P R E F A C E .

THE plan of this work is to give every descendant of Adam Todd ; and when the name changes by marriage, the descendants in that line will be carried on, down to the latest born, in order that the connection may be the more easily traced ; in other cases every descendant's name will be found in its appropriate place, each generation being completed before taking up the succeeding.

The system of numbering is simple, the number being given when the name to which it belongs first appears, among the children of his or her parents, and it is repeated when the sketch of his or her life is given, and at each recurrence of the name.

To prevent confusion, small numbers are placed above and at the left of each name, to indicate the generation, counting in each case from ¹Adam Todd. It is intended, as far as possible, to give a brief biography of every descendant, and in the notes, also, the ancestry of each one marrying into the family, so that every descendant may have in one volume, not only that branch of his or her ancestry of which this book properly treats, but also the other branches, annexed in the notes, and occurring at the foot of the page on which the union appears.

These facts when published will be accessible to all and in no danger of being lost as is often the case, even with names, when trusted to a family record alone.

It is impossible to specify all to whom I am indebted for assistance in compiling this work. Families who have aided me most, will be treated most at length of necessity, and where little is given, my apology must be their omission to furnish me with that, which can be obtained often only from the privacy of the family record.

This work was undertaken some years since, with a view to preserve the names of those who are now forgotten, save by a few who will soon be removed from among us, and it is published now hoping that many others may take pleasure in reading, what the author has given so much time and trouble to collecting.

The work must be necessarily defective, but any errors, which may be noticed, will be rectified, if those who may detect them, will send the corrections to the author.

Parties having facts, dates of birth, marriage or death of any descendant, also any portion of the history, or incident of interest, or pedigree, or genealogy of any person who has married into the family, are requested to send the same to the undersigned address, to be incorporated into the work, or any future edition. Each one's reward will be found in securing his own, as full and complete as the other branches of descendants.

Nearly every name can be traced to its derivation, as in this case "Tod" is a Scotch word signifying "fox," the additional letter is added perhaps for appearance, but more probably to distinguish the human Todd from the brute tod; and it will be observed that the additional letter in this, as in other cases, did not alter the pronunciation, and usually consisted in doubling the final consonant, or an addition of a final e. But the recent usage has been to cut off such letters as were considered superfluous, and in most names we find both spellings, as in this case, showing the conservatives and radicals (or economists), in the matter of family names. However, contraction is not as common in this name as in most others, as an instance—there were fifteen of the name of Todd among the graduates of Yale College previous to 1865, the first being of the class of 1727, and the last of 1855. In the same period, there has been but one Tod, who was of the class of 1795. These were mostly, if not all, of the two New England families mentioned below. As most of the original settlers of New England were from old England, I think it is probable that both the New Haven and Rowley families were of English extraction, though the parent source was undoubtedly Scotland, as shown by the name. The English Todds seem to have been of Sturmer, in Essex Co., of whom Edmondston gives two kinds of coat armor, which, from their similarity, show that it is the same family. They are: 1st, "Ar 3 wolves' heads coupé gu.; crest—A wolf sejant proper." 2d, "Ar. 3 foxes' heads coupé gu.; crest—A fox running away with a goose over his back, all proper.' The other arms named by Edmondston, is of Bray, in Berkshire, described as follows : " Sa. 2 bars wavy betw. 3 martlets or.; crest—A wolf's head or. collared flory counter flory gu." I have met this name in Berry's books on Essex and Berks counties, but have never noticed it in any of the others, and it probably was not common at an early day, save in these two.

Adam Todd, of whose descendants this book treats, was from Scotland, and wore the kilt and plaid, even after coming to New York. Colonel W. W. Todd, and his sister Sarah Todd, remember to have heard their mother say she "saw him, and he wore the kilt and plaid."

It will be observed that no attempt has been made to establish a Trans-Atlantic pedigree, and American genealogies are considered complete without going beyond the emigrant who first settled here. What I have said in relation to the English branch, is for the benefit of those who may be interested in that branch.

