A NOBLE NAME.

I hold as reverend theme for rhyme
The name that glorifies its time;
A goodly heritage that will,
Through fresh inheritors, distill
Desire to widen wisdom's path,
Virtue, so given, to him who hath!
* * * * *

A lineage old, of lustre new,
Moss-grown, yet green with latter dew—
This is the glory I would sing,
Until our children's children bring,
To match the name they won at birth,
A name of very present worth.

MARY B. DODGE.

There was a morning when I longed for fame,
There was a noontide when I passed it by,
There is an evening when I think not shame
Its substance and its being to deny;
For if men bear in mind great deeds, the name
Of him that wrought them shall they leave to die;
Thy duty and thy happiness were one.
Work is heaven's hest; its fame is sublunar,
Thy fame thou dost not need, the work is done.

JEAN INGELow.

INTRODUCTION.

AN earnest desire to know something of his ancestors, their nativity, branching and history, led the writer, while yet within the borders of youth, to begin a course of inquiry thereto which has culminated in the present volume.

The object at first, was simply for personal gratification, the result of a reverence for the venerable forefathers who had lived, had their being; passing down the stream of time, to that limit from whence no voyager returns.

As the researches brought to light much that was deemed interesting and worthy of preserving, it was finally concluded to group, as near as possible, the descendants of the progenator who heads our records, into one family and give to the press for the benefit of whom it might concern.

The compiler felt unfitted for a work which has usually fallen to men of letters, in addition, his remoteness from the land of his fore-bears, the great libraries and sources of genealogical information, and having pursued the subject entirely within the bounds of his native state, through the medium of the pen alone, made the work in no small degree tedious and a little hopeless of final success.

Besides, as no other person, to his knowledge, was making an effort to trace the name in all its divergencies, it seemed incumbent upon him to search out the hidden and obscure records of generations dead and living. This volume is therefore sent out upon its mission, with the prayer that whoever reads it may be benefited. The desire is that its pages may awaken a deeper interest in the subject of Ancestry, a subject that too many regard lightly or know very little about. The beast of the field may have no conception of its own descent, but man, who rules over the animal creation, and of whose pedigree he manifests a concern not unreasonable, should certainly have a deeper interest in questions relating to his own and his children's lineage and the many important facts derived therefrom. If therefore a perusal of the following records shall be the means of lifting to higher and nobler deeds; if it assist in any measure to a humble and wisely spent life, and the acquisition of the moral and Christian principles that stand out so clearly in the lives of many who have passed from the stage of action to unmarked graves, the author will feel that his efforts have not been in vain. The amount of time and labor required to produce this little volume, will scarcely receive a just estimation by those not having engaged in a similar undertaking. Records of various kinds—church, state, county, historical, biographical and genealogical must be called into support; thousands of inquiries sent to every nook and corner where promise of information was apparent, and even the "cities of the dead" have been importuned for light. These all have required close examination and sifting, that the essential facts only be retained. Errors, the result of misinformation, or contradictory statements, and typographical, doubtless occur, however, the utmost diligence has been exercised to glean all the important facts relating to the numerous lines, and gladly would more have been added had the correspondents from whom we have largely drawn, seen proper to offer it. We would not weary the reader with a detailed account of years of wearisome labor, intervals of interruption, when hope for success was almost abandoned, and then recurring periods of delightful progress.

Thanks are due to all those who have given aid, and obligations are hereby acknowledged to Elizabeth H. Atkinson, (deceased), of Wrightstown, Pa., Mary B. Twining, of New Boston, Mass., Prof. E. H. Twining, of New York City, and Josiah Paine, Esq., of Harwich, Mass., without whose assistance there would have been seeming failure.

We have been content to confine our investigations almost exclusively to the first American Ancestor and his numerous descent, widely scattered over the northern portion of the United States, as far west as the Pacific ocean. It would be a pleasure, however, to see some one take up the subject, find the transatlantic connection, and trace the name in unbroken line on down to its earliest history.

THE NAME.

Regarding the family of TWINING, its origin, and significance of name, nothing is definitely known. Whether of Celtic or Anglo-Saxon beginning is not absolutely clear, although the burden of evidence thus far points to an Anglo-Saxon rather than a purely Welsh or Celtic origin. Traditions of the American family, with few exceptions, point to Wales as the place from which our ancestor came. This at the best would not prove a prior descent, and therefore leaves the question open to further enquiry and examination.

Having requested our friend, Prof. E. H. Twining, to write upon the subject, we are pleased to quote from him the following:—"The name of TWINING, like others ending in ing, is generally understood to be of Anglo-Saxon origin, and, as Richard Grant White says, 'of venerable antiquity.' Its significance is uncertain. One widely received view makes it a local appellation, derived from Saxon words meaning 'two meadows;' and regards the family as taking its designation from a locality in Gloucestershire, England, where, on the Avon, a few miles from Tewksbury, is a village bearing the name, and a ferry known as 'Twining's Fleet.' This is not, however, the view of Schele de Vere, nor of Isaac Taylor ('Words and Places,') both of whom, while not citing this name specially, state in general, that '—ing' was the usual Anglo-Saxon patronymic; so that Waring, Harling and Twining rather gave names to places than received names from them. The word 'Ing' or meadow, according to the latter authority, is a local prefix only, as in Ingham. Of the two theories, in the absence of historic evidence, the weight of probability seems to lie on the side of the patronymic rather than the local. The Anglo-Saxon Chronicle (A. D. 547), gives:

'Ida waes Eopping,
Eoppa waes Esing,
Esa waes Inguing,
Ingui, Angenwiting,'

that is, 'Ida was Eoppa's son, etc.' "

"The term 'patronymic' is, in its strict sense, too narrow to express the force of 'ing,' which, like the Hebrew 'ben,' goes out to a wider range of relations; as in 'Viking,' vik (creek), Haunter, and 'cyning' (King), the man of the Kin or Clan.

"One member of the family, facetiously inclined, remembers that 'Twyn' is Anglo-Saxon for doubt, and suggests a descent from the skeptical Thomas; another more seriously, finds his name among the mountains of Wales, in a word meaning bush. There are certainly Twinings in Wales, but translations of that kind are too infrequent to give countenance to even so plausible a supposition, without the support of direct evidence.

"In the matter of Christian names, William and Thomas appear everywhere, the latter often in combination with John. It seems that William and John were favorite names in England from the time of the Norman Conquest, and for obvious reasons. With the Puritan reaction the former fell into disrepute, as savoring of Paganism, and became infrequent among the reformers, and presumably in the direct ratio of their zeal. The spirit that could rejoice in the appellation of "Praise-God," or "Stand-fast-in-the-faith," was not likely to be led by any motives of sentiment to tolerate reminders of Gothic heathenism or Norman oppression. John, having good Scripture warrant, held its place, while William fell away, and only after the Restoration recovered its standing.

"The New England family, however, seems to have been, with the rest of the name, free from unreasonable prejudice in this regard, and retained the name, perhaps from a sort of kith-and-kin conservatism, perhaps from a dim sense of rhythmical fitness, along with Thomas, Stephen, Elijah and others drawn from the familiar Biblical readings.

So far as is known at present, there are in Great Britain three points at which the name of TWINING appears to have had early, it may be independent, foothold, in Gloucestershire, as already mentioned, in Wales, and in the vicinity of St. Mary's Isle, Kirkcudbrightshire, Scotland.

