable, a bordure engrailed, gules.
2. Barry of six, argent and gules, a chief vair.
3. Purpure, a lion rampant, and crowned, gold.
4. Chequy, gold and azure.
5. Argent tinct de sang, a saltier sable.
6. Argent, a bend double, cotised, gules.
7. Gules a fesse between six cross-crosets, fitché, argent.
8. Gules, a chevron between three trifolys argent.

Some Scotts Who Came Early to This Country.

Of the Scott families which came early to this county the following are known to have been connected with the branches of the Scotts of Scotts Hall, Kent, viz : — Richard Scott of Providence ; John Scott of Long Island fame, who came in 1642 ; Judge Edward Scott of Newport, R. I., and his cousin, James Scott, about 1710.

The above Richard Scott was probably the son of Richard of Glemsford, England, born in 1607 ; he was of the church in Boston 1634. He soon removed to Providence. He married Catherine Marbury, 1637-8. He was said to have been the first convert of the Quakers in New England. He d. 1681-2 ; his wife d. 1687, æ. about 70.

Their children were :

- I. Richard.
- II. John.
- III. Mary, m. Aug. 12, 1666, Christopher Holder.
- IV. Patience, m. Sept. 28, 1668, Henry Beere.

V. Deliverence, m. Aug. 30, 1670, William Richardson.

VI. A daughter who m. Gov. Walter Clarke.

The connections of the following have not been traced; some of them may have been from the branches of the Kent Scotts.

Benjamin Scott.*

Benjamin Scott was early of Braintree, Mass., about 1643. He d. and wid. Hannah m. 21st of 7th mo., 1647, John Harbor.

His children were:

- I. Hannah, b. in England; m. in Braintree 18th 11th mo., 1654, Christopher Webb. Their children were Peter, John, Christopher, Hannah, Benjamin, Mary, Joseph, Abigail.
- II. John, b. 25th 10th mo., 1640; d. soon.
- III. Peter, b. Mar. 6, 1643.
- IV. Benjamin, d. 1683; bequeathed to Benjamin, son of his bro. Peter Scott, and to ch. of his brother-in-law, Christopher Webb. There may have been other children.

The above Peter Scott of Braintree m. 22d 10th mo., 1673, Abigail Neale. He d. Aug. 11, 1693.

Their children were:

- I. Benjamin, b. 24th 9th mo., 1676; m. May 31, 1699, Mary Daniel.
- II. John, b. 9th 4th mo., 1678.
- III. Peter, b. Sept. 20, 1680.
- IV. Abigail, b. Oct. 1, 1685.
- V. Joseph, b. Dec. 28, 1688.

Steven Scott of Braintree, m. 27th 5th mo., 1664, Sarah Lamb. He may have been a son of Benjamin Scott. He had a dau. b. 1665; a son b. 1667; and Ellen, b. 1670.

Robert Scott†

was admitted to the church at Boston 15th 10th mo., 1633, and was a merchant there in 1639. His wife, Elizabeth, was admitted to the church 1638, and was granted administration on husband's estate Mar. 24, 1653. She m. (2) John Sweet.

Children b. in Boston:—

- I. Nathaniel, bapt. 19th 6th mo., 1638.
- II. Elizabeth, b. 10th 10th mo., 1640.

- III. Mary, b. 28th 12th mo., 1642.
- IV. John, b. and d. 1645.
- V. Samuel, bapt. 1st 6th mo., 1647.
- VI. John, bapt. 6th 3d mo., 1649.
- VII. Joseph, bapt. 9th 4th mo., 1650.
- VIII. Redemption, b. Mar. 2, 1653.
- IX. Deliverance, bapt. 6th 1st mo., 1653.
- X. Eleazer, b. July 18, 1654.

Benjamin Scott was of Cambridge, where his wife Mary had Joseph, b. 1644; Benjamin, b. 1645. By wife Margaret had John, b. 1648. He probably removed to Rawley, Mass., 1652, where he had Samuel, b. 1655, and two daughters, where his will was made and probated in 1671. His widow, Margaret, was executed as a witch in Salem, Sept. 22d, 1693.

John Scott was of Salem, 1648; he probably went to Providence, R. I., where by his wife Rebecca had

- I. Sarah, b. Sept. 29, 1662.
- II. John, b. Mar. 14, 1664.
- III. Mary, b. Feb. 1, 1666.
- IV. Catherine, b. May 20, 1668.
- V. Deborah, b. Dec. 24, 1669.
- VI. Sylvanus, b. Nov. 10, 1672.

Thomas Scott, probably of Boston, Co. Lincoln, Eng., came to Cambridge, Mass., about 1630, and settled in Hartford, Conn., about 1635. He was accidentally shot by John Ewe and died Nov. 6, 1643. His widow, Ann, m. (2) Nov. 7, 1644, Thomas Ford, who later removed to Northampton.

Children of Thomas and Ann Scott, probably all b. in England:—

- I. Mary, m. Nov. 7, 1644, Robert Porter of Hartford.
- II. Sarah, m. Dec. 5, 1645, John Stanly of Hartford.
- III. Elizabeth, m. Feb. 3, 1648, John Loomis, son of Joseph, who came from England before 1659.
- IV. Thomas, is said to have been an invalid and died at Hartford not long after his father's decease.

"Thomas Scott, ae. 40, with wife Elizabeth, ae. 40, and ch. Elizabeth ae. 9, Abigail ae. 7, Thomas ae. 6, came in the Elizabeth of Ipswich Apr. 30, 1634. Martha Scott, ae. 60, came in the same ship. He settled at Cambridge; propr. 1634; freeman Mar. 4, 1634-5. Removed to Ipswich; propr. 1635; town officer 1653. He was a son of Henry Scott of Rattlesden, Suffolk, yeoman, and his wife Martha. The father d. in 1624, and the widow came as above; her dau. Ursula, wife of Richard Kembold or Kimball, came in the same ship. Will dated Mar. 8, 1653-4, probated 28th 1st mo., 1654, beq. to son Thomas, daus. Elizabeth, Abigail, Hannah, Sarah and Mary Beas; Richard Kimball, Thomas Rawlinson Sen., and Edmund Bridges, execs. His son, Thomas Scott of Stamford, Conn., sold land in Ipswich by his agent, Richard Kimball, Jan. 31, 1654. He paid legacy of his father to his sister Hannah, wife of Edmund Lockwood of Stamford, Mar. 15, 1667. After his death in 1683 his sisters Abigail, wife of Hamel Bosworth, and Elizabeth Spofford, with Thomas Patch, petitioned for re-administration of the estate of their father (Essex Files 41, 71). The widow married Ezekiel Rogers, made will at Boston June 22, 1678; prob. 2d 6th mo., 1678; beq. to son and dau. Snelling's children and dau. Martha Rogers."*

Thomas Scott Jr. m. Margaret, dau. of William Hubbard, and removed to Stamford, Conn., where he d. in 1657; his widow returned to Ipswich and m. (2) Ezekiel Rogers. The son and a dau., Margaret, of this Thomas Scott are accounted for in this way: This Margaret Scott m. a Rogers, probably a son of her step-father, and this son deposing in 1693 says: "My grandfather and mother Scott had two children, Thomas and Margaret, my mother. Thomas, my uncle, went into England in 1683 and died there.

Edward Scott was of Hadley before 1670, where he m. 1670 Elizabeth Webster, probably dau. of Gov. John Webster. She d. Mar. 13, 1689, ae. 40. He removed later to New Haven.

Children: —

- I. Elizabeth, b. 1671.
- II. Sarah, b. 1674.
- III. Thomas, b. 1675.
- IV. John, b. 1677.
- V. Ebenezer, b. 1681.
- VI. Bridget } twins, b. 1682.
- VII. Ann }
- VIII. Hannah, b. Nov. 1, 1689.

"Gen. Winfield Scott's grandfather was a Scotchman of the Clan Buccleuch, who escaped from the field of Culloden in 1748." I Hotton's list of emigrants we find the name of William Scott, who embarked from Gravesend Aug. 21, 1635, for Virginia, ae. 24.

Descendants of William Scott of Hatfield, Mass.

Long and dilligent search has been made for the parentage of William Scott, but as yet the problem remains unsolved. There seems to have been no clue left by which we can judge whence or when he came to this country, for it now seems probable that he was an emigrant. He first appears on the scene at Hatfield about 1668, just a little later than John Scott at Springfield ; and from the similar names in both families the inference is drawn that they may have been brothers or very near of kin, for John also has left no trace of his ancestry. It is to be deplored that they left no record of their extraction to gratify the reasonable curiosity of their descendants. It is quite reasonable, however, to suppose that they were both scions of that proud house of Scotts of Scotts Hall of Kent, England, from which so many claim descent in this country, but this is only conjecture. The late J. M. Crafts, in his history of Whately, favors the opinion that William Scott was the son of Thomas of Hartford, but a few months before his death he wrote me that he had abandoned that idea and averred his belief that he was his grandson ; but in presenting his argument to prove this suggestion he had overlooked the fact that he had merged the lives of Thomas Scott of Ipswich and Thomas of Hartford into the same person, which fact upsets his theory. The reader will clearly see that our William Scott could not have been a descendant of either by carefully reading the sketches of them in previous pages. My suggestion is that our William Scott may have been connected in some way with Benjamin Scott of Braintree, where his father-in-law, William Allis, was located some twelve years before settling in Hadley, which might account for his acquaintance with his future wife and for his coming to Hatfield.

As before stated, William Scott came to that part of Hadley now Hatfield, about 1668. He married, Jan. 28, 1670, Hannah, daughter of Lieut. William Allis of Hatfield, b. about 1649. Lieut. Allis was an emigrant from England who settled first in Watertown, then in Braintree 1656 to 1658, later in Hartford, and finally was one of the original proprietors of Hadley in 1661. He was assigned a house lot on the west side of the river, now Hatfield, where he became the leading citizen for many years. He held the office of deacon, lieutenant of cavalry, justice of the peace and selectman. He died Sept. 6, 1678. His estate was inventoried at £490-6s*. Aug. 8, 1670, William Scott was assigned a home lot 20 rods in width on the east side of the street near the north end of the street, opposite of Sergt. Ben Wait's, and this lot of Ben Wait's was where John Brown lived in 1882. There were two lots north of William Scott's before we reach the road running to the ferry.† Jan. 16, 1671, he had another grant of land on the plains. He also had division in the commons. Hatfield street as first laid out extended one mile north and south; the street was about 10 rods wide and the house lots of about eight acres each were laid out on each side. As William Scott was some seven years later in coming than the original settlers his home, as has been stated above, was located at the north end of the long street, near the present estates of Ellis Wait and William Dorothy (according to information furnished by Mr. D. W. Wells of Hatfield).

Here then our ancestor began life in a somewhat rude house; but as a sawmill had been erected in Hatfield in 1664 or 5, no doubt he had a framed house inclosed by boards in a plain way. But this old first home has passed away long ago, as have all the others which were then scattered along the old street. At this time there were probably about thirty families in town. The rich meadows of Hatfield were mostly clear of trees when the whites settled there, and ready for the plow, where the red race for ages had raised corn; so the yeomen of the valley had a much easier time to commence life than those who settled in the hill towns.

"The Hatfield lands were mostly purchased from the Indian chiefs Umponchalla and Quanquant, of the Norwottuck tribe."‡

†J. M. Crafts additions to Hist. Whately.

‡Vide Hubbard's Historical Address.

As the Indians had been fairly dealt with peace had subsisted between them and the settlers till war was incited by the wily King Philip. On October 19, 1675, the Indians, numbering nearly 800, made a furious onset upon Hatfield with the determination to destroy the town and slay the inhabitants, but they had been expected by the English, who received them so hotly that they were beaten off and the town saved with small loss to Hatfield.*

William Scott joined the expedition which made the attack upon the Indians at the Falls (now Turners Falls) May 19, 1676, which resulted in the signal defeat of the enemy, as well as the death of many English, William Allis Jr., a brother-in-law of William Scott, being one of the number killed. This was one of the most noted battles of the valley. On Sept. 19, 1677, another attack was made upon Hatfield by the Indians, when twelve persons were killed and seventeen captives taken. These captives were redeemed excepting three, who were killed by the Indians.

This digression is made to show the perils amid which our ancestors labored. During these scenes of turmoil Hatfield lost about one-half of her dwellings by their being destroyed by the enemy. A portion of Hatfield street was in time protected by a palisaded inclosure, which was formed by setting split timbers eight feet long in the ground in an upright position, the tops being fastened by cross timbers. William Scott's house being at the extreme north end of the street, must have been outside of this enclosure. This was indeed a time when it required nerve to move beyond the smoke of one's own dwelling; the Indian lurked on every hand and no one knew when a blow would be struck.† That William Scott performed his full share in the common defense is evinced by the fact that in 1677 the General Court at Boston allowed him for military expenses £ 2, 16 s. But war's alarms ceased after a while and prosperity smiled on our river town, and the farmer added to his acres and the family grew in number as the years rolled by. It seems that the staid dames of that elder day were fond of finery as now, and although the law was stern yet in 1673 we find that William Scott's wife and five other Hatfield women were fined for wearing silk contrary to the law.

*Vide Hubbard's History.

†For many of the above facts I am indebted to Judd's valuable history of Hadley.