From what I have said before, it will be seen that I do not claim that Adam Todd was the only one, or even the first of the name, who came to this country. Christopher Todd was one of the original settlers of New Haven, Conn., in 1639, with his wife Grace. He was a proprietor there in 1685, and died in 1686. There are descendants of his still living in New Haven. Christopher and Grace had

John, baptized Dec. 1642.—He had six children.
 Samuel, " Apl. 29, 1645.—He had seven children.
 Mary, " Sept. 19, 1647.
 Grace, born Dec. 15, 1650.
 Michael, " June 18, 1653.
 Mercy, " Feb. 18, 1656.

There was another settler of New England, named John Todd, who was of Charlestown, 1637, settler of Rowley, Mass., where he was Representative in the General Court, 1664 and 1686. His wife's name was Susanna, and they had the following children, viz.:

John, born 1655.—Left descendants.
 Catharine, born 1658.
 Thomas, born 1665.
 Timothy, born 1668.
 Samuel, born 1670.—Left descendants.
 James, born 1672.

There was another Todd family in Westmoreland Co., Penn., though this may have been a branch of one of the two New England families. Mrs. Todd, who married James Madison, and William Todd, Delegate to the Pennsylvania Convention of 1787, which adopted the Federal Constitution, were both of this family; and it is supposed the Todd family into which President Lincoln married is also a branch of this family, which had emigrated into Kentucky.

The abbreviations used in this volume will not be numerous. Besides the common abbreviations of months and titles, the following will be used, i. e. :

Born	will be represented by	b.
Baptized	"	bapt.
Died	"	d.
Married	"	m.
Marriage bond	"	M. B.
Father	"	f.
Son	"	s.
Daughter	"	dau.

It is also necessary to explain that in the Eastern States the Government consisted of a Governor, Council of Deputies, and a General Court, abbreviated as follows :

Deputy Governors and Councillors by . . . Dep.
 Representatives in the General Court by . . Rep.

Additional blank pages will be added to each volume ; and it is hoped that each family will continue its own record, without interruption. Every note thus made will add to the general interest of the book, and may be thus preserved for some future compiler of another generation.

Most authors seem to think, that in putting out a genealogy they must enter into a long argument in its favor, and make countless excuses for having undertaken it. If I am to die and be forgotten, what matters it if I live well or ill ? My life might be represented by the saying " Let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we die ;" but if my kindred are to have my life, just as it is, good or bad, always on their tables, it behooves me to lead more than a brute existence. I may say this undertaking was a duty ; I must say it has been a satisfaction. I apologize to no one, being quite sure that he that has no interest in it will leave it alone ; and having aimed at the advantage of others, not myself, I shall be entirely satisfied if my time and labor shall result in giving to a few of my kindred more information of, and interest in, their ancestors, and am convinced that such knowledge will ever be beneficial to them.

In completing this work, let me say to the descendants, I claim for you no greatness, save a virtuous and honest parentage. May future generations keep up the standard in these respects, whatever they may do in others ; and may he who takes up the thread of this history, find you have not learned to be great, unless, at the same time, you have continued to be good.

TODD GENEALOGY.

1. ¹ADAM TODD was b. in Scotland, probably in the Highlands (as he wore the dress), in the latter part of the 16th, or about the commencement of the 17th century. I have never discovered the year in which he came to America, or whether he was married before coming. He was probably married before the marriage to Miss Sarah Cox, Aug. 8, 1744, which I find in the MS. records of the Dutch Church, of New York, because the M. B. of his dau. Margaret is dated 1756, and her eldest dau. was b. 1758 and m. 1779; therefore, as his eldest dau. was b. 1736, he must have been m. 1735, and this wife may have d. very soon, for the next child was b. 1746, which is after the marriage recorded above.