"In Gloucestershire, John Twining appears as Abbot of Winchcombe, about the middle of the fifteenth century; and in the Scottish locality the name is said to be found on tomb stones of at least as early a date. Families of the name exist at present in Scotland and Wales, in London, and elsewhere in Middlesex, and perhaps at other points in England. On this side of the Atlantic they are met with in Nova Scotia,* coming originally from Wales, and throughout the United States.

*The name also occurs in Newfoundland and the Canadas, as well as Nova Scotia, where it has had an existence for some hundred years, the ancestor being a native of Wales. These different families are not very numerous, and whether they all centre in the Welsh family is not known. They are characterized as refined, well-informed, respectable and well-to-do people.

Richard Twining, of London, (editor of Papers of the Twining Family, by Rev. Thomas Twining, at one time Rector of St. Mary's, Colchester, England), holds to the theory that the name had its origin at the junction of the Severn and Avon, from whence it is claimed members of the family emigrated to other countries.

“ These last, with the exception of two or three additions, the earliest of which dates its arrival in this country not more than thirty years back, seem to be all descended from one ancestor.

“ Mr. William Twining, who first appears in public records, as a freeholder at Yarmouth, on Cape Cod, Massachusetts, in the year 1643, though there is reason to believe that he came over at a somewhat earlier date.

“ There is no light upon the particular circumstances which led our ancestor to leave his home, and no direct information as to the part of Great Britain from which he came; but there can be little question that the influences which moved him were the same as, in one or another form, had been operating throughout under the rule of the Stuarts, and even under the last of the Tudors, to detach Englishmen from their native soil. These were, briefly, church intolerance, court corruptions and royal exactions. That he did not come earlier may have been due to a survival of loyalty, or to conditions of place or occupation which brought the pressure of these influences less directly upon him than upon many others, or to a temperament which, hopeful of better things, held him at home until it seemed that the success of neither of striving parties promised any good. The tyranny which the Presbyterians forced upon Cromwell was quite as insufferable as the Erastianism of Laud; and while the Puritan element in general was drawn by its moral sense into co-operation with the Presbyterians, those who, like the Pilgrims before them, more broadly asked for freedom of faith and practice, seeing that presbyter was, as John Milton phrased it, only ‘priest writ large,’ found themselves between two fires, and ‘turned to the New World to redress the balance of the Old.’

“ Of the twenty thousand or more who emigrated between the years 1629 and 1640, the time of arrival of only a relatively small number can be ascertained from the passenger lists of the vessels on which they sailed. If William Twining came after the proclamation prohibiting emigration without license (May 1, 1638), and prior to 1640, when emigration had practically ceased, it is not difficult to see why his name might not appear on the registers. In the first place, although ships left England for America almost daily, Hotten's lists give names of passengers of but one ship in 1638 and 1639. It is certain registers were kept, but equally certain that nearly all of them have been lost.

"Further, these registers contained only the names of those who left England legally, i. e., under license according to the proclamation, and doubtless thousands left secretly to avoid the oath of Allegiance and Supremacy and the payment of a subsidy to the crown, as well as to escape the annoyances and disabilities which attended those who were disaffected to the Church establishment.

"If he came over after 1640, in November of which year the Long Parliament assembled, he could perhaps have come without hindrance, and without official registry. Why he should have emigrated at that time is a matter of conjecture. A possible answer to the question has been already intimated, but so far nothing 'of record' has been discovered to settle it definitely. Possibly some evidence may exist in England to throw light on the true cause of his migration and that of others who came under the same circumstances. Perhaps, too, the fact of his joining the Yarmouth Settlement (which after an attempt in 1638 was incorporated in 1639) may have been a consequence of the presence there of some friends from the Old World, and this might give a clue to the port from which he sailed. It has been assumed that he came from an English locality. The reason for this assumption is that, so far as is known and as might be expected, the greater number of Colonists came from those parts from which the seaports were most accessible, and which at the time were most easily reached, by the oppressions and exactions which stimulated the movement. Further, it appears that the immediate descendants of William Twining were decided Congregationalists, and one branch of the family affiliated with the Society of Friends. It may be inferred that he was himself of the independent Puritans, and so out of touch with the royalists faction on one side and the Covenant on the other. As has been intimated above, this may have been a reason for his emigrating at a time when no general movement was taking place. It is known that there were Twinings who adhered to the cause of King Charles, and family differences may have had something to do with his expatriation. These are, however, but matters of conjecture, and may serve to indicate lines of future exploration. What may be safely held for fact is that the ancestor of the American family was Anglo-Saxon and Puritan. The race-type remains in the family to-day—the sanguine temperament, the fair skin, the blue eyes, (often with the intent look that led Tacitus to call them truces), which the Romans saw eighteen centuries ago, and the same love of honest dealing and fair play. That he was Puritan hardly needs proof. It would require strong evidence to show that he could have been other, when the whole middle and professional class in England was Puritan.

“The opening of the Bible by Elizabeth had set up in the English people a new standard of life and conduct, and stimulated a reaction against the caprice and passion and carelessness of the age. The aim of the Puritan ‘was to attain self-command, to be master of himself, of his thought and speech and acts;’ and this not as a social art, but under stress of devotion to a Supreme will. This temper was likely to lead to a narrow and ascetic habit, lacking grace and color of life; but it had the definiteness and efficiency that belong to intensity of conviction and singleness of purpose. Our ancestor has left no words or history to show these traits of character; but they are claimed by the traditions of the family; they are held as an inheritance, and their imitation as an obligation; for ‘the growing good of the world is partly dependent on unhistoric acts.’”

NOTES.

—Bucks County, Pa., has been the banner home for Twinings for near 200 years; for a like period, Barnstable County, Mass., was the family abode, but has been without a representative of the name for many years.

—Berkshire and Hampden counties, Mass., have a few reminders of the once fruitful family. Tolland, at one time noted for its Twinings, has passed the name almost to the point of obscurity.

—Broome County, N. Y., retains her reputation for numbers. In Hancock County, Ohio, the name was legion, but removals have depleted the ranks. The name has had a prominence at New Haven, Ct., since 1795, and Granville, O., since 1815.

—Philadelphia and Scranton, Pa., are chief Twining centres. Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio and Connecticut, in the order named, contain a majority of the living generations. Massachusetts, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Kansas are about equally balanced in families. In Indiana, Vermont and New Hampshire the name is nearly extinct.

—It is observable that the New England Twinings are pretty much "scattered," while the Pennsylvania families seem to preserve a more compact form; this may in measure be owing to the latter's greater numbers, and the communistic trend of their Quakerism.

—Occasionally the two great lines intersect, though it does not appear that they have ever intermarried. New York and Ohio are States where the two branches are brought in closest relationship.

—Ministers, physicians, lawyers, civil engineers, and school teachers are adequately represented; farmers predominate, not many wealthy, but usually the Twinings are a well to do people, observers of law and the rights of their fellow man. No statesmen or men of renown.

—The religious faculty is prominent, inclined to the liberal, progressive; in politics largely Republican; in temperament it predominates in the nervous-sanguine. When the fire is wont to fly, "dog nor devil" is seldom taken into account; a calm follows quickly.