William Scott appears to have been a prosperous man in his day, and at the close of his long life had accumulated quite a property in landed estate. Besides his house lot on the main street he had a lot each in the north and south meadows. In the first division of commons he had lot No. 65, 14 rods wide and over three miles long. In division No. 3 he had lot No. 6, which was 13 rods wide and about three miles long; these were located in Hatfield. In division No. 2 he had lot No. 40, 12 rods wide and about two miles long. In division No. 4 he had lot No. 69, which was 13 rods wide and four miles in length. These two last lots were in the present town of Whately.* I have sought—diligently through the Hatfield Town Records, as well as in the old cemetery—for the date of death of William Scott, but have failed to find it. There is no headstone to mark his grave. I was fortunate enough to find a copy of his will among the archives of Memorial Hall at Deerfield, dated Feb. 15, 1716. This is the original will, but I am inclined to the opinion that it was not admitted to probate, as no record of it can be found at Northampton, where it should appear. It is probable that William Scott died about 1718; if so, he was about 83.

The will commences in this wise: "In the name of God, Amen. The fifteenth day of February in the 3d year of his Majesty's reign, Anno Domini 1716-17, I, William Scott of Hatfield, in the County of Hampshire in his Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England, being weakly of body and crazy of constitution but of perfect mind and memory, thanks be given to God therefor, calling to mind the mortality of my body, and knowing that it is appointed to all men to die, do make and ordain this my last will and testament, that is to say principally and first of all, give and recommend my soul into the hands of God who gave it, and my body I recommend to the earth, to be buried in decent Christian burial att the Discretion of my executor herein named, Nothing doubting but at the Gen'l Resurrection I shall receive the same again by the mighty power of God. And as touching such worldly Estates wherewith it has pleased God to Bless me in this Life far beyond my Deserts, I Give, Devise & Dispose of the same in the following manner and form. Imprimis. I Give and Bequeath to Hannah my Dearly beloved wife, after my Decease, (She outliving me) the use and Improvement of my whole Estate both Real and Personal for her Support and Maintenance During the term of her Natural Life." Then follow the items of bequests to several members of the family, viz: — To his eldest son Josiah, Three acres of land in Denison's Farm in addition to what had already been given him in 1707. To his daughter, Hannah Braughton, forty shillings. The same amount was also devised to his sons Richard and William, and remaining daughter, Abigail Bingham. The remainder of his estate was devised to his son Joseph. The will was witnessed by Thomas Haskins, Nathaniel Dickinson ye 3d, and Joseph Wait.

2., Josiah² Scott, (William¹) b. in Hatfield, Mass., June 18, 1671; m. 1698, Sarah Barrett, b. 1678. She was the daughter of Benjamin Barrett of Deerfield, who was a soldier in the Indian war under Capt. Turner, and was the son of John Barrett the emigrant. Her mother was Sarah, daughter of Isaac Graves of Hatfield. Isaac Graves was the son of Thomas and Sarah Graves, who came from England to Hartford, Conn., about 1645. Mary, the wife of Isaac Graves, was the daughter of Richard and Anis Church, who came from England to Hartford about 1637.

The date of death of Josiah Scott and of his wife have not been ascertained. It is inferred that they both attained to a good old age. He was one of the earliest settlers in the present town of Whately, Mass., about 1719, in the district called Hopewell, when he built a log house on the old Deerfield road north of the Zebine Bartlett place. In 1736 the General Court granted to the survivors or the descendants of those who served in the Falls fight of May 18, 1676, a grant of land in the new township of Falltown, now Bernardston, and Josiah Scott, whose father, William, was one of the soldiers in that memorable conflict, was one of the grantees, but he seems to have turned his claim over to his son Moses, as we shall see later.

The following from the history of Whately probably refers to the family of Josiah Scott :

"It is current tradition that no family of the name of Scott was molested by the Indians in their numerous raids in the valley after the close of King Philip's war. To account for it the story goes that one of the name had a dream for three successive winter nights that an Indian family encamped in Hopewell was in a starving condition. Influenced by the repetition of his dream he started with his snow shoes and gun, and at the foot of Hopewell Hill shot a bear, with the meat of which he saved the lives of the, as he found, starving Indians; and they never forgot his kindness. Of the encampment on the spot indicated there is no doubt, as the records show, and their household utensils, etc. are found in abundance, and the writer has not met with the name Scott among the captives or those killed in predatory excursions after 1697, the date of the breaking up of the Indian camp at Hopewell."

Josiah Scott deeded, Nov. 6, 1745, the land he had in Bradstreet's grant and other lots in the division of commons in Hatfield to his son Josiah. He thus conveyed $37\frac{1}{2}$ acres lying on the northerly part of Bradstreet's grant, and bounded west and north on the second division of commons, east on the Connecticut river, and south on Dea. Dickenson's land, with the buildings thereon, where J. M. Crafts lately lived.

Children b. in Hatfield :

- I. Josiah, b. Nov. 29, 1699; m. Mary — ; date and place of death not known, neither has any record of his children been found. From the county records we find that he sold June 16, 1749, one-half of the land in Hatfield, received from his father, to his brother Elijah, and on Mar. 23, 1754, he sold the remainder to his brother Benjamin. Josiah Scott Jr. was then living at Ware River Precinct, now Ware, Mass. On Sept. 30, 1766, he sold land in Ware for £100; he was then living in Guilford, N. Y., but diligent search there fails to reveal any trace of him or his descendants.

- II. Sarah, b. Sept. 9, 1701.
- III. Hannah, b. May 30, 1704.
- 6. IV. Benjamin, b. May 31, 1708.

- VII. Ruth, b. Nov. 25, 1715.
- VIII. Elijah, no dates. On June 16, 1749, a deed was given to Josiah and his brother, Elijah. Probably this is the Elijah Scott who m. Mar. 1, 1753, Hannah Tuttle of Sunderland, who as widow was granted administration on the estate July 13, 1756, at Hatfield.

3. Richard² Scott, (William¹) b. Feb. 22, 1673; m. Jan. 15, 1702, Elizabeth Belding. She was the daughter of Stephen and Mary (Wells) Belding, b. in Hatfield, Mass., Feb. 2, 1683. Her father was the son of Samuel, who came from England to Wethersfield, thence to Hatfield. Her mother was Mary, daughter of Thomas and Mary (Beardsley) Wells, he the son of Hugh and Frances Wells, who came from England to Hartford in 1636, Mary Beardsley, was the daughter of William of Hartford. and Maria Harv

Richard Scott removed from Hatfield to Sunderland soon after 1715, and was one of the original settlers there. He was a prominent man in town and was repeatedly chosen one of the selectmen. He died in Sunderland Mar. 31, 1750. His wife d. Jan. 22, 1769. It is said there are no lineal descendants in the town at the present time.

7. Capt. Moses³ Scott, (Josiah², William¹) b. Feb. 3, 1713, in Hatfield, Mass. He m. Aug. 24, 1742, Miriam Nash, b. in Hadley Jan. 2, 1710. She was the dau. of Ebenezer³ Nash, Timothy², Thomas¹, the emigrant to New Haven. Her father, Ebenezer, m. July 1, 1701, Mary Scott, dau. of John and Sarah (Bliss) Scott of Springfield. Her grandfather, Timothy Nash, m. abt. 1657 Rebecca, dau. of Rev. Samuel Stone of Hartford; her great-grandfather, Thomas, m. Margary, dau. of Nicholas Baker of England.

Capt. Scott was one of the pioneers who settled in Falltown, now Bernardston. He was given an allotment of land on account of the services rendered by his grandfather, William Scott, in the Falls fight of 1676. His farm embraced all the meadow north of the village as far as the old cemetery, and the upland now known as the Warner place, where he built a house which was taken down some 100 years ago. He also erected and owned the saw-mill near the present iron bridge on Fall river, and ran it for many years. There has since been a mill on the same site until quite recently. He was a man of powerful physique, six feet in height, having the strength, it is said, of four ordinary men. He was a farmer, carpenter and soldier, and excelled in each occupation as duty demanded. He had the oversight of constructing the first forts built in Falltown, and was not backward in their defense.

The pioneers of the new town did not enjoy a long respite from danger, for war was declared by Great Britain against France and Spain Mar. 29, 1744, which involved New England as usual in the conflict with the French of Canada and their allies, the Indians of both Canada and New England. In Colrain and Falltown several houses were stockaded and some forts erected. Roaming parties of Indians were frequently seen in the woods seeking for an opportunity to inflict damage or take captives.

Some time in 1746, it is thought, Capt. Scott took his family to Fort Massachusetts, located in the present town of Adams, for their better protection.

"In the month of Aug., 1746, M. Rigaud de Vaudreuil marched from Crown Point, with about eight hundred French and Indians, and invested Fort Massachusetts on the twentieth. The garrison at the time consisted of only twenty-two effective men under the command of Sargeant, afterward Lt. Col., John Hawkes; Capt. Williams, the former commander, having joined the forces then raised for an expedition against Canada. Notwithstanding the inferiority of his force the brave Sargeant rejected the proposals of the French commander, and resolved to defend the place to the last extremity. For twenty-eight hours, with small arms only and a small supply of ammunition, he resisted the efforts of the enemy and kept them at a respectful distance. Habituated to sharp shooting, the garrison singled out the assailants whenever they exposed themselves and brought them down at long shots. Instances occurred in which the enemy were thus killed at the extraordinary distance of sixty rods, and they often fell when they supposed themselves in perfect security. Having at length expended most of his ammunition, the brave commander reluctantly consented to submit, and a capitulation was agreed upon by which the garrison was to remain prisoners of war until exchanged or redeemed, to be humanely treated, and none to be delivered to the Indians. Vaudreuil however, the next day, in violation of the articles of capitulation, delivered one-half of the captives into the hands of the irritated Indians, by whom a sick man was immediately murdered; but the others were treated with humanity, carried to Crown Point, thence to Canada, and afterwards redeemed. Hawks lost but one man during the siege, but the enemy, according to information afterwards obtained, had forty-seven killed or badly wounded.”*

From a return made by Sergeant Hawkes we learn that Moses, Stephen and Joseph Scott were among the brave defenders of the fort. Moses Scott, with his wife and two young children and cousins, Stephen and Joseph, were taken to Canada with the other prisoners.

Referring to Rev. John Norton's Dairy as given in Perry's Williamstown, I extract the following:

“Friday, Aug. 22 (1746). They also (the French) carried Moses Scott's wife and two children, and another of Smead's children.”

“Monday, 15 (Sept). This day we sailed seven leagues and came to Quebec.”

“Dec. 11 (1746). Died Miriam, the wife of Moses Scott. She was taken with me at Fort Massachusetts; she got a cold in the journey, which proved fatal, her circumstances being peculiar. She was never well after our arrival at Canada, but wasted away to a skeleton and lost the use of her limbs.”

“Feb. 11 (1647). Died in the morning, Moses Scott, son of Moses Scott. He was a child about two years old, and died with the consumption.”

Capt. Scott returned Aug. 26, 1747, having been in captivity 53 weeks and 1 day. On his release from captivity he was unable to obtain the liberation of his son Ebenezer, who had been sold to an Indian; but some three years afterward he returned to Quebec to redeem his son. When he discovered him he had lost the knowledge of his mother tongue, and ran like deer from his father's presence into the woods. It required a nimble Indian to catch him and bring him back. At last his father succeeded in taking him home, but the boy was so thoroughly imbued with Indian ways that he was often found in the morning wrapped in his blanket lying on the floor, which he seemed to prefer to a civilized bed.

After his return to Falltown, Moses Scott married a second time ; but the records do not disclose her name ;* he was in Capt. Israel Williams' Co., stationed in Colrain Oct. 19, 1756 to Jan. 23, 1757 ; his name also appears in John Burke's enlistment roll ending Nov. 30, 1758 ; he is said to have been on several expeditions to Lake George and against Canada. "In 1760 Moses Scott and Samuel Connable were granted £27 to build a bridge across Fall River at the saw mill, which was the first bridge built in the town."†

When in 1762 Falltown was organized into a township and took the name of Bernardston, he was chosen one of the first selectmen and was re-elected several times thereafter ; he also held various other responsible town offices and was a man highly respected. He died in Bernardston, where his gravestone may still be seen in the old cemetery north of the village, with this inscription, "To the memory of Capt. Moses Scott, who died July 23, 1799, ae. 86."

"Some weeping friend may drop a tear
On these dry bones and say,
They once were strong as mine appear;
And mine must be as they."

It has thus far remained an unsolved problem when Moses Scott received his commission as captain. Just before sending copy to the printer the writer wrote to Hon. W. M. Olin, Secretary of State, to learn if the archives of Massachusetts throw any light upon the subject, the following being an extract from the reply : "There is little doubt that Moses Scott obtained his title of captain from having commanded the local militia company of the town of Bernardston, but unfortunately the confirmations of the appointments of the militia officers of the Province are not to be found in the State archives, although at times incidental references appear in the Legislative or the military records that supply proof of this fact, that the title evidently belonged to the individual."

So the matter will have to rest, unless perchance the finding of some dust-covered document shall reveal the secret.

*One authority however says her name was a Henry.