Sarah Cox was b. 1716, and was dau. of Mrs. Ann Cox, b. Wilmington, Del., 1677. After her dau's marriage, she m. 2d Mr. Wm. Sloo, and had a dau., Jane, who was, therefore, a half sister of Mrs. Todd. Jane Sloo m. Henry Spingler whose great farm was originally part of the Brevoort farm, (the present Union Square and vicinity.) She had one dau., who married Mr. Van Orden; and they had one daughter, who m. Col. Van Buren.

Mrs. Ann Cox d. in N. Y. 1786, aged 108 years and 6 months.

Adam and Sarah were m. in the Dutch Church, and lived at No. 91 Queen st. He d. about 1765 or 1769.

Mrs. Adam Todd left town when the British took possession of the city; but hearing that the servant, whom she left in her house, was passing herself off as the owner and taking boarders, she returned and "cleared the ranche," and remained through the rest of the war. The Quaker Meeting House was next door north of her house, in Queen st., and was used as a prison hospital during the war, and she often went in to cook for and nurse the sick. The following account is taken from Mrs. Ellet's "Women of the Revolution," I give it, as far as taken, verbatim:

"Mrs. Todd, on her removal to the city, had been obliged, for a time, to take up her residence in a cooper's shop. A member of Congress, with whom she was acquainted, requested her to occupy a house belonging to him; but her removal thither seemed to give offence. A party of soldiers came the same night, plundered the house of several articles, and then seating themselves at the table, ordered supper. After drinking their punch, they would toss the cups and glasses they had emptied to the ceiling, breaking them to pieces. They would not permit the terrified women to leave the room, but compelled them to witness their brutal revelry. On their demand that the mistress of the house should give them a toast, she replied 'Why, we eat toast!' with so much simplicity, that supposing her really ignorant of their meaning, they did not insist further."

Her ingenuity in thus avoiding the necessity of pledging her enemies, reminds one of the lady who was asked by the British troops, while in her own house, to give them a toast, but refused, and they insisting she finally yielded, saying, "Well, then, here's the baker's dozen;" but her unruly guests were too far gone to see in this the "The Thirteen Colonies."

Once, the Hessians plundered the house of Mrs. Todd, heaped her china together, and broke it in one crash; then went to Mrs. Whetten's to finish their work. The ruffians snatched a handkerchief from the neck of her daughter Margaret (afterwards Mrs. Dean), for the purpose of tying up various articles they had found about the house. The young girl was crying with indignation and fright, when an officer who entered asked what was the matter? "The Hessians are plundering us," was the answer. "And what are you?" demanded the officer. "We are Whigs," replied the girl, but terrified by his fierce scowl and angry exclamations, she added, "I am so confused, I knew not what I said, sir; we are friends to government." This little ruse saved the house from spoliation; the officer called off his men, who had taken as yet but little, and the family was left in peace. On another occasion, when the soldiers were robbing the house of Mrs. Todd's daughter, Mrs. Whetten, a British officer interposed, beating off his men with his own sword.

One day, returning from their grandmother's, Mrs. Todd's, two of the daughters of Mrs. W. (probably Sarah, afterwards Mrs. Brevoort, and Margaret, afterwards Mrs. Dean), were witnesses to a hostile encounter. Meeting an American captain of their acquaintance, they invited him home to dinner. They were watched by a red-coat in an adjoining field, who presently leaped the fence and advanced towards the captain. Both fired, and then closed in a struggle. In a few minutes, several other British came up. Some Whigs who were cooking provisions in an orchard near at hand, hastened to join the fray, and a skirmish took place in presence of the frightened girls, who were glad, as soon as they could, to escape to the shelter of their home.

The following are copies from the office of the Register of Deeds, N. Y. city:

He had emigrated to this country when a boy, without his parents, before the French war; and after having commanded vessels trading with the West Indies, settled in N. Y. as a merchant. At the breaking out of the war with Great Britain, he was the owner of several vessels, which he sold, investing the greater part of the proceeds in the paper issues of the State Government and Congress. When the British ship "Asia" fired upon the city, Aug. 23, 1776, he took the alarm, like many of the inhabitants, and removed with his family to New Rochelle. Here, so far from finding a refuge from the perils of war, they soon discovered themselves to be in a situation of even greater danger.