—In their love for country the Twinings have abundantly shown their patriotism in the defense of home and on the field of conflict; not a few of them have died in battle and hospital. One served in the war between France and the Provinces, 1758. One is known to have served throughout the Revolution, one or more in the 1812 war, and one was so unpatriotic as to serve in the Southern Confederacy.

—To the fifth generation the families were confined to the narrow limits of Cape Cod and Bucks County, Pa. From thence, about 1780, they began extending their lines, the Cape family to Tolland, and the Pennsylvania family to Philadelphia, New Jersey and York State. About 1793 a leading branch of the family "down on the Cape" settled at Frankfort, now Winterport, Maine.

—In a long and extensive research there have not been found in the United States a half-dozen Twining families who were not identified in the American progenitor. The English name occurs at Chicago and Denver; the Nova Scotia (Welch) Staten Island, and the Scotch at New Haven, Ct. A family bearing the name also resides at Otis, Mass.

—The branches which it has been impossible to explore and which the future genealogist may be able to extend, are: Nathaniel, Jr., son of 6 Nathaniel; Samuel, grandson of 20 Barnabas; Christopher, son of 25 Daniel; and Eleazer, son of 81 Barnabas. The latter two, it is quite evident have descendants.

—A question of heirship not infrequently arises over vast and unclaimed estates in England. One of the eighth generation tells of hearing her grandfather (b. in Pennsylvania) say he had a rich old bachelor brother in England (?), and she wonders if he is not one of the two, Richard Twining and Wm. H. Twining, reputed millionaires, whose vast estates are said to be awaiting claimants. This is a fair specimen of many traditions afloat, and unless members of the family desire to throw away their money it is not advisable to put in claims upon foundations so untenable.

—To clear up a few of the traditional stories in vogue among descendants, some of which are that "three brothers" came over, and a few that there were two, no evidence has been presented indicating that Wm. Twining, Sr., had any connection other than his own family. Nor can it be found that any other person of the name Twining ever set foot on Colonial soil. Unsupported and diverse statements are frequently thrown in the way of the earnest enquirer, but are not the "stubborn things" which he is wont to feed upon, and must be cast aside for that which is true.

—About 1845 the Barnstable county, Mass., Records, were all destroyed by fire, and many wills and documents of the early families were thereby lost, and may account for our Progenitor having no records extant, which might shed light on several uncertain questions of lineage, marriage, issue and worldly estate of the latter, of which no facts are given. The Congregational Church records of Orleans exist, according to Barber's Hist. Coll., from 1648 to 1797; according to Josiah Paine, none extant before 1773. The Eastham Church Records all lost.

—The early Plymouth Records show some variation in spelling the name. We find it Twining (right), Twineing, Twiney, and Twyneing. The index of same records treat them all as one name.

—Rev. Kinsley Twining, D.D., regards the name of Welch or Celtic origin, and therefore hard to catch and identify. He says: "Thomas Twining, of London, evidently did not consider the name worth bragging about, though they were considerably enlightened to have a coat of arms. He, however, changed the crest and started anew with one contrived out of an entirely false rendering of the name, which evidently he supposed to be some derivation of twine, and accordingly, as his grandson or greatgrandson, the late distinguished banker, explained to me, provided himself with a crest showing an arm or something of that kind with a serpent twisted about it. All this proves that he knew nothing of the real significance of the name."

THOS. J. TWINING.

EXPLANATIONS AND CONTRACTIONS.

The plan of the book is not original, but has been adopted with a few modifications, as being the least confusing to the ordinary reader, and avoiding repetition of female branches, which are recorded for but one generation. It is not customary to trace the female lines beyond the children, for reasons that the original name becomes suspended, and also that the labor required to follow these thousands of descendants would seem boundless.

The heads of principal families and branches, are numbered in succession from 1 TO 175; the name of the person numbered being preceded by heavy figures. Names which are not preceded by heavy figures are completed in one notice, and show that said name has no living male issue, except in case where said issue is lost or not in record. The small figures number the children of a family. For uniformity, dates of births, deaths and marriages, are given in the usual form of the times. In abbreviating, b. stands for born; d. for died or deceased; m. for married; unm. for unmarried; inf. for infant; dau. for daughter; ch. for child or children; res. for residence; Tp. for township, etc. Where the name of a place has been given once its initial will be understood thereafter, as E. for Eastham; O. for Orleans; T. for Tolland; N. for Newtown and W. for Wrightstown, etc.

GENEALOGY.

Genealogy or "The history of the succession of families," is a very old word, being employed in sacred and profane history.

Of the term,—its usage and history, we quote from Zell's Encyclopedia and Dictionary.

"Genealogy, jen-e-álo-je, n, Fr. gènéalogie; Gr. geneologia, from genea, a race, and logos, a discourse, an account or enumeration of the ancestors or relations of a particular person or family. No nation was more careful to trace and preserve its genealogies than the children of Israel. Their sacred writings contain genealogies which extend through a period of more than 3,500 years, from the creation of Adam to the captivity of Judah, and even after that time. Josephus informs us that he traced his own descent from the tribe of Levi by means of public registers, and that, however dispersed and depressed his nation were, they never neglected to have exact genealogical tables prepared from authentic documents which were kept at Jerusalem. Since, however, their destruction as a nation by the Romans, all their tables of descent seem to have been lost; and even the Levites, who are still distinguished from the rest of the people by the exercise of special honorary religious functions, are known as such only by being acknowledged as descendants of parents who exercised the same.

The inequalities of rank and right which prevailed during the Middle Ages, made genealogical inquiries highly important, and it was then that researches of this kind assumed the form of a science, which became closely connected with heraldry, q. v. Very little critical care, however, was usually employed in such cases, the chief object being to trace the origin of families into the remotest antiquity.

Attempts to carry this to an absurd length are frequently manifested in the earlier genealogical works. Critical genealogical studies were not begun before the Seventeenth Century.

Genealogical accounts are not only interesting to persons who feel a more or less natural curiosity about their ancestors, but are also useful to the historian, as elucidating the often complicated relations of dynasties, families, claims and controversies of successions, etc. They are also important in legal cases concerning claims of inheritance, and, indeed, are indispensable in States in which the enjoyment of certain rights is made to depend upon lineage or descent.

A genealogy, or lineage, is frequently represented in the form of a tree, arbor consanguinitatis, giving a distinct view of the various branches of the family, and the degrees of descent from the common progenitor, who is generally present in the root or stem.

Genealogical tables are either descending or ascending. The former are chiefly used in historical records, presenting the descendants of a certain person in the order of procreation; the latter in documents of nobility, serving to show the claims of any man or family to the titles of paternal and maternal ancestors.

Sometimes both forms are used together. Persons descended one from another successively, form a direct line; those descended from a common progenitor, but not one from another, a collateral line; the collateral line embraces the agnates, or the kindred on the father's side, and the cognates, or kindred on the mother's side."

In a work entitled, "Two Sticks," or, "The Lost Tribes of Israel," the author attempts to prove the Anglo-Saxon race to be the ten lost tribes. Bearing on the subject of genealogy, he says: "What means this effort, both in England and in America to trace up genealogies? Why so much anxiety to know the lineage? Is it because there is a prospective inheritance in the Holy Land? Are Israelites desirous of knowing what share of the new country is theirs?"