21. Corp. Ebenezer⁴ Scott, (Capt. Moses³, Josiah², William¹) b. Sept. 18, 1743. He was the first white male child b. in the town of Bernardston, Mass. He m. Mar. 12, 1772, Love Fairman, dau. of Benjamin, granddaughter of James, and great-granddaughter of John Fairman, one of the early settlers in Enfield, Conn., in 1684. She was b. in Enfield, Conn., Jan. 15, 1747-8. Her mother was Hannah McGregory, b. in Enfield, Conn., Aug. 12, 1719. She was the dau. of John and Hannah (Pease) McGregory. John McGregory was an early settler in Enfield; m. Aug. 12, 1712, Hannah Pease; she was b. Mar. 15, 1693, the dau. of Robert and Hannah (Warriner) Pease; Robert Pease was b. Mar. 25, 1667, the son of Robert and the grandson of the first Robert Pease of Salem, Mass., and the cousin of John and Robert Pease, the first worthy settlers of Enfield, Conn. His wife, Hannah, b. 1674, was the daughter of Joseph and Mary (Montague) Warriner, Joseph being the son of William and Joanna (Scott) Warriner, the pioneer settlers of Springfield. Mary, the wife of Joseph Warriner, was the daughter of Richard and Abigail (Downing) Montague of Boston. Richard Montague was born 1614 and was the son of Peter and Eleanor (Allen) Montague of Boneng, Parish of Burnham, Buckinghamshire, England. The Montagues were descendants from Drago de Montague, who came from Montague les Baes, France. He was in the battle of Hastings, under Robert, Earl of Morton, and for his services was rewarded by the bestowal of several manors in Somerset.

The Montague coat of arms was "argent, three fises, in fess gules, between three pellets, (or vergress)." Richard Montague came to New England about 1637 and married Abigail Downing. He finally settled in Hadley, Mass., where he d. 1687. The author of the Downing Genealogy says Abigail was the daughter of Rev. Dr. Downing of Norwich, Eng., who was descended from Sir Jeffrey Dowing, the founder of the house, who m. Elizabeth, the daughter of Thomas Wingfield, who was descended from William the Conqueror, who married Maud, daughter of Baldwin V, Count of Flanders.

Ebenezer Scott, d. in Vernon, Vt., Mar. 3, 1826; she d. there Mar. 23, 1826.

Ebenezer Scott was among the captives taken to Canada after the capitulation of Fort Massachusetts, Aug., 1746. His mother and brother Moses died in captivity, as has been related in connection with his father's life. After being in captivity at Quebec one year the father of Ebenezer was released, but for some reason the ransom of the son could not then be arranged, but three years later Capt. Scott returned to Canada and redeemed his son from an Indian chief to whom he had been sold. When discovered the son had lost all knowledge of his mother tongue and ran from his father like a deer into the woods. It required a nimble Indian to catch him and bring him back. At last the father succeeded in taking him home, but the boy was so thoroughly imbued with Indian ways that he was often found in the morning wrapped in his blanket lying on the floor, which he seemed to prefer to a civilized bed.

The author of the History of Bernardston, Mass., has gathered these facts from original sources regarding the service of Corp. Ebenezer Scott in the Revolutionary war :

"On the roll of Capt. Agrippa Wells' Co., dated April 20 to May 1, 1775, appears the name of Corp. Ebenezer Scott of Bernardston, out 10 days."

"Col. Whitcomb's regiment, Capt. A. Wells' Co., dismissed Sept. 23, 1775, contains from Bernardston the name of Ebenezer Scott. The pay roll of the men credited them with being out from May 1st, in all three months and eight days, and traveling 112 miles."

"In June 1780 it was decreed that nine men should be engaged in the war six months, and they should each receive forty shillings ($6.67) per month, or wheat, rye, Indian corn, wool, flax, neat cattle or sheep at silver money prices."

From Shelden's History of Deerfield, p. 709, "with Warren on Bunker Hill Aug. 1, 1775 — Roll of Capt. Agrippa Wells' Co., Ebenezer Scott of Bernardston."

From the foregoing it will be seen that Ebenezer Scott gave notable service to his country, and from another source it is learned that he was granted a pension by the government. After the war he settled in the present town of Vernon, Vt., as will be seen by the following copy of the original deed :

"Know all men by these presents, that I, Artemas Cushman of Bernardston, in the county of Hampshire, and Commonwealth of Mass., Clothier, in consideration of the just sum of one hundred pounds lawful money paid to me in hand, before the delivery hereof, by Eben'r Scott of Hinsdale in the county of Cumberland and state of Vermont, so-called, yeoman, the receipt whereof I do hereby acknowledge, have given, granted, bargained and sold, and do by these presents, give, grant, bargain, sell, aliene, and fully, freely, and absolutely convey and confirm unto him, the said Ebenr Scott, his heirs and assigns forever, one certain piece of land lying in Hinsdale, containing by estimation one hundred and twenty-two acres be the same more or less, lying in the divisions of commons in Northfield, commonly called the fourth Division. Reference to Record for boundry."

The above deed was executed Dec. 30, 1784, and signed by Artemus Cushman and witnessed by David Smead and Elisha Burnham. This farm was located around the Lily Pond in Vernon.

At first a log-house was erected for his family just west of the pond. This farm is still in the Scott family, descendants of the original Scott settler.

He was a soldier in the Revolution, was with Ethan Allen at the capture of Fort Ticonderoga, in the battles of Lexington and Trenton. He was a brave, intrepid man, and in his declining years loved to tell over the incidents of his soldier life. He drew a pension in his old age. He was a man of property and owned and lived on a farm in the west part of Bernardston, recently known as the Martin Devenport place. He was buried in the new cemetery in the village of Bernardston, but no headstone marks his resting place. His wife survived him and spent her last days with a daughter in Utica, N. Y., where she died at the age of 87. When she was past 80 years of age she rode in a sleigh with her son-in-law to the village of Little Falls. She was left a few moments in the sleigh while he went to transact some business in the mill near by; during his absence the horse became restless and backed off a precipice of great height. The son-in-law came out in great alarm to learn what had happened; he looked over the dizzy height and saw the demolished sleigh and the lifeless horse, and called out, "Granny, are you dead?" She feebly replied, "No, I am all right; but la sakes, where are my candles?" Sure enough, she was but slightly hurt, but her 'precious candles' were ruined. The local paper which published the incident called the feat, "Sam Patch outdone."

Longley's regiment of infantry militia stationed at Camp Commercial Point, Dorchester, going as a substitute for his brother Zorah. After the war, being then eighteen years old, he left home and went to Newport, N. Y., where he learned the carpenter's trade. About 1820 he came to Rutland, N. Y., and was engaged in building for some ten years. He purchased a farm near Black River, on which he lived until 1859. He then retired from active labor and moved to Watertown, purchasing a place on upper State street, where he continued to reside until his death. He took the premium offered by the agricultural society for the best kept farm on several occasions. The stone walls built by him upon his Rutland farm, five miles in length, are still standing. The Methodist church being the only one near him after he came to this county, he united with it and continued a faithful member through life. He was a trustee of the Methodist church at Black River, settled in 1845, and was assessor and commissioner of highways of the town of Rutland. In politics he was independent in early life, and was among the founders of the Republican party." *

59. Capt. Lemuel⁵ Scott, (Jonathan⁴, Jonathan³, Richard², William¹) b. in Bennington, Vt., Nov. 8, 1764; m. Apr. 25, 1784, Zurviah Branch, dau. of Rufus. He d. Apr. 4, 1821; she d. Dec. 27, 1843.

He inherited some land in Pownal, Vt., from his father's estate, which he sold Feb. 25, 1788 for £142; this same year he went alone to Fletcher, Vt., took up a tract of land, erected a log house and barn, cleared some land, burning the timber as he cut it, sowed some grain among the stumps, and after securing it in the fall returned to his family at Bennington. The following winter he conveyed his wife and child on a sled drawn by a pair of steers to Fletcher, a distance of 160 miles from Burlington, then containing but three log cabins; the course led through the forest a distance of 25 miles, with blazed trees for a guide. His wife had an inverted sugar tub for a seat, with a scanty list of articles with which to commence housekeeping in the new log house. The aforementioned sugar tub remained in the family for 75 years, and was annually filled with maple sugar. They arrived at their destination in safety and began life in earnest, and as Mr. Scott was the second settler in town the life of the family must have been a lonely one for several years. They had little furniture save what they could construct, and it is said their only table for some years was an inverted wash tub, on which was placed a plate containing the meat, from which each helped himself. Flax and wool were raised on the farm, from which was spun and woven the material to clothe the family. Mr. Scott was an industrious man, for besides carrying on his farm he soon added blacksmithing and shoemaking to his list of industries, which he conducted to his own advantage as well as for the convenience of others. His children were proud of the fact that they were the possessors of a new pair of shoes each winter. Mr. Scott prospered and soon had a farm of several hundred acres, and in 1809 he bought 250 acres of land in Fairfax for $2500. In 1801 he built the second framed house in Fletcher, which is still in a good state of preservation, and the old homestead remained in the family till recently. The town of Fletcher was organized Nov. 16, 1790, the first meetings being held in the log cabin of Mr. Scott; he was chosen moderator, and one of the first selectmen. In 1791 he was chosen town clerk, holding the office till 1809, also in 1809 and 1810, in all 18 years; he also represented the town ten years, which illustrates the fact that he was held in high esteem by his townsmen. He received June 3, 1813, the commission of captain of the 7th Co. in the 2d Regt. Vermont militia.

Children born in Fletcher, Vt., save the eldest:

60. Salene⁵ Scott, (Jonathan⁴, Jonathan³, Richard², William¹) b. in Bennington, Vt., Dec. 25, 1765; m. 1782, Rev. Samuel Holmes, son of Samuel. She d. Sept. 1855; he d. in Cambridge, Vt., in 1813, at the age of 51 years. He was one of the earliest settlers in Cambridge, Vt., where he settled about 1785 on a farm in the east part of the town still remaining in the Holmes family. In the spring of 1786 his wife went to join him, going by foot from West to East Cambridge, then a wilderness, finding her way by the aid of marked trees, carrying one child and leading the other, till she reached the new log home her husband had gone to prepare, which was located at the foot of Nursery Hill. Her husband became a Baptist minister and was often away from home. On one occasion during his absence the house caught fire from a defective chimney, but she succeeded in subduing the flames by water brought from a nearby spring. On another occasion in her husband's absence she went in search of the cows through a great body of woods and lost her way; she finally sank exhausted upon a fallen log, thinking she must spend the night there; but soon to her joy the house dog came bounding to her side and guided her home. These incidents show the hardships through which she passed in her early married life, but she lived to a good old age and had the happiness to be called blessed by her grandchildren.

(Mrs. Sibley) of Worcester, Mass.; Martin D. of Greendale, Mass.; Lucy W. (Mrs. Young) Greendale; Clara B. (Mrs. Pierce); Arimintar (Mrs. A. C. Smith) of Hyde Park, Mass.

61. Martin⁵ Scott, (Jonathan⁴, Jonathan³, Richard², William¹) b. in Bennington, Vt., Dec. 22, 1768; m. Feb. 6, 1794, Mary, dau. of Major Samuel and Beulah (Fay) Billings. Mary Billings' father Samuel was the son of Samuel, (1698) who was the son of Samuel, (1665) who was the son of Samuel, (1638) who was the son of Richard (1610) and Margery Billings, who were at Hartford, Ct., 1640.

Beulah Fay, who married Maj. Samuel Billings, was the daughter of Capt. Steven Fay, (landlord of Catamount Tavern) who was the son of Capt. John Fay of Westboro, Mass., who was the son of John Fay of Marlboro, Mass., who came to America from England, embarking at Gravesend on the 30th day of May, 1656 on board of the vessel Speedwell, Robert Locke, master, arriving at Boston on the 27th of June. He first settled at Sudbury, Mass., but removed to Marlboro previous to 1669, where he d. Dec. 5, 1690. Beulah Fay was sister of Dr. Jones Fay, (Sec'y of Council of Safety) of John Fay, who was killed at the battle of Bennington, and also of Col. Joseph Fay, who was commissioned to visit General Washington and confer with him in relation to matters concerning the state.

Martin Scott engaged in the coasting trade between New York and Charlestown, S. C., consisting largely in horses, marble, etc. On one of these trips in 1799 he was wrecked and picked up by a New London whaler; this vessel in turn was also wrecked, and he was rescued by a schooner bound for the southern coast of South America for the purpose of procuring furs. Here the company was dissolved, and he took passage with his portion of goods for Canton, China, where he remained for some time and adopted some of the customs of the country, at least so far as to wear the Chinese queue and dress. There he exchanged his goods for earthen ware, silks, teas, etc., and with them arrived in safety at his home in 1803; but he was so changed in appearance that at first he was not recognized by his family, who supposed him dead. Some of the curios which he brought from China are still in the possession of his grandsons, Olin and Franklin. He died in Charleston, S. C., in 1812.

Rufus Barney of Bennington, b. at Taunton, Mass., Oct. 20, 1781. He d. July 7, 1828, in Swanton, Vt.; she d. Nov. 6, 1866. Soon after marriage he removed from Bennington to Swanton, Vt., in March, 1800, and in company with his brother-in-law, Lemuel Barney, started a forge for the manufacture of iron. After a few years he closed out his interest in the iron business and gave his attention to farming, in which he proved successful and accumulated a handsome property. His townsmen appreciated his ability and entrusted him with various town offices. He was in the battle of Plattsburg in 1814, and was known as Capt. Scott. The first sermon preached in Swanton was at his house, because some of the ruder element had made it uncomfortable to hold the service at the schoolhouse where the appointment had been made.