These facts are mostly from Mrs. Ellet's excellent book on "The Women of the Revolution," in which she has gathered the facts relative to Mrs. W. which occur in this sketch, with a few exceptions.

After the battle of Long Island, and the occupation of N. Y. by the enemy (1776), the American forces contending the ground from one post to another, were for some time stationed within a few miles of the village, near which the troops of Lord Howe were posted. The house of Capt. W. was thus midway between the hostile lines; and during the movement of the two armies towards White Plains, devastation and famine marked the whole region through which they passed.

Scaled and delivered in presence of

WILLIAM WHEITON, [L.S.]
THOMAS DORAN, [L.S.]

Whetten was a zealous patriot, though prevented by infirm health from taking any active part; yet he was often constrained to entertain Loyalists as well as Whigs. The alternate visits of friends and foes, talking of the news of the day, or sitting at the table spread by the liberal providence of Mrs. W., gave rise occasionally to singular encounters. Mrs. W. was perhaps the first to discover that the rumors about the Hessians might be exaggerated, and that these mercenaries were sometimes less to be dreaded than soldiers speaking the English language. Observing, one day, that black colors were suddenly hoisted in an adjacent field, she asked a British officer, who chanced to come in, what it meant. "Heaven help you, madam; a Hessian camp is to be set up there," was the reply, but it turned out better than was anticipated. A good feeling was speedily established between her and the Hessians, who came almost daily to the house; for her acquaintance with the Low Dutch dialect, then familiarly spoken by many families in N. Y., enabled her to converse readily with them, in consequence of which her house was exempted from depredation to which many of her neighbors were subjected, and she was sometimes enabled to save their property from destruction. She often corrected the errors of these foreigners respecting her country. At one time, hearing one of them boast that the next day they would be in Philadelphia, she informed him that two rivers were to be crossed and a long journey accomplished before they could reach that city. The village of New Rochelle suffered by incursions of the enemy from the commencement of the war. At one time, when it was laid waste, the house of Capt. W. escaped destruction, being protected by a guard set by the Hessian General, at that time quartered in it.

Mrs. W., however, not trusting entirely to the enemy's favor, had sent away several articles of value for concealment. A family near them, compelled to fly and leave a dying father in their house, entreated her to take care of the helpless invalid, and, if possible, save their property from the rapacious soldiers. The sacred trust was accepted and fulfilled; but she was not able to protect all the articles left by the fugitives. An iron chest that stood on the piazza was plundered while the old man was expiring, and while Mrs. W. and her daughters were caring for him. The following evening, Mrs. W. requested her daughters to go to the place where her store had been deposited, at some distance, for clean sheets to furnish a bed for the Hessian officer. The young girls objected, expressing the opinion that what they had was good enough for their unwelcome guest, supposing that the officer, who was present, could not understand English. The discussion, after being continued for some time, was ended by the officer saying: "Do not trouble yourself, madam; straw is a good enough bed for a soldier." There was no more delay in procuring the sheets. On one occasion, when English soldiers came to the house to demand if any rebels were harbored in it, the Hessians broke into the cellar and carried off a cask of cider. On another occasion, after the family had retired for the night, Mrs. W. was awakened by a noise without, and called her husband, supposing that some of the Americans had come to the village for provisions. The captain rose, and going to open the door, was assailed by oaths and cries from British soldiers demanding entrance. To the enquiry, "Are you kingsman or rebel?" he replied, "I am a friend to humanity." The intruders spread themselves through the house, to seize whatever plunder they might find. Several came into the chamber of Mrs. Whetten, who was keeping guard over her infant lying asleep on a pillow. They rudely snatched the pillow, throwing off the child on the floor, and demanded money. The mother had put her purse in one of her pockets, and hid it under the bolster. One of the robbers took a pocket from under the pillow, which she strove to get back. Her husband begged her to give it up, as it would certainly be wrested from her. She answered she would not; but presently perceiving that the man had not taken the pocket containing her purse, but one containing only her snuff-box, she relinquished it after some further show of resistance. The soldier bore away his prize, while she took care to secrete her money. Meanwhile, one of the daughters, who had some money in charge, fled from the house toward a neighbor's, fancying herself pursued by the enemy, (though it was only her invalid father, who was hastening to protect her from danger). She reached the neighbor's door perfectly bewildered with fright, and when her father came up, was beating against it and calling for admittance, in her agitation using the soldiers' language that rang in her ears, "Open! you damned rebels, or we'll blow you to pieces."