* * * * *

"Men may attribute this hunting of ancestors to an 'idle curiosity,' a 'fancy of the brain,' still there may be a providence behind it. Thousands have performed work which, at the time, was considered as having no significance from a divine standpoint; but what have seemed mere fancy to the multitude turned out to be the hand of God in shaping the destiny of men and nations.

* * * * *

"How often has that which has been considered as mere happening turned out to be 'the finger of God?' Now, while it may seem to be improbable that this seeking of genealogies has any relation to Israel's gathering, it might be well to place it in the catalogue of portentous events that are transpiring in perfect harmony with prophecy, divine utterances from the glory and presence of God. When events and predictions fit so happily, it would be rudeness to tear them asunder. The children of Israel were very careful to preserve their genealogies."

FIRST GENERATION.

1 William Twining, Sr., is the central figure around which cluster a multitude of living characters, comprising ten generations of descendants, measured by a distance of nearly two hundred and fifty years.

This important personage, as he first appears in New England history, on the shore of Cape Cod, awakens a deep interest in the minds of those who reverence antiquity and the hallowed ground of ancestral abode.

Of his nativity nothing is known to certainty. From whence he came, his paternity, life and traits of character, the vessel in which he took passage and its date of arrival in the New World, are questions which have been pondered over and the page of history examined that some ray of light might shed her pleasant beams and answer fully and satisfactorily. These questions may never be solved. The impenetrable darkness of unrecorded events may never declare his life prior to his voyage across the Atlantic. Indeed, his milestones seem to be hidden in the dead past, and the reader can but ponder as over other problems in the world's history which the intelligence of man can but feebly grasp in speculation.

We say that reliable information regarding our ancestor is wanting; family tradition, however, almost uniformly assert that he came from Wales. One that he came from Yorkshire, England, and one, an aged spinster living in the vicinity of Eastham, speaks of a "taint of French blood."

The utmost that has been gleaned from the various records and sources of information relating to historical and genealogical matters, as to time of his entry into the New World, is taken from James Savage, an authority on New England genealogy, who states that "Mr William Twining, Sr., was in Yarmouth 1643."

Other New England writers, who doubtless copy from Savage, make substantially the same statement.

The Yarmouth records imply that he was there at least two years earlier, or 1641, the date of his daughter Isabel's marriage.

It is questionable whether he first landed at Yarmouth. We are fain to believe that he first touched shore at Plymouth and was among those of her settlers who became dissatisfied with their location and sought new homes at various places along the Cape Cod Coast. That he was a man of more than ordinary character is shown by the title which prefixes his name in the early records, an appellation of honor which was rarely applied in those days, as shown by the History of Mass. Bay, which tells us that "the first settlers of these Colonies were very careful that no title or appellation be given where not due. Not more than half a dozen of the principal gentlemen of the Massachusetts Colony took the title of Esq.; and, in a list of one hundred freemen, not more than four or five were distinguished by a Mr., although they were generally men of substance. Goodman and goodwife were the more common appellations."—See Hutchinson's History.

Additional to this, another historian says, referring to the changes at Plymouth and the standing of those who first came to Eastham: "The church at Plymouth regretted their departure, for they who went out from her were among the most respectable of all the inhabitants of Plymouth."

Tracing his future, chronologically, we find: In 1643 William Twining is included in a "list of those able to bear arms" at Yarmouth. The Y. records 1643-5 rank him among the militia, which consisted of fifty soldiers. In 1645, he was one of five oldiers sent out against the Naragansetts. (Ply. Col. Rec., Vol. II, page 91). The next heard of him is at *Eastham, where Savage says he removed soon after being at Y. 1643. As Governor Thomas Prentice went to E. 1644, it is more than likely William followed soon after 1645. The first mention found of him at E. is taken from the original book of records (Vol. 2) of Eastham, wherein he is put down as constable, June 5, 1651; however the Ply. Records (Vol. 2, p. 167), say "elected Constable Eastham 5 June, 1651, William Twining, Sr." It is not certain therefore that the Sr. was meant in the former, although he was doubtless intended in both entries.

*Eastham, called Nauset prior to 1651, in its original form, is a township of Barnstable County, Mass., having the Atlantic Ocean on the East, 15 miles long and $2\frac{1}{2}$ wide: present length 6 miles. It is almost a continuous plain; soil sandy, requiring much labor. Portions of it yield large crops. Fresh water ponds and several creeks exist in the township. Excepting a tract of oaks and pines about $\frac{1}{2}$ mile wide, no wood remains in the Tp. Business is agricultural and maritime. Fishing has disappeared entirely. The public buildings are four school houses, a town hall and Methodist Meeting house. The old Cong. Church has become extinct, after an existence of more than two centuries. Settlement of town began 1644, with 49 souls, who soon built a meeting house 20 ft. sq. with thatched roof and forts in the side of building, for use in case of attack by the Indians. Around this house, near Town Cove, a burial place was laid out, and still enclosed, containing some grave stones.

Rev. Jno. Mayo was the first pastor 1646. Wolves were plenty; the bounty on four killed in town was paid 1655. In 1663 all horses were ordered branded with the letter E., and all persons who stood outside of M. house during public services to be set in the stocks. In 1667, every housekeeper was required to kill a certain number of blackbirds and crows. In 1684, 101 legal voters reported and 500 adult Indians within the parochial charge, 1718, Tp. divided into North and South Parish. In 1758, an inhabitant of the N. Precinct having avowed himself a Baptist, the parish voted to remit his tax for support of the Cong. Ch. In 1765 but four Indians in E. In 1810 a Methodist society was established, shortly before, every inhabitant in the Tp. belonged to the Cong. Ch. These selections from the "Annals of E.," by Dr. Frederick Freeman are made, as very many of the Twinings, who are scattered abroad look back to this "cradle of an honored race," as the place where they themselves "have drawn the principles and habits that have made them prosperous and honored wherever they have gone to seek their fortunes in the wide world." For two centuries this township was made a place of dwelling by some of the descendants of William Twining, but now only a few of the female des. remain.

To the Orleans records is due the statement that William, m. Annie Doane* 1652, and that she d. Feb. 27, 1680.

In 1655, he had granted him, or his purchases confirmed, and under same date we have "propounded to take up their freedom * * * * * William Twining," by which it is presumed the Senior is indicated.

His death occurred at E. April 15, 1659, and he was probably not more than 65 yrs. old, if we may approximate by contemporaneous and circumstantial evidence.

That he was a member of the Congregational Church seems conclusive, yet no facts at all can be given in proof.

No data is at hand regarding his first marriage and it is simply conjecture whether his wife died before he came to "our shores"—probably soon after. Authorities from whom meagre light is drawn on the subject, had no certain knowledge of a second marriage, although Savage does say, "it is not certain that she (Ann) was the mother of Wm. 2nd, as she may have been 2d wife of Wm. 1st."

There is no evidence of any children by this 2d marriage and nothing definitely known of the full fruits of first m. Certain it is he had:

- 1.—2 William (2nd or Jr.), whom it is asserted was probably b. in England and m. Elizabeth Deane.
- 2.—Isabel m. Francis Baker, June 17, 16th. Mr. B. came over in the Planter, in 1635, at the age of 24, from Gt. St Albans, Hertfordshire, Eng.; went from Ply. to †Yarmouth, about 1642, and with the Twinings to E., but returned to Y. where he d. ~~before 1700~~; will made Mch. 4, 1693. The Court Rec. tell us he was a Cooper by trade and that 1648 he was made surveyor of highways for Y.,

† Annie was probably a sister of Dea. John Doane, b. 1590; came from Wales to Ply. 1621, one of the first founders of Eastham, and assistant of Gov. Prence of Ply. 1633. He d. 1685, the head of a numerous and respectable descent, whose genealogy is in preparation by Jno. A. Doane, of Atlanta, Ga.