71. Col. Martin⁵ Scott, (Phineas⁴, Samuel³, William², William¹) b. in Bennington, Vt., Jan. 17, 1788 ; m. 1840, Lavinia McCracken. He d. in Mexico Sept. 8, 1847 ; she d. about 1850, being lost on the steamer Arctic ; no issue. The following account of Col. Scott is taken from Heminway's Vermont :

"His youth was spent on his father's farm, during which he received only a common school education. He was fond of hunting from his boyhood, and in early life became an expert and noted marksman. He was always accustomed to aim at the head of game, and considered it disgraceful to make a wound in the body. He would drive a nail into a board part way with a hammer, and then taking the farthest distance at which his eye could distinctly see it, drive it home with his unerring bullet. His skill with his rifle was such that he was excluded from the common sport of turkey shooting, no owner of a turkey being willing to risk his shot for anything less than the value of the bird.

"In April, 1814 he was appointed second lieutenant in the army; became captain in 1828, and afterwards rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel, always sustaining the character of a brave and active officer. From about 1820 he was for 12 or 15 years stationed at Green Bay, Prairie du Chien, and other military posts on the Western frontier. Here he had great opportunity for indulging in his favorite amusement, and became famous in all that region for his extraordinary success in the pursuit of game.

"Like all hunters from Nimrod down, he was fond of relating his field adventures, which he often did to the great entertainment of his hearers. One of his stories must be related here, though it loses most of its interest in attempting to put it on paper: He said that many of the wild animals throughout the forest he frequented had become so well acquainted with his skill as a marksman that they would surrender on being introduced to him without requiring any waste of powder, and this was particularly the case with racoons. When he drew near one on a tree, he would hallo to it, "Coon, come down," to which the animal would say, "Who is it that's calling me?" His answer would be, "I am Martin Scott." "What?" the coon would enquire, "Captain Martin Scott of the Army?" "Yes," would be the answer. "Well, Captain Scott," says the conquered animal, "you needn't fire. I am a gone coon and may as well come down," and down he would come at once.

"Col. Scott lost his life in the Mexican war at the sanguinary battle of Moleno del Rey, and his remains were brought to Bennington and interred in the old Center burying ground beside those of his family relatives. A neat marble column has been placed over his grave with the following inscription, which is but a just tribute to his memory:

"Col. Martin Scott, born in Bennington, Jan. 17, 1788. Killed in Mexico, Sept. 8, 1847.

"Brevet Lt. Col. of the 5th Regt. of Infantry; was 33 years in the service of his country on the Western frontier, in Florida, in Mexico, at the battle of Palo Alto, Rescla de la Palma, Monterey, Vera Cruz, Cherubusco, and was killed at Moleno del Rey.

"He commanded his regt. in nearly all these engagements and received two brevets for gallant conduct. No braver or better officer fell in the Mexican War."

The following sketch of Mr. Scott is gleaned from the Pittsfield Saturday Blade:

"His early life was spent on a farm and his education was in the schools of his town and at the Amherst Academy. He taught school winters, beginning at the age of 18, and worked on the farm summers, according to the custom of that time. This he continued until 1849. He went to New Jersey and took charge of an academy there, which ranked about the same as our grammar schools. He was a natural teacher and his pupils loved him. Returning to Massachusetts, he was engaged for one season in managing the track-laying and bridge building of the Rutland and Washington R. R., and also worked on the Keene railroad in about the same capacity.

"Returning again to Springfield he had charge of the first evening school in that city and the first evening school for adults in Western Massachusetts. He also taught for some time in one of the grammar schools of that city with signal success. This was in the spring of 1851, and he remained there for three years, and in the evening school for four years. In 1854 Mr. Scott began an employment with the Thompson & Co. Express Company, and ran on the road as messenger between Keene, N. H., and Springfield until December, 1855.

"In December, 1855, Mr. Scott came to Pittsfield, and Berkshire thus gained a good citizen. He came as the agent of the Thompson & Co's. express, and continued in the position till the close of the office. He then acted as school superintendent for the committee for a time, and proved a most valuable man.

"On the first of January, 1872, he was appointed jailer, a year and a day after its location in this city. He was appointed by Sheriff Root, and held the office continuously till his resignation in the February prior to his death. His experiences and reminiscences in that duty would fill a volume. What scores of men has he turned the key upon. Some of the most desperate men in criminal annals have been in his care and custody. How many had he accompanied to and from the court house for trial, and his familiar form was always present, sitting in his place near the dock at the criminal terms. He had seen nearly every judge on the bench during his term of office, and he was well known to all the bar and most of the jurors. Few men in the county were better known than he.

"His townspeople and the whole people of Berkshire county fully relied on his integrity and fairness. An unswerving fidelity to duty and a clear conception of what was right, and performing it had endeared him to every one. He had executive ability in a high degree and nowhere was that called into play more than in the position, he held. He was methodical, accurate and honest. The affairs of the jail, with all its details, were as familiar to him as a book, and the sheriffs found in him a man on whom they could rely.

"One of the most genial of men, with a great fund of general information, he was a delightful companion and neighbor, when the cares of the day were over and he was enjoying the companionship of friends or at his own cosy fireside.

"Mr. Scott was for many years a member of the Masonic fraternity, joining the order in his early manhood. He was a member of Mystic lodge for years, and has held all the offices in its gift, being one of its long list of past masters. He was a member and past officer of Berkshire chapter, and of the Council of Royal and Select Masters. He was one of the chapter members of Berkshire commandery, Knights Templar. He had also attained the degree of the Ancient Scottish Rite Consistory, making him a 32d degree Mason. He was also one of the chapter members of Kassid Senate, K. A. E. O. In all these organizations he was an interested and helpful member."

94. Consider⁵ Scott, (Joseph⁴, Joseph³, Joseph², William¹) bapt. in Whately, Mass., in 1787, June 21; unm.; d. Nov. 1815. He was a manufacturer of tinware in Whately, where Thaddeus Hawley has recently lived. He went South to sell his goods and died in Virginia.

95. Charles⁵ Scott, (Joseph⁴, Joseph³, Joseph², William¹) bapt. June 26, 1791; m. Ruth Wells, dau. of Elisha of Hawley. He was a potter by trade; removed to Enfield, Mass., abt. 1835, where he kept a hotel many years, and died there. Had several children, but I have no dates.

96. Learned⁵ Scott, (Joseph⁴, Joseph³, Joseph², William¹) b. Apr. 6, 1794; m. Mar. 5, 1821, Fanny Dickenson, dau. of Elisha and Susanna Dickenson of Amherst, bapt. May 10, 1801. He d. Apr. 1, 1873, at the home of his son, Rufus L. Scott, at Brooklyn, N. Y.; remains were taken to Lanesboro and buried in the family lot; she d. Dec. 25, 1841.

Learned Scott shortly after his marriage removed to Lanesboro, Mass., where he established himself in the marble business. He acquired all the facilities necessary for carrying on the business from the quarrying to sawing, dressing, lettering, engraving, and placing the same in use. At that time Lanesboro had the most extensive marble works in the state. He was noted, like most of the early settlers in Hadley and Whately, for his earnest piety and sound moral principles, and to his early teachings his children attribute much of their success in life. The Brooklyn Daily Times of Apr. 4, 1873, says of him:—

“He was kind, cordial and frank in his manner, and was universally respected and beloved. He was a man of sincere piety, and when a resident of Lanesboro was ever to be found at the head of all religious enterprises of the place, always manifesting a deep interest in every movement that concerned the welfare of the rising generation. He could readily quote almost any passage in the scripture. He died calmly, and with the full assurance that death was but the beginning of life. The spectacle of his departure was as instructive as that of Addison, who called his relatives about him to see ‘how a Christian could die.’”

102. Eleazer Guernsey⁶ Scott, (Eleazer⁵, Ebenezer⁴, Capt. Moses³, Josiah², William¹) b. in Vernon, Vt., Aug. 12, 1815; m. Oct. 2, 1838, Sarah Adaline, dau. of Joel and Sarah (Johnson) Noyes of Verona, Vt., b. in Vernon, Sept. 20, 1823; he d. in Palmer, Mass., Jan. 22, 1890. Mrs. Scott resides (1906) in Palmer. Mrs. Scott is descended from Rev. William Noyes of Choulderton, Wiltshire, England, and his son, Rev. James, who settled in New England in 1834, as follows: Sarah A.⁹ Noyes, (Joel⁸, Asa⁷, Dea. Oliver⁶, Peter⁵, Joseph⁴, Dea. Joseph³, Rev. James², Rev. William¹). She is also descended by marriage from Peter Noyes and Walter Hynes, two of the first settlers of Sudbury, Mass. On the maternal side she is descended from William Johnson, who settled in Charlestown, Mass., 1635, as follows from her mother, Sarah⁷ Johnson, (Stephen⁶, Isaac⁵, Isaac⁴, William³, Jonathan², William¹.)

The children and descendants of this couple are eligible to membership in the Colonial Society from Capt. Moses Scott, who was prominent in the Indian wars, and in the Sons and Daughters of the Revolution from Lt. Dea. Oliver Noyes, Stephen Johnson and Ebenezer Scott, who each had valiant service in the Revolutionary War. Mr. Scott began life under adverse circumstances. When only eight years old his father died; his mother soon found it difficult to care for the large family left her, and Guernsey, being a hardy boy, went out to work for small wages in the busy part of the year, and in the winter season did chores to pay for his board while he went to school. Thus he paid his way till of age. At the age of 23 he married and settled on the farm near the noted lily pond in Vernon, where he lived some 20 years and where four children were added to his family. In 1864 he sold the old homestead and bought the Lyman farm in Vernon, which he retained till his death. By years of frugality and toil he amassed a handsome property. He began a religious life in 1840, and was connected with the M. E. church, in which he became a class leader. A few years later he became interested in the Christian Advent doctrine. He lived a sincere and devoted Christian life, beloved and respected by all who knew him. He was buried among his kindred in the old cemetery in Vernon, Vt.

Y., Mar. 3, 1901; she d. there Nov. 25, 1898. Mr. Howland removed with his parents from Gill, Mass., to Ontario Co., N. Y., about 1819, and in 1825 to Albion, where they ever after resided. Mr. Howland thus began life as one of the pioneers of Western New York. He chose the occupation of a farmer, in which he was successful, and was held in high regard by the community in which he spent his long and honored life as one whose Christian character was above reproach. Mrs. Howland was naturally endowed with a vigorous intellect, to which were added

"He had just attained his majority when he moved with his parents to Watertown, N. Y. His early education was supplied by the public schools of his native county, and he prepared for college at the Gouverneur Wesleyan Seminary. In 1860 he was graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Science from Genesee College, then located at Lima, N. Y., and which is now Syracuse University. After leaving college he studied law with Bagley & Wright, attorneys of Watertown, and in 1863 he was admitted to the bar. From that time until his death he was engaged in the active practice of his profession, except when his time was fully occupied with the duties of public office. He served as town clerk, justice of the peace, and as a member of the common council of Watertown, and in 1868 was appointed clerk of the surrogate's court. In the fall of that year he was elected special surrogate, and served in that capacity until 1877, when he was elected surrogate of Jefferson Co. He held this office for three terms of six years each, retiring from office in 1895. During these long years of public service he enjoyed as high regard as a man as he won as an official. He joined the Methodist church when a boy, and continued this relation through life, acting as a trustee of the State street church twelve years. He was one of the leaders of the Republican party in the county. He was connected with various financial interests in Watertown, and was for a long period of years a director of the National Union Bank, and secretary of the Jefferson County Savings Bank, which position he held at the time of his death. In 1864 he became a member of Neptune Hose and Steamer Co. No. 1 of the Watertown Fire Department, and was soon afterwards elected a director of the company. In 1865 he was made secretary of the department and held that office at the time of his death. He was historian of the department, and had probably seen a larger term of continuous service than any other fireman in the state. In 1895 he was elected as the first president of the Jefferson County Volunteer Fireman's Association and served three successive terms. He was trustee of Syracuse University and vice president of its alumni association in 1876-7. In 1873 this institution conferred upon him the degree of Master of Science. His affability and kindness made him popular among any body of men with whom he was thrown, and his management added materially to the progress of any movement with which he was connected."

"In his death the city of Watertown lost a sterling citizen and Jefferson county one of its best known public men."

118. Capt. Seth⁶ Scott, (Lemuel⁵, Jonathan⁴, Jonathan³, Richard², William¹) b. in Fletcher, Vt., Feb. 20, 1792; m. Oct. 18, 1826, Charlotte Rice, dau. of Reuben, b. July 21, 1804. He d. Aug. 4, 1868; she d. July 8, 1869. He came into possession of his father's homestead in Fletcher, where he continued to reside till his death. He held various offices in town, and in 1818 was appointed by Governor Galusha a lieutenant in the 7th company of infantry with the second regiment, which position he held till 1827, when he was appointed captain of the company, holding the position during the continuance of the then State militia. He entered the service in the war of 1812, and at one time he was ordered to take a team to Sackett's Harbor with troops. While on the way some portion of the harness gave away, causing him to stop in order to repair the damage; this caused the procession in his rear to stop, which so annoyed an under officer that he came up with drawn sword and threatened Scott with the loss of his head if he did not instantly move on. Scott, undaunted, placed his cocked pistol to the officer's breast, looking him straight in the eye without saying a word. The officer sheathed his sword and allowed Scott to take his time to make the necessary repairs without further interference. This was a sample of the stuff he was made of.

In his early days Mr. Scott often went to Montreal, a distance of 130 miles, to find a good market for pork in the fall and winter season. On one of his trips he purchased a two-wheeled dump cart. On his return home this strange vehicle proved an irresistible attraction to the urchins of St. Albans, who failed to heed the warning to keep out of it, so Mr. Scott arranged matters to teach them a lesson by removing the pin which held the body of the cart to the part attached to the rear of his other carriage, so that just as he was passing through quite a muddy portion of the street he withdrew the pin and the troublesome boys suddenly were left floundering in the mire, minus a disposition to meddle with the strange craft again.

