VOLUME I

Thomas Walter Thornhill and Martha Opal Stringer
Authors of the Book

This letter was written by the father of T. Walter Thornhill asking his mother, Bettie Simmons, for her hand in marriage:

Hyattsville, Miss. March the 13th 1884
Dear Miss Bettie Simmons

I have frequently endeavored to address you personally on the subject of this letter but I invariably found my heart to fail which circumstance I attribute to the dread of an unfavorable answer as my happiness through life depends upon the possession of your hand. Be assured that in making this proposal I now do it as the result of mature deliberation and that your hand would be valuable only if accompanied by your heart you are aware that I have sufficient to ensure comfort of life I am also happy to say that my character is such that it will bear the strictest investigation and my family is respectable Should you therefore venture to entrust yourself to my protection every hour of my life shall be devoted to the promotion of your happiness and a faithful discharge of the duties of a good and affectionate husband. I shall wait anxiously for your reply to this letter with the greatest anxiety and

Dear Miss your devoted Lover

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

T. Walter Thornhill born January 8, 1887 in Pike County, Mississippi, spent his boyhood on a farm near Tylertown, Mississippi. He received the greatest portion of his schooling in a one room country school. His father died when T. Walter was twenty years of age. Being the oldest son he assumed the responsibility of running the farm and making provision for his mother and the other living children still at home. His older sister had already married.

On February 1, 1911 he married Martha Opal Stringer. They settled one mile from his Mother's home where they lived and raised seven children, two died in infancy, one at the age of two.

It is a desire of T. Walter Thornhill for this book to remain as is and if and when revised by adding future generations this portion remain as at the beginning.

Mr. Thornhill was treasurer for Kentwood Dairy Products Branch Office in Tylertown at one time and also worked for the Government for eight years on the Farm Program for County of Walthall.

T. Walter's mother died leaving the estate to be settled between the children, and he bought the old home where he and his wife live now. They rebuilt and remodeled the old home in 1954. On February 1, 1965 they will celebrate their 54th year of marriage.

T. Walter Thornhill was a farmer of cotton, and raised cattle, had a dairy and truck farm. He retired at the age of 70. He began gathering information for this book in 1961 by writing relatives for information, going to cemeteries for dates of birth and death and searching through books and Bibles owned by different relatives. This was quite an enjoyable undertaking, in a way, for he met relatives he had never seen, made new friends and renewed old acquaintances. He concluded his research of information sooner than intended, but due to failing eyesight it was necessary for him to have this information put into print. We must say his wife devoted much time to the writing of this book.