1653, presented by G. J. "for retailing wine contrary to order of Court;" 1655, likewise, for abusing a servant. In 1657 took oath of fidelity; 1665, fined for breach of peace, and 1680 he sues Abraham Hedge for £12, for tar barrels.

* The early records of Yarmouth, to 1671, are lost.

SECOND GENERATION.

2 William Twining, son of William Sr., was b.

in early part of seventeenth century, Savage says, "probably in Eng.," and died in Newtown, Bucks Co., Pa., Nov. 4, 1703; m. Elizabeth Deane (dau. of *Stephen of Ply., whose wid. m. Josiah Cooke) at E. about 1653, possibly several years sooner. She d. in N. Pa., Dec. 28, 1708. The court records mention him first, June 3, 1652, when he was admitted and sworn; 1652 he was one of the Grand Jury or Enquest; 1667-8 on same, to examine as to a child found dead in the woods, etc.; June 5, 1671, sworn as one of the Grand Enquest.

He was a deacon at the Eastham Church, as early as 1677. Freeman nor Platt, in their histories of Cape Cod, do not mention this fact, however, the old clerk says, under date Feb. 26, 1677, "Deacon Twining and dea. Freeman," "to take and keep a clear account of Mr. Treat's maintenance given him by the town," "Dea. T. and dea. F. to take care about underpinning the house that Mr. Treat now lives in, to see that it is sufficiently done, etc. Again he is alluded to as "deacon Twining" as late as 1681. From old records of E.:—

"May 5, 1693, Granted to Joseph Young, a

* "Stephen Deane of P., one of the first comers, in the Fortune, 1621, built the first corn mill in N. E. 1632; m. about 1627, Elizabeth, dau. of wid. Ring; had Eliz., Miriam and Susanna, and d. Sept. 1634. His wid. m. Josiah Cooke and d. 1687" "Andrew Ring of P. (whose wid. mother made her will there in 1633), came probably about 1629; was freeman 1646. His sister Elizabeth who m. Stephen Deane, was older than Andrew; whether the father came or died in England is not certain."

parcel of land at "Poche,† Capt. Sparrow and William Twining, Sr., to set it out." He was a proprietor of land at "Easton Harbor," and had interest in Drift Whales at the end of the Cape.

In 1695, he and his son 4 William were enumerated among the legal voters of E. Near the latter date, his religious views seem to have underwent a radical change. He has evidently become convinced of Friends' principles and now contemplates removal to the newly settled Province of Penn., where the tenets of Quakerism were maintained in their purity, and freed from the intolerance of New England theology. The records testify that there were Quakers in Eastham, but it cannot be found that they held Monthly Meetings in the town. They doubtless belonged to the Sandwich Society, which was organized very early. Although this Society makes no mention of William's name upon its minutes, it is most probable he became, as also his wife and son Stephen and his family, identified with said Society prior to removal.

1695 is the year in which he bids adieu to the land of the Pilgrims. It marks an important epoch in the family history. Hitherto the name appears to have borne honor to the Cong. Church alone. Up to this date, a period of near six decades, the family was confined on the historical Cape Cod; but now the house is about equally divided, religiously and geographically, and henceforth it is Quaker and Cong. blood flowing in parallel lines from generation to generation.

† "Poche" or 'Pochet,' is the Indian name of that portion of old E., now known as East Orleans. It is a very large territory, almost entirely surrounded by salt water. It is now known to some extent as Pochet. It was a famous resort of the red man, and was very early settled by the whites, on account of the good soil. The old cemetery is just on the border of the locality. The Twinings settled on the Neck. To 'to set out' land—a term used by our early English settlers—meant laying out a parcel."

‡ From about 1670 to 1700 there was a large emigration from different parts of New England to East Jersey, and later to Penna., especially with Quakers, and some other "Heretics,"—on account of the persecution.

"Deacon Twining," now having donned the Quaker garb, speaks the Quaker tongue, becomes the unretaliative friend of the Indian, whom he seeks to elevate. He is in fact a believer and exponent of all that is comprehended in the teachings of Penn, Fox and Barclay. Upon those of his descendants from this new home in the wilderness of Penn., on the banks of the Delaware River, were stamped those newly acquired principles which time nor space have failed to efface.

Owing to inadvertancy, Freeman is led to say that two of William 2^d daughters were the children of WILLIAM 1st and his wife ANNE, namely: ELIZA and ANNE.

This is correctly shown in the subjoined will.

"I, William Twining, of Newtown, in the county of Bucks, and the province of Pennsylvania, having taken into consideration the frailty of this temporal life, being in health of body & of sound and perfect mind and memory, praise be therefore given to Almighty God, do make & ordain this my present last will & testament, in manner and form following (that is to say):

First & principally I commend my soul into the hands of Almighty God, & my body I commit to the Earth, to be decently buried at the discretion of my executors hereafter named, and as touching the disposition of all such temporal estate, as it hath pleased Almighty God, to bestow upon me, I give & dispose thereof as followeth:

First, I will that my debts and funeral charges shall be paid and discharged.

Item. I give unto William, son of Stephen Twining (My Grandchild) yé sum of twenty Pounds, to be paid to him when he shall come to twenty-one years of age, if my wife be dead before he comes to that age, but if she be living I leave it with her, for her use so long as she liveth, and then to be paid at her decease to Said Wm. Twining.

Item. I give unto my son Stephen Twining, my daughter Johanna, my daughter Mahitable, and the two daughters of my daughter Anna Bills (to wit) Anna Bills & Elizabeth Bills, as yé residue of my estate which I have in Penna, after my wife's decease (that is) my mind is, that Anna Bills & Elizabeth Bills, have both but an equal share with my son Stephen & the rest of his sisters.

Item. I give unto my son William Twining (after my wifes decease) all the lands, or the residue that I have lying within the Township of Eastham, and County of Barnstable, in New England, so far as yé* Bound Brook, lying on the South side of the Brook called Bound Brook.

The above will was found in the Philadelphia Register's office, in the Autumn of 1885, where it had evidently lain 180 years, untouched by the hand of a descendant.

Came to Newtown Tp, Bucks Co., Pa., with his family and his father and mother, 1695. Owned 800 acres of land in Bucks Co., besides considerable property in Eastham. Was appointed Overseer and Elder in Society of Friends, 3 mo. 7-1713, and 2-12-1715, respectively. The Mo. M't'g Records show him to have been an active and leading member of the Society, his name appearing very frequently on the meeting minutes.

The following was entered on the Book of Records belonging to Wrightstown M. M't'g, 11 mo. 3-1776, by Joseph Chapman, Clerk:

"The above is a true copy taken out of the Book of Records in Eastham in the County of Barnstable, in the Province of Mass. Bay, in New England, May 31, 1715, by Town Clerk."