Hon. Obed Edson.

Mrs. Sarah (Scott) Edson.

133. Sarah⁶ Scott, (Rufus⁵, Eleazer⁴, Reuben³, Richard², William¹) b. in Leverett, Mass., Oct. 6, 1799; m. at Pomfret, N. Y., Feb. 3, 1816, Obed Edson, b. at Ritchfield, Otsego Co., N. Y., Sept. 11, 1796. He d. at Villa Ridge, Ill., Sept. 9, 1877; she d. there May 9, 1877.

Hon. Obed Edson was a lineal descendant of Samuel Edson, who was born in England in 1612 and came to Salem, Mass., in 1638 or '39. Obed moved with his mother and stepfather, Major Sinclair, to Chautauqua county, N. Y., in 1810, where he was married; moved to Warren county, Pa., from there to Johnstown, Pa., where he resided until 1855, when he removed with his family to Northern Illinois, moving from there to Pulaski county, Ill., where he resided at the time of his death. He was quite prominent in civil, political and Masonic circles in the communities where he resided; was associate justice of Warren county, Pa.; member of the State Legislature; collector of the State improvements at Johnstown; assistant superintendent of the old Alleghany Portage railroad running over the mountains and connecting the east and west sections of the old Pennsylvania canal. He was associate justice of Pulaski county, Ill., which position he resigned a few weeks before his decease. He was for many years a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. His death was the result of a severe cold brought on by outdoor exposure to inclement weather while engaged in closing up his judicial business. The following is an excerpt from one of the many newspaper sketches published after his death:

"He was ever a firm, consistent observer of truth and justice, and always contributed liberally to charitable objects. For nearly sixty years he was a true and faithful member of the Masonic fraternity, and the large concourse of his Masonic brethren who paid the last sad rites to his memory gave evidence of the high esteem in which he had lived and died. To his family and friends he leaves a record more lasting than time, more enduring than marble, simply this: 'An honest man.' In his private life he was kind, considerate and hospitable, deeply feeling for the woes and afflictions of others. In all his private career he was ever found true to the trusts and responsibilities imposed upon him, and fearless in the execution of every duty. Age sat with decent grace upon him, and worthily became his silver locks. He bore the marks of a life well spent, of virtue, truth and honor fully tried, and of large and wide experience in all the relations he bore to his family, his kindred and his friends. Of a truth can it be said of his survivors, and well may we acclaim: 'Weep ye fir trees, for the cedar has fallen.'"

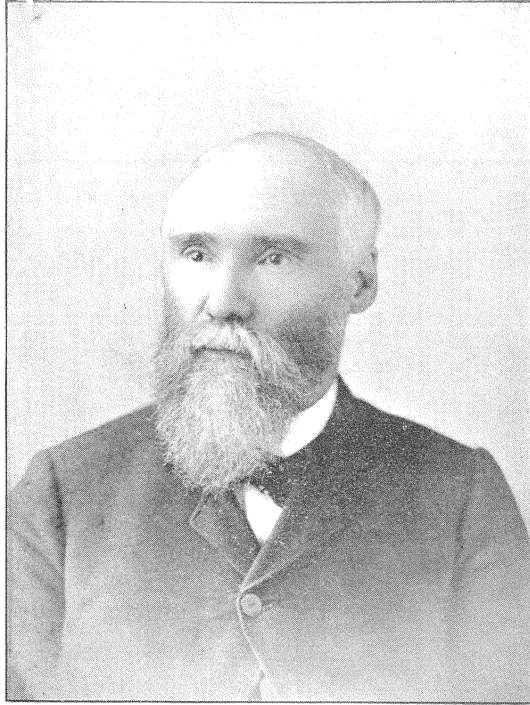

The following brief sketches of Mrs. Sarah Scott Edson are taken from newspaper articles published after her death at Villa Ridge, Ill. :

"The married life of the deceased extended over a period of sixty-one years, the pearl (sixtieth) wedding anniversary being celebrated a year ago last February. She removed from Massachusetts with her parents to Chautauqua county, N. Y., where she was married at an early age, she and her husband moving to Villa Ridge in 1864. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church for forty years. Her last sickness extended over a period of only eight days. Before passing away she expressed her faith that she was going to a home of eternal happiness with her Saviour, whom she had so long loved and served. Her life was one of usefulness and unselfish devotion to her family, of Christian fortitude and patience under affliction. Her children, her grandchildren and her great-grandchildren will ever cherish with deep affection the memory of the dear departed."

"Mrs. Edson was always a kind neighbor, in sympathy with the sorrowing, charitable to all, a devoted wife, a firm, consistent Christian, and a genuine model of female character and excellence. As a mother it would be impossible to overrate her merits; watchful, patient, impartial and affectionate, governing with a firm but gentle hand, studying only as a mother can the diverse dispositions of her children with such affectionate judgment as to avoid even a suspicion of wrong or error."

Mr. Edson moved to Johnstown, Pa., with his parents about 1848; attended select school there and academy in Indiana Co., Pa.; name entered for the study of law in the office of Judge Cyrus L. Pirshing at Johnstown, but a several months' seige of malaria caused him to abandon his profession. He afterwards entered the office of "The Alleghany Mountain Echo" as a temporary make-shift, but that work proved so very congenial and so well suited to his tastes and inclination that he has, except at two brief intervals, been continuously connected with newspaper and printing work in different capacities down to the present time; employed on Chicago daily papers for three years; edited and published papers in Illinois in Du Page Co., McHenry Co. at Bloomington, and in DeWitt Co., and Henry Co., returning to Chicago in 1867, when he engaged with Mr. A. N. Kellogg as the first editor employed by him in his newspaper auxiliary enterprise, then recently established; he continued with that house down to the end of the year 1904, over thirty-seven years, as editor-in-chief of the A. N. Kellogg Newspaper Co. Mr. Edson still resides in Chicago but is not at present engaged in active business, having earned a well-deserved vacation for rest. The compiler of this

Rufus Leonard Scott was born in Lanesboro, Mass., March 31, 1835. He attended the common school in boyhood and for a time worked at farming. Afterward he attended Lenox Academy, Mass., Charlottesville Seminary, Schoharie County, N. Y., and East Williston Seminary, Mass., a term or two in each school. Having acquired sufficient education to enable him to teach school, he followed that profession for a number of years in his native town, in New Jersey, New York and Illinois, studying law in the meantime.

He was admitted to the bar of New York in 1861, graduating at the law department of the University of the City of New York. Since that time he has been in the active practice of his profession.

From 1877 to 1879 he was Collector of Arrears of Taxes for the city of Brooklyn, now a part of the city of New York. During 1884 and 1885 he was alderman of said city, and member of the Board of Education from October, 1886 to May, 1889, when he resigned to travel in Europe. During 1902 and 1903 he was Commissioner of Taxes and Assessments for the City of New York.

He has always taken a deep interest in public affairs, and has always been active in promoting public improvements in his adopted city and state.

- II. Clara Louise, b. Oct. 4, 1869; d. May 8, 1903. The following appreciative obituary of Miss Scott appeared in the Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

"Miss Clara Louise Scott will be remembered with lasting interest, not only by her immediate relatives and friends, but by a wide circle of those who knew her as an enthusiastic student and educator. She was at the time of her death a successful teacher in Public School No. 11, Borough of Brooklyn. Although not compelled by necessity to earn an income, she determined to devote her life to the work of education and charity.

"In pursuit of her aims she sought to gain the fullest possible equipment, and to that end, after leaving public school, graduated from the Packer Collegiate Institute in the class of 1889, and the Training School for Teachers, afterwards taking a course in medicine and graduating in 1897 as a physician from the New York Medical College and Hospital for Women. Her practice as a physician was limited mostly to those who needed her services and yet were not able to give her other compensation than gratitude. She spent two years in travel and study abroad, became proficient in the French and German languages and gave a considerable period to Red Cross work in the hospitals of Zurich, Switzerland.

"During the last two years and up to the time of her death she was a teacher in the public school above named; but while so engaged she ardently pursued studies in Adelphi College, as well as in Harvard and Columbia summer schools. The strength of her character and the consecration of her life to her chosen occupation were set forth by Dr. A. Stewart Walsh, who knew the deceased from her childhood, in his memorial address at the time of her funeral. He spoke in part as follows:

"Clara Louise Scott was a rare young woman and one whose life will long be an inspiration to all those who came within the scope of her influence. With every inducement and opportunity to enter upon a life of ease or social pleasures, she elected to divert her course from such lines that she might attain the joy of highest culture and the delights of philanthropic works. She believed the teacher's to be the grandest of professions, and in seeking a field where she might practice that profession turned toward that direction in which she might impress the largest number of receptive minds. She counted probable results and little regarded the burdens of the labors involved.

"Long before she was compelled to lay down her chosen occupation those who knew her best feared that her constitution, in the beginning robust, was giving way under the stress of her ambition. She led her class up to within an hour of her taking to her final sick chamber. She was a martyr to her zeal. Her motive was to make every occupation a duty of conscience. Those who hold that every work worth doing is worth doing well will remember this young woman as a fine exemplar of the dictum. She well illustrated also how much a devoted life may accomplish in a brief period.

"It is natural to say that her life, all told, counting only thirty-three human years, was regretably short; but this is because we so easily forget that the thing we call death ends nothing. It may change a field but not a destiny, a form but not a character. God's time is made up of substantial eternities. Clocks are pathetic human inventions by which in childish miserliness mortals try to dole out the world's little arc of eternity, which we but vaguely comprehend. We forget so easily that

We live in deeds, not years; thoughts not breaths;
In feelings, not in figures on the dial.
We should count time by heart throbs; he most lives
Who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best."

- III. Rufus Leonard Jr., b. July 26, 1872. He prepared for college at Polytechnic Institute, Brooklyn, and graduated at Amherst College, the youngest of his class, in 1892, and afterward at the New York law school, since which time he has been in

"Col. Scott is proprietor of the Bennington Machine Works, and is a practical mechanic and engineer of long and varied practice, in which he has been very successful. The old Bennington iron foundry was the first one in Vermont, having been started in 1810, and in the days when stoves were first made it was a leading concern in that business. Col. Scott became interested in these works in 1858, and in 1863 purchased the patterns, machinery, tools and good-will of the concern, and in 1865 he bought in like manner the plant of the old and well-established Eagle Iron Foundry and machine shop, and at the same time erected the extensive buildings now occupied by the Bennington Machine Works, and placed in them the machinery of both old establishments with new additional machinery. The leading line of work made here is gunpowder machinery, in some branches of which the proprietor has no rival. A large part of the gunpowder machinery used in the U. S. during the Civil War, and since, was made at these works and mill. From this establishment are now used in the leading gunpowder mills in Europe, South America, Mexico and the West Indies. At these works are also made pulp machinery in all its branches, quarrying and sawing appropriate of marble and other machinery."

Col. Scott is also sole manufacturer of the N. E. Wood Pulp Grinder. Besides managing his own extensive business, Col. Scott takes a deep interest in public affairs. He is president of the Battle Monument and Historical Association, and vice president of the Bennington Board of Trade.

He removed from Cambridge to Wolcott, Vt., in the winter of 1862, where he was attending school when the war broke out. On Aug. 15, 1864, he with other schoolmates enlisted in the 1st Vermont Cavalry, Co. E. His company joined the regiment at Bridgewater in the Shenandoah Valley, and in four weeks Gen. Sherman commenced his retreat down the valley, burning the barns and mills in his rear. The retreat began very early in the morning, and at one o'clock p. m. the rising dust five miles away betokened the coming of the enemy, while the lorn men were stationed near Torri's Creek. The horses were given in charge of one-fourth of the men and sent off, while the remainder awaited the onset of the foe behind a rail fence. The Confederates came on yelling, "You — sons of —, you burn our barns and mills, we'll give you —." The Union men stood their ground till it was found that a part of Early's men were getting in the rear, when a dash was made to get out of the trap and it was accomplished with some loss; among the others was young Harvey B. Butts, a comrade very dear to Mr. Scott, who was never heard from after the engagement. Mr. Scott received a gunshot wound through the left wrist in an engagement at Columbia Furnace, Oct. 7, 1864, and was discharged from the service on a surgeon's certificate for disability July 29, 1865. He returned to Wolcott, Vt., and devoted himself to farming till December, 1889, when he was appointed deputy collector and inspector of customs; serving four years he resigned in 1893, but in 1895 he accepted another appointment in the same service at Beecher's Falls, Vt.; where he was in service in 1906 when these facts were received.

THE CANADIAN BRANCH OF SCOTTS.

DESCENDANTS OF DANIEL⁴ SCOTT, (JONATHAN³, RICHARD², WILLIAM¹).

Daniel Scott, b. in Sunderland, Mass., Dec. 3, 1744; m. Lois Herd. He d. Dec. 26, 1829; she d. Sept. 14, 1824.

The very valuable and interesting data connected with the Canadian branch of Scotts was collected by William M. Scott of Cambridge, Vt., who visited Canada several times for the purpose, and but for his lamented death in April, 1905, would doubtless have added much more to what is here given. The material came too late to appear in the proper place in the body of the work, so has been placed in the appendix.

Daniel Scott removed from his native town to Bennington, Vt., where he was a member of the military company formed in 1764, and had previous experience in Indian warfare. During the conflict of the colonies with the mother country he proved loyal to the King, and found it convenient with many others to migrate to Canada about 1780, first stopping at Sorrell, then moving on to Cadwell's Manor, where he remained till about 1800, when he made his final settlement near Swartsburg in Brome Co., with his sons near him, where they spent their days in well-earned prosperity. This locality has since been known as the Scott Neighborhood, and in the vicinity is located the Scott cemetery, where many of the name have their last resting-place. Mr. Scott was a member of the Episcopal church, was a very exemplary and conscientious man and enjoyed the confidence of the community. His descendants are numerous and are scattered through the southern tier of towns in the Province of Quebec, and have proved a thrifty and respected people.

Jonathan Scott.

Appendix B—See page 28.

DESCENDANTS OF ELI SCOTT OF VERMONT AND NEW YORK, A BRANCH OF THE SCOTT FAMILY NOT FULLY IDENTIFIED.

Eli Scott and posterity are given a place in the appendix because their connection with the line of William Scott of Hatfield has not yet been fully clear, and because there exist so many reasons for believing in their connection with that line.

Eli Scott married Experience Bruce, whose mother was a Randall, and was known to have claimed direct descent from Robert Bruce of Scotland, but the birthplace of Eli Scott and wife, date of birth and marriage are not known to the writer, neither has their parentage been fully ascertained. Thus far the earliest mention discovered of Eli Scott is as a soldier of the Revolution on the rolls of Vermont, in the company of Captain Isaiah Fiske, with whom he served during two enlistments of six months each, which included the entire year of 1781. As there were two comrades in the same company of the name of Randall and one of Bruce, it seems quite probable that they were near relatives of Eli's wife.

A tradition has long existed among the descendants of Eli Scott of a close relationship to the Scotts of Bennington, Vt., who removed from Sunderland, Mass., and it has been thought that Eli was a son of Oliver⁴ Scott, Samuel³, William², William¹ of Hatfield, Mass. This Oliver Scott was born in Sunderland, Mass., Feb. 27, 1739; removed to Bennington, Vt., where he joined the military company in 1764, and in 1767 was one of the first settlers in Rupert, Vt., where he built the first gristmill in that town; a few years later he settled in Kent Hollow, some two miles from West Rupert. As the records of Rupert prior to 1800 were lost, the further account of Oliver Scott or of his family has been difficult to trace. The older people of the town recall the name of Scott in Kent Hollow, probably descendants of Oliver. Among them was a David Scott, who died many years ago, an oft recurring name among William Scott's descendants. There was also William Scott, who removed to Lockport, N. Y., where he died in 1841, aged 59 years, making him born in 1782, quite probably a son of Oliver.

If our Eli was the son of Oliver Scott, it may be supposed with good reason that he received the name in honor of his father's cousin, Eli Scott, who was killed in a fight with Indians at Charlestown, N. H., June 26, 1748.

Another strong reason for believing that Eli Scott was closely related to the Bennington Scotts is the fact that all or nearly all the Scotts of Vermont who served in the war of the Revolution were descended from the Scotts of Sunderland, Mass. Again, it is worthy of note that David, the oldest son of Eli Scott, while in his numerous business trips between Western New York and Boston, often visited his Scott relatives in Western Massachusetts. It is also related that this David Scott once owned a large tract of timber land in Bennington, Wyoming Co., N. Y., which he is thought to have named in honor of the Vermont town long the residence of his relatives.

In a recent correspondence with parties in Rupert, Vt., and vicinity, it was ascertained that no known descendants of Oliver Scott had lived there for many years, but it was found that many of the descendants of the early families of Rupert had removed to various sections of New York, notably to the vicinity of the final settlement of Eli Scott, following the custom of pioneer settlers to continue their neighborly relations in their migrations. It was also found that a Bruce family of direct descent from Robert Bruce of Scotland had an early settlement there, as well as Randall families, with whom our Eli Scott was allied by marriage. All these side incidents have their value in our final estimate of the probable relationship of Eli Scott to Oliver Scott of Rupert, Vermont.

Eli Scott was a farmer after the Revolutionary war, and he resided at various places: At Albany, N. Y., about 1793; later at Skaneateles and Alexander; and about 1810 he made his final settlement on the Chestnut Hill Ridge Road near Middleport, N. Y., where he died about 1835. His widow resided with her son, Capt. David Scott, till her death in 1842 at the age of 79.

Children of Eli and Experience (Bruce) Scott:

2. I. Lucy, b. perhaps at Albany, N. Y., about 1793.
3. II. David, b. at Albany, N. Y., Mar. 11, 1795.
4. III. Phebe, b. Sept. 29, —.
- IV. Jason. He removed to Lafayette, Ind., where he d. unm., leaving his estate to his brother, Leonard, who lived with him.
- V. Miranda. She m. William Dunn, and they resided on the Chestnut Hill Ridge Road, near Middleport, N. Y. No record of children.
- VI. Minerva; m. John Waters, who removed to Fort Wayne, Ind. Had several children, but subsequent history is unknown.
- VII. Leonard, m. Jeannie Hanks of the Chestnut Ridge Road, and with his brother Jason removed to Lafayette, Ind., where he had five daughters who m. and had families.

2. Lucy² Scott, (Eli¹) b. perhaps in Albany, N. Y., about 1793; m. William Gardner of Newark, N. J. They both lived beyond the age of 80 years. Their daughter, Abby Gardner Earl, who gave the family record, says: "He walked through the wilderness by forest roads from Newark, N. J., to Alexander, N. Y., and married Lucy Scott." It is probable that at the time, 1810, Eli Scott lived at Alexander, three miles from Attica.

Children:

- I. David Gardner, b. abt. 1812; d. 1884; unm.
- II. Mary Gardner, b. 1814; m. William Brown of Newark, N. J., where they lived and died, leaving children there.
- III. Abby Gardner, b. abt. 1816; m. William Earl of Newark, N. J. They lived on the ancient farm of the Earl family and had three sons, two of whom d. unm. — David and Fred — and one is living yet in Iowa (1906); is married and has three children.
- IV. William Gardner, lived at Middleport, N. Y.; m. and had children there, who are probably still alive.
- V. John Gardner, married and had children, and was living in Shelburne, Mass., in 1896.

Capt. David Scott.

3. Capt. David² Scott, (Eli¹) b. at Albany, N. Y., Mar. 11, 1795, m. Feb. 5, 1822, Maria Stainton, b. in Woodstock, Vt., Aug. 2, 1804; d. in Attica, N. Y., Jan. 20, 1891. He d. in Attica, N. Y., June 5, 1864.

He came to Western New York, perhaps prior to 1812, with his parents. He served in the militia in 1814 in the Plattsburg campaign. In 1825 he was given a captain's commission by Gov. DeWitt Clinton, and was ever after known as Captain Scott, and served in Maj.-Gen. Stanton's division. He was a prominent merchant in Attica from 1820 to 1850, when he removed to Waupaca, Wis., remaining there until 1861, when in ill health he returned to Attica and lived the three remaining years of his life with his daughter, Mrs. Bigelow, and Mrs. Dike of Brooklyn. He was several times a member of the Legislature of New York, and was much employed in public affairs on account of his eloquence as a speaker and lecturer.

He was a life-long member of the Masonic order, and prominent during the Anti-Masonic movement in upholding the integrity of his brethren. In early life both he and his wife were Methodists, but later joined the Episcopal church and died fervent members of that body. In early life he was much engaged in lumber mills and making potash, for which he bought extensive forest tracts in the town of Bennington, N. Y., where he had a property known as Scottville, now known as Folsomdale, formerly the child home of the wife of President Cleveland. The Folsoms, who were of kin to him, bought this property of Mr. Scott. The old house built there by Folsom and Scott is still standing. Capt. Scott built the two earliest railroads in Western New York, now a part of the N. Y. Central from Batavia to Rochester and Batavia to Attica, and a part of the Erie railroad from Attica to Buffalo, 34 miles. There is a street named for him near the railroad station in Buffalo.

In 1850 he removed to Waupaca, Wis., then a wild region inhabited by Indians. Here as in Attica his ability was recognized and he became an important factor in developing the country. He was elected as its first member to the Legislature, and received the appointment of postmaster, which he held till 1861. The town which he aided to develop has become one of the most flourishing towns in the State.

Capt. Scott was a man of great energy and activity, as well as of property, and left an honored memory both in the East and West, where his busy life was spent.

Maria Stanton, the wife of Capt. Scott, was the daughter of Maj.-Gen. Phineas³ Stanton, b. at Stonington, Conn., 1780, and Polly Thomas, dau. of Elias Thomas, who was descended through his mother, Mary Alden, from the Aldens of the Mayflower, and his wife, Sylvia Thompson, from Thomas Cooke of the Mayflower. As Phineas Stanton was as certainly from John Howland of the Mayflower, so Maria Stanton had three lines of that early settlement in her veins, besides the many intervening ones. Her father, Maj.-Gen. Stanton, was in eleven battles on the Canadian frontier war of 1812-15, and was chief of Gen. Peter B. Porter's staff.

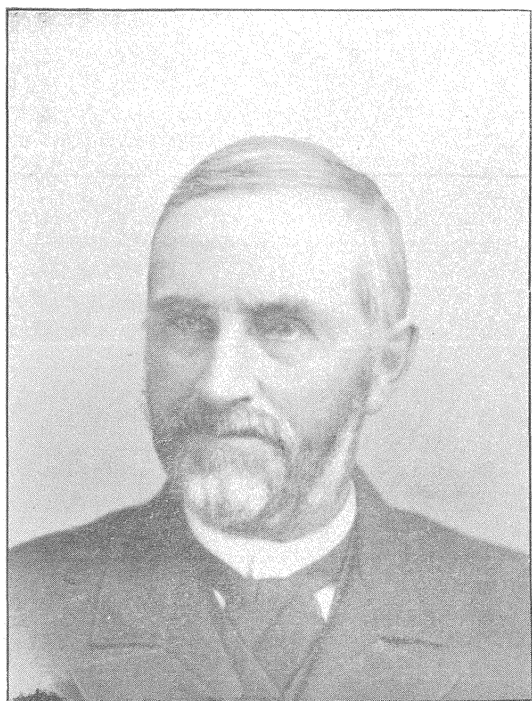

Children of David and Maria Scott:

5. I. Winfield, b. in Attica, N. Y., Mar. 29, 1823.
 6. II. Walter, b. in Attica, N. Y., Feb. 7, 1825.
 7. III. Ellen Maria, b. in Attica, Jan. 31, 1827.
 8. IV. John David, b. in Attica, Aug. 3, 1834.
 9. V. Jeannie Deans, b. in Rochester, N. Y., July 11, 1837.
 10. VI. Thomas, b. in Attica, Jan. 1, 1843.
- VII and VIII. Two children d. in infancy.

4. Phœbe² Scott, (Eli¹) b. Sept. 29, —; m. Dudley Root. They resided on a large farm some three miles from Brockport, N. Y., where they had two children: Pembroke Root, who d. suddenly when a student, unm., and Lucy Scott Root, who m. Eastman Colby of Rochester, N. Y., who was a lumber merchant with Davis & Earle for a time, and later returned to Brockport, where after her husband's death Phœbe Root resided with them. Eastman Colby and wife died childless, leaving a large estate to a niece of Mr. Colby. So the family of Phœbe Scott Root is extinct. She lived to a great age at Brockport.

5. Judge Winfield³ Scott, (Capt. David², Eli¹) b. in Attica, N. Y., March 29, 1823; m. there Oct. 21, 1845, Sarah Cameron, b. in Augusta, Canada West, Sept. 3, 1827; he d. at Waupaca, Wis., Jan. 12, 1906.

Judge Scott removed to Wisconsin about 1850 and soon settled in Waupaca in that state, where he remained until his death. He was a lawyer of note, and for many years filled the position of judge with honor and distinction, and in his death left an unsullied name as a rich legacy to his family, and to all who knew him. Mrs. Scott was the daughter of James and Mary (McScan) Cameron. James Cameron was b. 1792 at Lochaber, Scotland; d. at Waupaca, Wis., 1862. Mary McScan was b. at Mull, Argyleshire, Scotland, Aug. 2, 1792; d. at Attica, N. Y., 1850. They came to Canada soon after marriage, and later to Attica, N. Y.

Children of Winfield and Sarah Scott:

- I. Arda Cameron, b. in Attica, N. Y., Aug. 10, 1846; d. Nov. 27, 1850.
- II. Walter, b. at Appleton, Wis., Mar. 5, 1851; unm.; resides in Waupaca, Wis.
- III. Frederick Packard, b. in Appleton, Wis., Mar. 31, 1853; d. June 3, 1856.
- IV. Anna Beatrice, b. in Appleton, Wis., June 7, 1855; unm.; resides in Waupaca, Wis.
- V. Ada Winfield, b. in Waupaca, Wis., May 19, 1858; d. there Feb. 21, 1868.
- VI. Jeannie Dike, b. in Waupaca, Wis., Aug. 5, 1861; m. Attica, N. Y., Oct. 4, 1888, Dr. Bradley Gaither of Baltimore, Md., where she now resides. No children. Dr. Bradley Gaither then a student of medicine, met her in Berlin, Germany, where she, in company with her uncle, Camden C. Dike, and family, were passing the winter. Dr. Gaither's family was one of the most important elements in the early history of Maryland, and the men of that family joined in all the wars; his father served as major of artillery in the Confederate Army of the Civil war, and later as Colonel of the 5th Maryland regiment, as he was still later of the veterans of that corps; his son, George Gaither, became colonel of the 5th Maryland, the corps of the elite of the state.
- VII. David, b. in Waupaca, Wis., Nov. 7, 1864; d. Nov. 7, 1873.
- VIII. Merritt Bigelow, b. in Waupaca, Wis., Jan. 14, 1867; m. Oct. 16, 1895, Pauline Allen. No children. Resides at Waupaca, where he continues the law business of his father, with whom he was a partner.
- IX. Nellie M., b. in Waupaca, Wis., July 2, 1869; unm.; Resides in Waupaca.