Davis' Hist. of Bucks Co., Pa., has the following in regard to Stephen Twining:

"The five hundred acres of Thos. Rowland, extending from Newtown Creek to Neshamony, including the ground the Presby. Church stands upon, was owned by Henry Baker in 1691, who conveyed 248 acres to Job Bunting in June, 1692, and in Oct., 1697, to Stephen Wilson.

1695 Bunting conveyed his acres to Stephen Twining, and in 12 mo 17-1698, Wilson did the same, and Twining now owned the whole tract." In 1703 Stephen owned 690 acres in Newtown. The land on the East of N. was conveyed by S. to his son Eleazer. It is now all gone out of the name and has a large fine residence on the spot where Stephen sat down in his humble log cabin on his first landing on the shores of Penn. In 1707 Stephen again purchased another tract of land, 300 acres, of John Ward, in the Western part of N. Tp. adjoining Wrightstown, which he left his sons Stephen and John, a part of which is still in the name of Aaron Twining, great grandson of 7 John. The Monthly Meetings Rec. tell us that Stephen and Wm. Twining's names were added to a Testimony against selling rum or strong drink to the Indians, dated 4 mo., 3rd, 1699. The same records also show that Friends held meetings at William's house in N., and after his death they were held at Stephen's.

—————WILL—————A true copy.

I, Stephen Twining of Newtowne, in the county of Bucks, in the province of pensilvania, being indisposed of body but of sound disposing minde and memory, praised be god for the same, and calling to minde the uncertainty of this life, I do make and ordaine this my present last will and testament in manner and forme as following (viz):

Very little is known of this steadfast Puritan. His reasons for remaining on the Cape, when his parents, brother Stephen and probably two sisters had gone to Penn., may evidently be found in his unwillingness to compromise the ancestral religion; and he may have been content with that "barren waste" which had produced so many noble men and women, who had truly blessed the world for having lived. Whatever his motives were for not leaving, it remains to his credit that he was a man who transmitted to his descendants those qualities which has made their name an honor wherever they have gone. Not a few of them have filled professions of distinction and the cause of Christianity has been greatly blessed by their devotions. So far as character or intelligence is considered, the reader will determine for himself, as fancy may suggest, while climbing the "genealogical tree," marks of superiority existing between the two great branches. It is certain that the Penn family has largely outran the New England branch in point of numbers. The will of his father gives him all the lands or residue lying within the township of Eastham, lying on the south side of Bound Brook and makes him joint executor of said will. At the time the will was probated William is said to have been "beyond the sea." Just what this means is not clear, possibly he may have visited England. His will was made April 13, 1725, and proved Feb. 11, 1734-5.

THE TWINING FAMILY.

We very much regret having so little regarding our ancestor in direct line. The omission of his death, in the M. M. Records, conveys the idea that he had been previously disowned. By his father's will, he was liberally remembered. A power of attorney, signed by him May 6th, 1742, in which his "loving brother, (7) John Twining of Newtown Tp," is made sole executor of his business, etc., is yet in a good state of preservation, in possession of the compiler. It is a nicely executed document in which the name of Nathaniel Twining is signed in a bold but legible hand.

The farm north and adjoining was owned by his brother, 12 Benjamin. m. *Mary Jenks, daughter of Thomas and Mercy (Wildman) Oct. 26, 1752. She was b. April 20, 1733; d. 1803. The Middletown M. M. Records has the following relating to their marriage:

"At M. Mo M't'g 14th of 9mo 1752 Samuel Twining & Mary Jenks, declared their intentions of marriage for the 'first time' & at the M't'g held the 5th of 10mo, they appeared the '2d time', signifying their intentions of m. with each other, & the said Samuel having produced a certificate from Wrightstown Mo. M't'g, to the satisfaction of Friends, they are left at liberty to consummate their said intentions when they see convenient."

The Comm. appt'd for the purpose reported to the meeting of 11mo 2d 1752 that the marriage was "decently accomplished on 26 day of last mo."

For some trivial offense he was disowned from among Friends July 8, 1766, and therefore the date of his death is not mentioned in the above named records.

He was a prominent lawyer, teacher, writer, and traveler in Eastern Countries. Extracts from a tribute to his memory by E. P. Jones, a prominent lawyer of Pittsburgh, Penn.

"Although he was not a native of Pittsburgh, still he has spent the greater portion of his useful life amongst us, and very many of his former pupils, who are to be found among the most accomplished and fashionable ladies of this community, will be pained to hear of his demise. He was a fine scholar, a gentleman, and an honest man, the noblest work of God. He was an accurate writer of fine cultivated classical taste, as has been fully demonstrated by his many literary productions that have been published during the last twenty-five years.

He was a finished teacher, thorough in all he taught. He was principal for a number of years of one of the best female Academys we ever had in the city, and although he was most strictly thorough with all his scholars, they all loved, honored, and esteemed him * * * * *

He was raised a Quaker, but died a member of the Episcopal Church. He died as he had lived, beloved by all who knew him."

"Leaves have their time to fall
 And flowers to wither at the North-wind's breath,
 And Stars to set—but all, Thou hast all seasons
 For thine own, O Death!"

Oct. 12, 1828, aged 87 years. He was a corporal in Cap't. Sam. Knowle's company in 1758, in the war between France and the Provinces. Was a member of Orleans (So. Church) Cong. Ch. before 1773. Was a carpenter by occupation, as is evident from a contract extant, for building a house for his cousin, 21 Prince Twining of E., dated April 22, 1772. He also built the residence now owned by Homer P. Twining, of New Boston, Mass.

In 1783 he conveyed his house and lands in Orleans to Simeon Higgins, and with his brother, 18 Elijah, settled in Granville (1810 Tolland), Mass., where they purchased an extensive tract of land upon which they lived the rest of their days.

In 1795 the Cong. meeting house was built, and in 1797 the West Granville (now Tolland) Cong. Church was organized, of which Thomas was chosen deacon, and was afterwards known as "Deacon Thomas Twining."

He and his wife Anna were very puritanical in observing the Sabbath; she was a great Bible reader, and it is said, read in a singing tone, while the droppings from her pipe burned little holes in her dresses. Although his material circumstances were abundant for one of those days, his brother Elijah seems to have possessed the considerably most property.

The grave stones of these two grandly noble brothers yet stand in the Tolland graveyard, where lay many of the children and grandchildren of each 18 Elijah Twining, son of 8 William, b. Nov. 4, 1741, E; d. Oct. 2, 1802, Tolland; m. Oct., 1762—3, Loise or Louis Rogers (dau. of Judah Rogers, who d. 1773, and whose wife was a Nickerson); d. April 30, 1815, aged 71 years.

Came to Granville, Mass., in the spring of 1783; rolled up a log hut and began to clear the land, and in the fall returned for his family. He went down and back from the Cape, three times on foot. On one of these "tramps" it is said he took $6,000 in specie, and on the way called at a tavern where he thrust his money bag in a corner. A darkey in sweeping the floor had occasion to move the money, but to his credit it is said he only looked up and a smile encircled his dusky face. Such a union of confidence and recklessness would be hard to find in these days of vigilance. His dinner cost 12½ cents.

Wolves and bear were plenty and could be heard paddling in the brook just at the foot of the hill on which the log house stood. They drove the stacks of grain full of "spikes" to keep out the wolves. At the Cape, their hay was poled upon the uplands and there left to have the rains wash the salt out of them. In consequence of this excessive saltiness, the cattle they raised were small in stature. Usually four pairs of cattle were attached to a plow, and they would go around a piece of land just seven times in a day, so large were the pieces plowed. Besides property at Eastham, Elijah owned about 2,000 acres at Granville. During his residence at E. he was at one time Constable and Collector. He was a very accurate and systematic business man, whose judgment was good and word was law.

Member of Orleans Church (Cong.) before 1773.

It is said he gave more than any other member to his Church.

Deeded his property to his children in 1800.

She commenced preaching when about 19 years of age and traveled much before and after m.; was an invalid for many years; author of religious works. After his wife's decease, 1827, Stephen returned from Troy to Bucks Co.

ISSUE:

- 1.—44 Charles, b. Troy, Aug. 9, 1820; m. Eliz. West.
- 2.—Sarah, m. Isaac Simpson, son of Jno.; moved from Bucks to Independence, Kan., where he died. They had two sons, John and Willet, both dead; wid. res. (1887) in Independence.

23 Thomas Twining, son of 11 Samuel; b. Aug. 20, 1753, Wrightstown; d. Jan. 29, 1838, North Boston (Podunk), Erie Co., N. Y.; m. Sarah, dau. of Samuel Crook,* Sept. 27, 1781.

* Samuel Crook was des. from John Crook, a celebrated Quaker preacher and writer, b. 1617, d. 2-26-1699, at Sewel, in Bedford, Eng., where he was b. (Friend's Lib. Vol. 12, 1849.)

Nathan C., a son of Samuel, was killed at the battle of Lake Erie, on the flag ship Lawrence.

Gen. Crook of the U. S. Army is said to be closely related to this Samuel.

Moved to Quakertown, N. J., where he took a certificate of membership from the Middletown, Pa., to the Kingswood, N. J., Mo. M't'g (now Quakertown), dated 1st day, 2nd mo., 1781, wherein he is said to be free from marriage engagements and a faithful attendant of Friends' Meetings.

He purchased July 3, 1793, a farm of 140 acres, of "James Parker and Gertrude, his wife," for £388, within two miles of Q.

On this beautiful *farm he erected a grist and fulling mill. Was a clothier by trade and owned considerable property for one in his day, being worth $16,000, all gained by his own industry. Refusing to bear arms, he was called a Tory, was shot at during the Revolution and compelled to flee.

* "The original Twining property contained 140 acres, mostly timber. The grist mill (stone) was built by "Tommy;" it is in good condition, and rents for $500 dollars. The old stone buildings across the way was Tommy's Fulling Mill. It is still in good condition and is used as a dwelling."

"The old Twining house stands as firm as a rock, and with the very extensive additions (built since), it is one of the most imposing farm houses in this region. The old "grandfather's clock," which was purchased at Tommy Twining's vendue, still stands in the corner of the room where it stood 90 years ago. Was probably made in England, and is in good condition, both in body and mind, and will doubtless number the days and hours for many generations to come. Above the dial the Crescent moon was visible, indicating that dark nights will soon be followed by moonlight nights, balmy breezes, frog concerts, and Spring's fresh budding hours."

"People wondered that Tommy T. wanted to sell such a valuable property. But he was anxious to move to the 'Holland Purchase.' The property is very valuable. Several hundred acres have been added to the original purchase. An oil mill has been built on the creek below the grist mill, besides several dwellings and shops."

"Quakertown is now an old place, but when the first settlement was made is not known. There is one old homestead in the Wilson family with a stone house that bears the date 1734, on its gable: the walls are three feet thick."

"There was a Quaker Church built in Q. in 1744, on the site of an old

In 1811 he moved with his family to North Boston, Erie Co., N. Y., where he purchased 500 acres of land, and was engaged the remainder of his life in farming.

The Kingwood M. M. granted him, his wife Sarah and two children, Thomas and Selinda, certificates of removal to Pelham, Upper Canada, (prob. nearest M. M.), dated Sept. 12, 1811. John and Charles, sons, were granted similar letters of same place and date.

He was a tall man, heavy set, very pleasant in appearance and very much of a business turn. Wife, Sarah, d. Mch 28, 1841. Her father done business with Thomas at Q.

meeting house that was consumed by fire. I well remember attending the meeting in my younger days and the countenances of the old patriarchs, who sat in the "gallery," are still fresh in my memory. It was an antiquated structure with double roof and immense chimney, and afforded quarters for soldiers during the Revolution, and there were many marks on the floor, caused by their Camp Kettles being removed from the immense fire place where the cooking was done."

"The Graveyard is enclosed by a moss grown wall which has stood for nearly two centuries. It is known as the 'Old Quaker buying ground of Revolutionary Memory.' In a corner obscure and alone is a grave with a marble tombstone and the letters almost obliterated. It is the grave of 'Morris Robeson Esq.,' grandfather of the late Sec. of the Navy under Grant." (John Laing of Quakertown, N. J.)

"A railroad is now (1890) in course of construction through the property and it is probable that the iron horse will invade the old hamlet during the coming summer and it may have a boom and its long Rip Van Winkle sleep come to an end."

Disowned from among Friends, Bucks county, Pa., 4 mo., 4th, 1782, for training with the militia, but it is probable he was subsequently restored, as his home at Union was a resort for Friends and because his des. so declare. Married Becca Bennett Jan. 19, 1786; b. Aug. 8, 1767; d. Feb. 17, 1854. Removed from Bucks county to Quakertown, N. J., where he was engaged in the fulling business, at one time with a "Mr. Stout," and evidently again with his brother 23 Thomas. In the year 1821 he settled at Union, Broome county, N. Y., where he was preceeded by his son William, who had bought a farm there. At this date of removal he evidently lived in Redington tp., Hunterdon Co., N. J. He was a "thick, heavy-set man, and very pleasant looking," and in his latter days, when very feeble, it is said he was often heard, after retiring, to repeat in trembling tones the Lord's Prayer. The old family Bible from which the family records are obtained, is now in possession of Charles Cleveland, of Broome county, N. Y., a connection.

34 William Twining, son of 17 Thomas, b. Dec. 14, 1769, Eastham; d. Nov. 22, 1842, Tolland; m. Rebecca Brown, who d. Nov. 14, 1857, aged 82 years. Owned an extensive *farm in Tolland, Mass. Brought his bride of seventeen to their house on a pavillion the day they were m. Both lived and died in this house, wherein all their children were born and lived to manhood and womanhood. In 1810 was representative to the general court at Boston. Wife, Rebecca, was a sister of Col. Sanford Brown, who kept hotel at the foot of Tolland Mt.; family all Presbyterians.

*Mrs. Marcus Filley's account of her grandfather's (34 Wm.) homestead at Tolland, Mass.:

"'How in the name of wonder,' an expression of his, how he ever built a home in that wild, rough, out-of-the-way place, is more than I can imagine. Grandmother used to tell me that when they first lived there, bears and panthers would prowl around the house at night; the men were afraid to go out without their guns after dark. Their house was large—two or three kitchens with great, large fire places, (the children could sit in one corner). In the second story of the house was a large room for spinning and weaving; there was a large loom there. I think it is there now (1886); both wool and flax was manufactured in cloth for family use."