6. Walter³ Scott, (Capt. David², Eli¹) b. in Attica, N. Y., Feb. 7, 1825; unm.; d. in Warrenton, Va., 1850. He was in Warrenton as a student in the office of Judge Scott, where he was kindly cared for in his last illness. He had gone to Virginia with the purpose of buying for his father the Sudley Springs House, which figured in both battles of Bull Run, but his father, foreseeing the coming conflict, dissuaded him, and saved the family from being participants in the horrors of those two battles.

7. Ellen Maria³ Scott, (Capt. David², Eli¹) b. in Attica, N. Y., Jan. 31, 1827; m. abt. 1847, Merritt C. Bigelow; he d. 1869. She survived her husband and d. at the home of her son in New York. He was a successful wool merchant up to the time of his death.

Children:

- I. Arthur Camden Bigelow, b. abt. 1861; m. abt. 1878, Nettie Starker of Albion, N. Y. Have two sons. He has been engaged in the wool business all his life, first on his own account, but is now the agent of Swift Co., having charge of their wool department in Philadelphia.
- II. Walter Scott Bigelow, b. abt. 1865. He is a graduate of Rochester University, and was for several years connected with the N. Y. Tribune and other papers. He is now engaged in the export trade with the Orient. Resides in New York city.

8. Col. John David³ Scott, (Capt. David², Eli¹) b. in Attica, N. Y., Aug. 3, 1834, unm.; d. in New Orleans, La., Nov. 19, 1890. Some years previous to the Civil War he had gone to New Orleans, where he fell a victim to yellow fever, was saved by tender care and nursing and came to love the people there, so it was quite natural that when the war broke out he sided with the South and fought for their cause. In time he was promoted to be a colonel, was in charge of the heavy artillery and won distinguished honors. He was an ideal soldier, and on horseback was the embodiment of grace and dignity. He was chief of staff to Maj.-Gen. McGlynn, and had been an officer in the regular heavy artillery, a regiment raised at the outbreak of the war, and later was an officer of the Louisiana Field Artillery, an organization still existing. His long and gallant service had endeared him to the people of his adopted state, so that on his death unusual military, civil and Masonic honors were paid to his memory by state, military and civic officials, showing in some degree the high estimation in which he was held.

Col. John David Scott.

9. Jeannie Deans³ Scott (Capt. David², Eli¹) b. in Rochester, N. Y., July 11, 1837. She was named in honor of Sir Walter Scott's heroine of the "Heart of Midlothian." m. Feb. 5, 1857, Camden Crosby Dike of Brooklyn, N. Y.; he d. Oct. 5, 1894. She resides in Brooklyn. He was b. in Providence, R. I., 1832, son of Alvin Valentine and Phebe (Prince) Dike. She was a daughter of James Prince of a Plymouth family, and descended from William Brewster, John Howland, etc. He was for many years a member of the firm of Dike Brothers, wool merchants of New York city. He retired in 1887 and for three years traveled in Europe with his family, returning to Brooklyn, where he resided till his death. Mrs. Dike is very prominent in women's clubs and is frequently requested to speak or preside in meetings. She is prominent in all the social movements of the Borough of Brooklyn, and has just aided in establishing the Master School of Music, to teach only principals of higher worth, of which she is president. She has been a member of the Ancient Church of the Pilgrims since 1857, of which her husband was also a member.

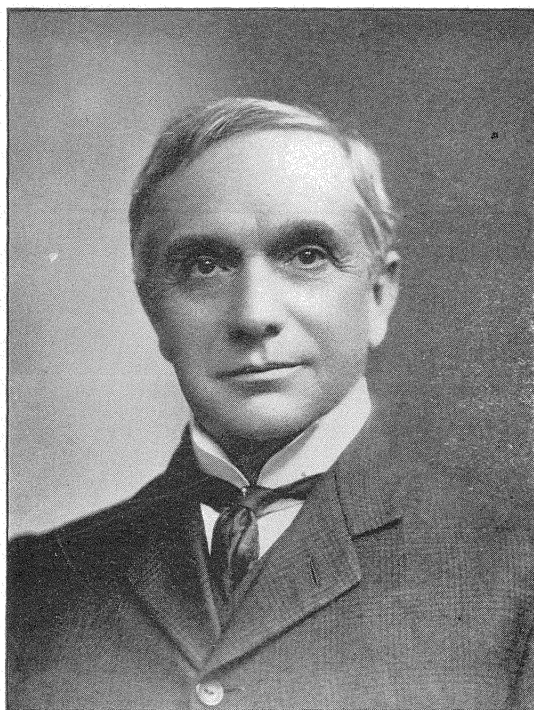

Children:

- I. Col. Norman Stanton Dike, b. 1861; unm.; resides in New York city. He graduated from Brown University, which his ancestors helped to found, also from Columbia Law School in 1887. He is a lawyer, is a member of many clubs and very popular. He was Colonel on Gov. Morton's staff of New York state; sheriff of King's Co., Brooklyn, N. Y. He was a prominent candidate for the nomination for Lieut. Gov. of New York, but was set aside for Gov. Higgins first and Lieut. Gov. Bruce second.
- II. Ada Miriam Dike, b. 1865; m. Murray Boocock. Reside in Keswick, Va. Their home is called Castalia. It is the ancient plantation of Capt. Merriweather Lewis of the Lewis and Clark expedition to the Pacific coast. Mr. Boocock enjoys the distinction of having the choicest herds of Hereford cattle in his section, for which he has received premiums at the exhibitions. They have two sons, Lawson and Carroll Boocock.
- III. Jessie Scott Dike, b. 1867; m. Dr. George T. G. Williams, her fifth cousin from Robert Williams of Roxbury, Mass., through his son Isaac Williams of Newton, from whom both are descendants. They reside in Hartford, Conn., where he is secretary of the Capewith Horse Nail Co. They have one child, Stanton Williams, b. 1906, who can claim through his father a descent from the Plantagenet Kings of England, as a descendant of Lady Parsons, wife of Col. John Humphrey, the early settler of Lynn. She was a daughter of the third earl of Lincoln, and both her father and mother had Plantagenet blood, as may be seen in the Williams-Walsworth genealogy.

10. Thomas³ Scott, (Capt. David², Eli¹) b. in Attica, N. Y., Jan. 31, 1843; unm.; resides in New York city. On attaining his majority Mr. Scott became a wool merchant in New York city under the firm name of Dike Brothers until 1887, and later under the name of Thomas Scott & Company until 1891, when he retired from business and after that passed several years in travel in European countries. In business years he had much trade with foreign countries as an exporter, which enabled him to aid the tariff commissioners in 1890 at the hearings on the McKinley tariff, and of the Dingley 1891 tariff. He was a constant correspondent of Hon. William Lawrence, president of the National Wool Growers' Association, and was able to aid him in securing the present "Wool and Woolen" schedule of the tariff which has brought prosperity to the wool and woolen industry of the United States. Although Mr. Lawrence is dead, yet the June (1905) number of the Woolen Manufacturers' Bulletin gave him the honor of winning in the controversy and acknowledged he was right.

Again, when the eleven reciprocity treaties of the Dingley tariff were negotiated unwisely by the Department of State, particularly the wool treaty with Argentina, Dec., 1899, Thomas Scott in a series of letters exposed the dishonesty and deceit of the American minister at Buenos Ayres, Argentina, which not only defeated treaty with Argentina on wool, but carried the other ten treaties with foreign countries into the pigeon holes of the Senate, where they died a natural death by limitation. So Mr. Scott may justly feel proud of two performances, viz: Defeating the dishonest methods of the Treasury Department in wool and woolen schedules from 1868 to 1890, which had cost the country at least one hundred and forty millions of dollars. This has been replaced by an honest and strict accounting in tariff lines, producing at least $15,000,000 a year more in duty on wool and woolens alone than was formerly collected under loose treasury methods, which made officials of that department superior to the law of 1868 up to 1890, which law, again attempted in the Dingley law of 1897, is now in force.

Wool growing and wool manufacturing is now profitable and not attended with the constant bankruptcies which occurred prior to 1897. So in the tariff of 1890 and 1897 and in the defeat of the Reciprocity treaty of the Dingley law, Mr. Scott can justly claim much credit, of which Hon. Wilbur F. Wakeman, secretary of the Protection Tariff, has given, to whose journal, the American Economist, Mr. Scott has been many years a contributor without reward, save only that the people of the United States have now an honest wool and woolen tariff, honestly administered.

From 1875 to 1891 Mr. Scott was an editorial writer in the old United States Economist, the most prominent wool and woolen journal of the time. He constantly exposed the scandals, but it was not until Hon. William Lawrence took up the case as president of the National Wool Growers' Association, with the wool states of the West and their senators and representatives in Congress with him; then came the hearings which showed the questionable methods, which may be read in the two great volumes called the "Hearings before the Committee of Ways and Means, 1889-90," or the "McKinley Law and 1897 Dingley Law." As for the reciprocity treaties, they are dead, and doubtless Mr. Scott's wool letters on Argentina, in the Economist, finished them with most men.

For the past eight years Mr. Scott has been engaged in the attempt to defeat the vast schemes of outlays in the city of New York for a new water supply, for he contends that the city already has a greater supply than any other city in the world.

The compiler of this volume is indebted to Mr. Thomas Scott for most of the data connected with the descendants of Eli Scott, and takes this occasion to say that if any one into whose hands the foregoing account may fall, can furnish any clue to the parentage of Eli Scott, it will be most thankfully received.

Appendix C.

CAPTAIN WAITSTILL SCOTT.

The descendants of Eli Scott have long held the tradition that their ancestor was closely allied to Captain Waitstill Scott without fully establishing the connection; so in order to aid in the solution of the problem the following account is inserted. All efforts to ascertain the Captain's parentage have thus far proved unavailing, and it has been thought that the record of his birth was never placed upon the public records, as was often the case in those days. It is highly probable however, that he was descended from William Scott of Hatfield.

Captain Waitstill Scott was of Westmoreland, N. H., in the time of the Revolution, and commanded the company that marched from that town on occasion of the alarm at Ticonderoga in May, 1777. He probably came from Chesterfield with his son Lyman between 1815 and 1819, and lived at the Factory Village. His wife was Lydia, who d. Jan. 22, 1826, in her 80th year. He died Mar. 6, 1824, ae. 82,* (hence b. 1742). His descendants continue in the vicinity of his old home and in Brattleboro, Vt. The following account does not aim to be complete, but enough is given to place the family on record.

Children:

- I. Eunice, b. 1762.
- II. Woodruff (Probably) b. 1768; m. Hannah, who. d. Oct. 15, 1842, ae. 72. He d. Feb. 16, 1846, ae. 78. He settled in Acton, now a part of Townshend, Vt., in 1795, and died there.
- III. Lydia, b. 1772.
- IV. Waitstill, b. 1774; m. Hepzibah Daggett. He settled in Acton, Vt., and was chosen the first town clerk when the town was organized, Mar. 3, 1801. He later removed to Western New York.
- V. Rufus, b. 1778; was also of Acton for a time, then removed to Western New York.
2. VI. Rodolphus, b. 1780.
- VII. Lucy, b. 1782; m. William Amesbury.
- VIII. Lyman, b. 1784; m. Betsey Mason. He is said to have removed West after his father's death. His children were: (1) Fanny; (2) Rufus; (3) Betsey;

(4) Harriet; (5) Josiah; (6) Roxana; (7) Maria, who m. Benjamin Gortan.

IX. Chester, b. 1786.

X. Festus, b. 1791.

2. Rodolphus² Scott, (Waitstill¹) b. 1780; m. Lydia, dau. of Abel Haven; she d. 1839, ae. 54. He m. (2) Mrs. Diantha Hopkins. He d. in Chesterfield, N. H., 1851. His name also appears on the records of Acton, with quite a number of other Scotts, whose relationship is not known to the writer. He probably removed from Acton to Chesterfield about 1830.

Children:

- I. Noyes, b. at Acton, Vt., 1803; d. in Ill., 1843.
3. II. Horace, b. at Acton, abt. 1805.
- III. Alonzo, b. at Acton, 1809; d. 1819.
- IV. Ardelia, b. at Acton, 1809; m. Oct., 1828, Alfred Farwell.
- V. Rodolphus, d. in infancy.
- VI. Otis, b. 1826; m. 1848, Maria Hill of Swanzey, N. H. Resided in Chesterfield, N. H. Children: (1) Stella, b. 1850; (2) Frank, b. 1852; (3) Lilla, b. 1857; (4) Herbert, b. 1859; (5) Mary, b. 1864, m. 1882, Elias A. Wheeler; (6) Emma, b. 1867; (7) Nora, b. 1869.
- VII. Romanza, b. 1841; m. 1870.
- VIII. George D., b. 1842; m. Nancy Burns of Walpole. Their children were: (1) George B., b. 1874; (2) Ida, b. 1877; (3) Agnes, b. 1879, in Chesterfield, N. H.