"G. F. had a large farm; raised horses and cattle. They kept about 30 or 40 cows; milking time was a busy one; every member of the family had a certain number of cows, every cow had a name, and the large dairy-room, with its churns and cheese presses, was a place of interest. He owned a saw mill, grist mill and dry goods store. In their large house, well filled as it was in my younger days, there was happiness; everything showed contentment and prosperity. But what a cold place in winter!—a house built upon a mountain. One could look off at the West five miles—cold and bleak, not a stove in the house. Every morning after breakfast (a fire built one morning would last until the next, if it did go out the tinder box was handy) the men would go out, and, with a crow-bar, roll in logs covered with snow; first would come a great back-log that would be rolled into its place; then another; then great chips on top of the logs; then the coals that had been left over would be put among the chips (all this time doors open, cold coming in), then the bellows were used until the fire was well started, and with all the exposure no one took cold. There was health and wealth on that mountain."

"His was an earnest, toiling, struggling life, busy and full of good works. Overlapping the fourth generation from his birth, accumulated experiences had given him wisdom rarely excelled. The honored recipient of a public office for fourteen successive years, he grew in public favor and trust. A volunteer of the 1812 war; a pioneer in western N. Y., he felled the forest and reared with his own hands shelter for his increasing family. His life four times in jeopardy, once from fire, twice from the assassin, and oft in battle, he was graciously spared to rear his family and bless his friends. Powerful in debate, eloquent in conversation, an inveterate hater of slavery, he exerted all his influence to its downfall and extinction."

Came with his father to western N. Y., where he followed farming until Aug., 1844, when he settled near Waterloo, Wis., where he lived the remainder of his life. Owned much land. A remarkably strong and healthy man through life: Quaker.

47 Thomas Twining, son of 23 Thomas; b. Jan. 13, 1801, Quakertown, N. J.; m. Sarah, dau. of *Ben. and Rachel Kester, Sept. 27, 1820; b. Dec. 19, 1799; d. near Huntington, Ind., Dec. 5, 1843

* Ben. Kester, who m. Rachel, dau. of Stephen and Hannah Hambleton, was a son of Samuel Kester, b. Sept. 26, 1737; d. M'ch 8, 1804, and of Susan Webster, his wife, b. Oct. 11, 1736; d. Feb. 24, 1832.

Of Samuel Kester, we learn from the Hambleton Genealogy that one dau., Sarah, m. Joseph Palmer, of Chester Co., Pa., and a dau., Susannah, m. Joseph Stevenson; lived at Rahway, N. J., and d. there a few years since in her 99th year.

He was of German descent, lived near Quakertown, N. J., and he and his family were prominent members of that Monthly Meeting.

"Skinner Webster, who m. Jane, a sister of Rachel above mentioned, and several Websters, who moved to Erie Co., N. Y., and there intermarried with Hambletons, were closely related to Susannah Webster above named."

Came with his parents to North Boston (Podunk), Erie Co., N. Y., 1811. At this place he m., reared his family, farmed, kept store, practiced medicine (Tompsonian system), etc. Moved with his family to Huntington, Ind., on the Wabash, where he bought 200 acres of choice land in the "forks" of the Wabash and Little rivers, a famous resort and place of council for Red men. Started by overland Sept. 20, '41, arriving there Oct. 9th following.

The land at this date is valuable, being underlaid with the best of limestone; the scenery is picturesque. At that date H. was a mere hamlet of log huts, Indians numerous, and wild game abounded. In 1890 the town has become a place of 8,000, extending to the "old homestead." Because of the dreaded "fever and ague" he became sick of the country, and in 1846-7 returned to N. Y., where he has been engaged in the dairy business on his farm in North Collins Tp., Erie Co., N. Y.; P. O. Lawton Station. Though just passing to his 90th milestone, his health is good for one of extreme age.

Became lame in the knee in his younger days and remained so during life. A slender man, above the medium height, active, well informed, ready conversationalist and much devoted to Friend's principles (orthodox), which he occasionally preached in latter life. Was also custodian of meeting records.

The compiler of these records has frequently seen grandfather ride to his first and fourth day meetings, some three miles away, through the storm and bitter cold to worship with the "two or three" equally loyal ones who had gathered to uphold the cherished tenets of Quakerism.

Civil engineer; Prof. Math. Middlebury Coll., Vt., some years; class-mate and intimate friend of President Woolsey and Rev. Leonard Bacon, D.D. Associate with Profs. Silliman and Olmsted in scientific observations.

From the New York Independent is the following extract:

"The death of Prof. A. C. Twining ends a long life of varied and brilliant achievements, and which was even richer and more beautiful in richness and fruitfulness of Christian character. Prof. Twining is known among astronomers as the author of the cosmic theory of the meteors. As a civil engineer he was engaged as chief or controlling engineer on every line running out of New Haven on the northern roads through Vermont, on the Lake Shore, the Cleveland, Columbus and Pittsburg and various roads out of Chicago, including the Rock Island and the old Milwaukee line.

"As an inventor he pioneered to a successful result the industrial manufacture of artificial ice.

"For nine years he served as Professor of Math. and Astronomy in Middlebury Coll., and while thus residing in Vt. was active in the Temperance Reform, into which he entered with energy as the Chairman of the State Temperance Committee. In political matters he took deep interest as one of the promoters of the original movements which issued in the foundation of the Republican party.

"He was one of the projectors of the famous Conn. letter to President Buchanan. He was deeply interested in constitutional questions, a study which culminated in his lectures on the Constitution of the United States in Yale Law School. In questions of theology and philosophy he was at home and discussed them with bold vigor and subtle ingenuity. On his friends, the beauty of his face and head, the striking and winning courtesy of his manner, the simplicity of his Christian character made a lasting impression, while few that ever met him even casually have failed to notice that to him it was given to invite and receive the spiritual confidence of others, and to give them solid and permanent assistance where there are few to attempt it and still fewer to succeed."

From the Wisconsin Ed. Record the following extracts are obtained relating to our subject:

"Among the most prominent of Wisconsin's educators and teachers is Prof. Nathan C. Twining, of Monroe, Wis. Having received a thorough academic, as well as collegiate education, he stands second to none in his profession. He has wielded a great influence in the State in all the public school matters, engraving his ideas not only on the minds of teachers, but has been influential in giving shape to their ideas, thus making himself felt throughout the length and breadth of the State.

"He has been regarded for years as the best mathematical teacher in the State, having for eight years held the chair of M. th. in Milton Coll. *
 * * * * * He has given his life energies to schools of the State, having spent his time from Sept., 1873, to June, 1886, in the public schools of Monroe, Wis. He raised them to the highest rank, his school being regarded at the State University as the very best school in the State for fitting young men and women to enter upon an advanced course of university education.

"Having spent years in study of Latin and Greek, and his vacations in extensive travel, he has long held the foremost place also as a thorough instructor in classical languages, history and sciences.

"During the war of the States he held the position of captain in the 40th Reg. Wis. Vol. Inf., Co. C, being also a member of the 13th Vol.

"In person tall, finely developed, health robust, ambition that knoweth no defeat. Reared a Quaker, he strictly adheres to their strict code of morals. Absolutely free from the use of all narcotics, he is a firm and unflinching advocate of individual temperance prohibition.

"As an author and writer he stands amongst the foremost of his associates. His published papers on astronomy, language and pedagogics, science and current topics have been well received and placed in the educational archives of the State."

In 1887 he took charge of the Riverside, Cal., schools, where he also owns a vineyard and orange grove. (See portrait page 86)