3. Horace³ Scott, (Rodolphus², Waitstill¹) b. in Acton, Vt., about 1890; m. Miranda Herrick; he d. in 1860 in Chesterfield, N. H.

Children:

- I. Persis, b. 1827; m. Alonzo Wilson.
- II. Horace P., b. Nov., 1830; m. 1852, Lyrina Perry of Keene. He is deceased; resided in Chesterfield, N. H. Children were: (1) Charles M., b. 1853; (2) Frank, b. 1854; (3) Andrew, d. young; (4) Martha, b. 1862; (5) Addie, b. 1865; (6) William, b. 1868; (7) Emma, b. 1870.

John Scott of Springfield, Mass., And Some of His Descendants.

The first glimpse we obtain of John Scott, the progenitor of the name in Springfield and Palmer, is in the Springfield record of his marriage in 1659. After giving the subject much study and research, the writer has arrived at the conclusion that possibly John and William Scott, who both arrived in Springfield and Hadley respectively at about the same time, were brothers and emigrants from England. Future research may disprove this conclusion, but thus far no trace of their parentage has been found in this country. One evidence of the consanguinity of these two men is the similarity of the names of their children. John Scott married, July 26, 1659, Sarah, daughter of Thomas and Margaret Bliss. Her father was born in Okehampton, in the village of Belstone, County Devon, Eng., son of Thomas Bliss of Belstone. He first settled in Braintree, but removed to Hatfield in 1639, where he died in 1650. His widow, Margaret, a capable woman, removed to Springfield with her children save a daughter Ann, who married Robert Chapin^{*}, and a son Thomas, who first removed to Saybrook about 1644, thence to Norwich about 1660; she died in Springfield Aug. 28, 1684. John Scott bought a small tract of land in 1664 on the Agawam river. The records say that in 1664 "The jury also presented Capt. Pynchon and John Scott for not mayntayning their fences on the west side of ye river, a breach of the law of this jurisdiction." He was one of the soldiers who took part in the celebrated "Falls fight" in 1676; he was a citizen of Springfield in 1678, when he took the oath of allegiance, but a few years later he removed to Suffield, where he was one of the early grantees; there his youngest child was born, and there he died Jan. 2, 1689-90, as found on the Suffield records. He left an estate valued £224-18s., which was apportioned to his widow and children. His widow married Nov. 19, 1690, Samuel Terry Sen. of Springfield, and died Sept. 27, 1705; he died at Enfield 1731. It is a singular fact that while there are many descendants of John Scott still living bearing other names, there are none, so far as the knowledge of the writer extends, who bear the name of Scott in the male line.

- VI. Elizabeth Fowler, b. Dec. 13, 1705 ; m. David Pease.
- VII. Christopher Fowler, b. Oct. 29, 1708 ; m. Experience Hollibut.
- VIII. Elisha Fowler, b. Feb. 16, 1711.

4. Ebenezer² Scott, (John¹) b. Aug. 3, 1673 ; m. in Springfield May 21, 1724, Mary Frost, dau. of Isaac and Mary (Barker) Frost, b. in Springfield Jan. 1, 1696-7 ; he d. in Brimfield 1759. Some doubt has been expressed whether the Ebenezer Scott who settled in Brimfield about 1723 was the son of John Scott, in part because it makes him nearly 50 years of age at marriage ; but the writer has an instance of a man marrying for the first time at the age of 72, and not a few who have first contracted marriage at nearly 50 years of age. We find in the Springfield records that Ebenezer Scott was sick of a fever in 1708, and the selectmen ordered his brother William, and John Fowler, a brother-in-law, to care for him, which implies that he was not then married ; in 1716 he deeded land in Springfield to his brother William. In 1731 Ebenezer Scott was chosen a tithingman in Brimfield, and in 1757 he was allotted a seat in the meeting house there. Power of administration was granted his widow Mary Aug. 29, 1757 ; the property inventoried £136-6-2, including real estate in Springfield. In the settlement of the estate one child, Achsah, is mentioned. On Feb. 15, 1764, Joseph Frost was appointed guardian to Achsah Scott, a minor under 14 years of age, and sole heir to Ebenezer Scott, late of Brimfield. (See Reg. of Probate, Northampton, Book 10, p. 209.) Nov. 20, 1750, Ebenezer Scott sold land in Brimfield to a son Ebenezer, being a part of his portion ; he probably died before his father, as his sister Achsah is said to be the only heir after her father's death.

5. William² Scott, (John¹) b. Aug. 8, 1676 ; m. June 21, 1706, Sarah, dau. of Samuel and Mary (Merrick) Foote, b. in Hatfield, Feb. 26, 1682. He d. in Palmer, Mass., Dec. 31, 1763 ; she d. there Nov. 22, 1764. He was one of the constables of Springfield in 1724, but he located in Palmer before 1732, on the section now owned by the Wright Wire Company. In 1733 the committee sent by the court confirmed to him his claim of 100 acres where his house and improvements then were, showing he had settled there some time previous to that date. At the first town meeting held in 1733 he was one of a committee of three appointed to "prepare a draught of rules and orders for regulating the settlement."

Children, b. in Springfield.

8. I. Sarah, b. June 22, 1707.
9. II. John, b. Mar. 9, 1708-9.
- III. Mary, b. Aug. 4, 1710.
- IV. Margaret, b. Aug. 2, 1712; d. Dec., 1716, in Springfield.
10. V. Elizabeth, b. June 20, 1714.
- VI. Margaret, b. Dec. 25, 1720; d. Apr. 26, 1736.
11. VII. William, b. Nov. 8, 1723.

6. Mary² Scott, (John¹) b. Dec. 29, 1678; m. last of July, 1701, Ebenezer Nash, son of Lt. Timothy, b. in Hadley Oct. 25, 1673. He removed to Suffield, Ct., after 1710, where he d. in 1748. She d. in Suffield, Oct. 19, 1747. Recently an old record has been found in Springfield which says John Saley and Mary Scott of Suffield were m. Feb. 16, 1696-7, which has caused the question to be raised whether or not she was the daughter of John Scott; if she was she would have been but 17 years old. Now Judd says the wife of Ebenezer Nash was the daughter of John Scott of Springfield. The Nash Genealogy gives this account: "Ebenezer Nash married the last of July, 1701, Mary Scott, the young woman who was named in the agreement of Timothy Nash's heirs as having been brought up in the family and forgotten in the will."

The agreement was "That Mary Scott, who hath been brought up as a child under our honored father and mother's care and education till now she is of age for herself, that she shall have out of the inventoried estate before any distribution subtracted out of the total thereof, besides three sheepe, with the lambs to them, the full sum of Six pounds as the prizes in the inventory or other good pay to be payed in conveynient time. Signed March 28, 1699."

We know that John Scott died when his daughter Mary was but 10 years old, and that her mother married the same year of her husband's death Samuel Terry, who had a large family, so that it would be quite natural for Mary to have been bound out, as was quite usual in those days, to a respectable family like that of Timothy Nash. It is stated that the Mary Scott in the Nash family had been with them since a child, and had come of age in 1699, which just tallies with the case of John Scott's daughter. In view of all these facts there remains little room for doubt about the correctness of Judd's statement.

Children :

- I. Jonathan Nash, b. May 30, 1702 ; d. Nov. 7, 1704.
- II. Mary Nash, b. Oct. 29, 1704 ; m. Nov. 18, 1730, John Hovey of Mansfield, Ct., who d. Oct. 3, 1746.
- III. Miriam Nash, b. Jan. 27, 1710 ; m. Aug. 24, 1742, Capt. Moses Scott of Bernardston, Mass., a grandson of William Scott of Hatfield, whose descendants are found in the first part of this volume.

7. Elizabeth² Scott, (John¹) b. Sept. 2, 1683 ; m. Feb. 19, 1708, Jonathan Worthington, son of Nicholas of Hartford ; she d. Sept. 8, 1743 ; he m. (2) Sept. 22, 1748, Experience Fowler. He was one of the constables of Springfield in 1734.

9. John³ Scott, (William², John¹) b. Mar. 9, 1708-9; d. at Hadley while visiting his sister's family, Oct. 3, 1737. An inventory of his property enumerates a lot of 100 acres in the Elbows (Palmer) at £400; a negro man £120; a tract of 120 acres of land in Brimfield £70; and other property amounting to £679. He also had an assignment of land in Bernardston on account of his grandfather's — John Scott — service in the "Falls fight" in 1676. From the above it will be seen that he was one of the slave owners of Palmer. His farm was located east of Mount Dumplin, now known as the Michael O'Connor place.

10. Elizabeth³ Scott, (William², John¹) b. June 20, 1714; m. 1734, Steward Southgate; she d. at Leicester Sept. 19, 1748. Mr. Southgate was the son of Richard, the emigrant from Coombs, Suffolk County, Eng., who settled in Leicester 1715. Steward was educated at Harvard and became a civil engineer, and was employed in surveying townships and farms. He came to Palmer, Mass., in 1732 and was chosen proprietor's clerk and surveyor of the district, in which capacity he served till 1740. He was a capable man and rendered good service to the district in many ways. He returned to Leicester in 1742, where he resided till his death. He there became a staunch Quaker and defender of the doctrine.

11. Lieut. William³ Scott, (William², John¹) b. Nov. 8, 1723; m. Dec. 5, 1745, Abigail Kibbe of Enfield, Ct., b. there May 3, 1725. Her father was Isaac, son of Elisha of Boston and Enfield. Her mother was Dorothy, dau. of Ebenezer Smith, grandson of Rev. Henry Smith of Wethersfield. He d. in Palmer May 25, 1790. She m. (2) John Fowler, some years her junior, and d. in Palmer May 4, 1800.

Lieut. Scott was well educated, and well read in law; appreciating his fitness for the position, the town petitioned the Governor to appoint him a justice of the peace, which was granted. He was a very prominent man during the Revolutionary period, and was appointed the agent for Hampden county to collect and forward material for the army. He was clerk and treasurer of the Elbow Plantation from 1746 to 1750; treasurer of Palmer 1752 to 1754; selectman 1761 to 1775; representative 1777. At the time of his death he owned land in Palmer, Greenwich, Wilbraham, Ludlow and West Springfield. The larger part of his estate was devised to his wife Abigail. Lt. Scott was one of the Palmer slave owners; he had several born in his household, Peter and Nancy being their parents. He gave each of his children a slave, the boy, Cæsar, going to John Scott of Middletown; Rose went to William; she was a bright, good-looking girl, and a good cook. She was given her freedom before her master's death, after which she lived for twenty years in the family of Asa Bates. The boy Hannibal went to Dr. Calvin Scott, and the girl Tibbee to Margaret.

It may be stated in this connection that the writer has examined the statement noted in the Connecticut Valley History, connecting this family with scenes of tragedy, and finds them unworthy of a moment's consideration, and should be relegated to oblivion.

William⁴ Scott graduated at Harvard in 1741, and received a grand ovation on his return home. He then studied law some time in the office of Lawyer Pyncheon of Springfield. On the completion of his studies he was appointed justice of the peace for Palmer in 1741. His father having conducted a tavern at the old Scott homestead for many years, built for his son near by in 1774 one of the finest houses in town for a tavern. Here Mr. Scott held courts of justice and conducted an extensive business out of town. His wife was a woman of remarkable ability, and looked after the interests of the tavern and farm during his absence. It was at this house that Washington stopped for breakfast on the morning of Oct. 22, 1789, on his visit to New England, and it was with a good degree of pride that the family exhibited the table linen used on that occasion for many years after. After the death of his first wife Mr. Scott removed to Troy, N. Y., where he did not long remain, but went to the home of his wife in Somers, where he died.

she d. May 24, 1877. Soon after the death of her father, Aseneth went to live with William and Sarah Dickinson of Hadley, distant relatives, with whom she remained for some 18 years or till her marriage. Her husband was the proprietor of the celebrated Sedgwick Tavern, which succeeded the old Scott Tavern at Shearer's Corner in Palmer, and flourished during the time when stages ran from Boston to New York. The house gained great celebrity on account of the excellent meals furnished to guests, for Mr. and Mrs. Sedgwick knew how to keep a hotel.

Heatherton, Home of John S. Goodwin, Naperville, Ill.

residents of Chicago. Mr. Goodwin is a graduate of the old Indiana Asbury — now De Pauw — University. In addition to his law business he is extensively interested in the breeding of Aberdeen-Angus cattle, and was also a large shareholder in the Sioux City (Iowa) Traction Company. Mrs. Goodwin was educated at Rye Seminary, Rye, N. Y. Their only child, a daughter, is now (1906) in this school.

About 1902 Mr. Goodwin disposed of his railway interests and purchased the Ellsworth estate at Naperville, Illinois. This is one of the most famous properties, embracing about four hundred acres, in that part of the state. The town of Naperville was organized before its neighbor, the City of Chicago, twenty-eight miles away, was named, and Mr. Goodwin's present residence, known as Heatherton, occupies the site of Old Fort Payne, erected on Fort Hill as a defense and refuge for the settlers in the Black Hawk War. Mr. Goodwin maintains his herd of Aberdeen-Angus cattle at this place, and is at present the president of the American Aberdeen-Angus Breeders' Association. His law partner is General John C. Black, formerly Commissioner of Pensions and now chairman of the United States Civil Service Commission.

Child of John S. and Anna Goodwin :

Suzanne (Anna) Goodwin, b. Dec. 15, 1886.