The scarcity of provisions caused great suffering among the inhabitants of the village; supplies that might reach the Continental troops being intercepted by the enemy. The little the people had was often taken from them. At one time, General Agnew sent word to Mrs. W. that she could have some milk, as he had been lucky enough to get a cow. His offer to share his advantage with his neighbors did not avail them long. By the next morning, nothing was left of the cow but the head and skin, the Hessians having landed and left the usual tokens of their presence.

During the action at White Plains, the family heard the firing, and awaited the result with deep anxiety, praying for the success of their countrymen. At one time, when the news was discouraging and suspense was at its height, one of the daughters observed despondingly, "Our people will be defeated and slaughtered!" (This was Margaret, afterwards Mrs. Dean.) "Not so!" said her sister Sarah, afterwards Mrs. Brevoort, "The sword of the Lord and of Washington will prevail."

The difficulty of procuring provisions at length necessitated the return of the family to New York. Capt. Whetten's health was declining rapidly, and he died soon after their return, aged 82, and was buried in the burying ground of St. George's Chapel, cor. Beekman and Cliff streets, which adjoined his house, which was on Cliff street. The care of a family in the midst of danger now devolved on his widow, who proved herself equal to the charge. Capt. W. had paid out his specie and retained his paper money, of which he had a large supply, and considered more valuable than gold; and when the currency depreciated, Mrs. W. was often urged to exchange her paper for hard money or purchase land with it, but steadily refused, saying, "I will never undervalue the currency established by Congress." Let Wall street and Broad street hear, and blush when they learn that the result of this disinterested patriotism was the loss of all. But the high spirited matron never regretted the sacrifice, which, she imagined, could not have been avoided without casting a slight upon the honor of her country. For some time, they could not obtain possession of their own house; but through the friendly offices of Andrew Elliot, the collector of the port under the crown, they were at length permitted to occupy it. Mrs. W. bore her part through the remaining years of the war, those "times that tried men's souls"; but, though a woman, she was firm throughout. Her benevolent feelings prompted her to do good to all, but especially for the oppressed Whigs, for whom her house was always an asylum. The British were sometimes quartered on her, and she was required to board many of the prisoners, who had reason to remember her generous kindness. At one time, some of her countrymen having dined with her, asked what compensation was due. "Nothing!" replied she, "if you all eat heartily." And such was ever the spirit of her dealings with them. She made it her daily business to prepare food for the American soldiers, and sent it regularly to the prisons, as well as much to the hospitals, using all the Indian meal she could obtain in this way. She went sometimes with her daughters to see the prisoners, and encouraged them by cheerful conversation. Occasionally, they visited the provost, where the notorious Cunningham was marshal, and who would now and then show his displeasure by kicking over their baskets of provisions, and beating the unfortunate prisoners with his keys. Sometimes he would receive them with a surly courtesy; but Mrs. W. and her daughters continually provided not only provisions but clothing for the use of the captives, not heeding the surliness of their jailors, or the risk of indignity to themselves. Cunningham told a gentleman once, that "These ladies were the damnedest rebels in New York, but so true to the prisoners that I cannot often refuse to let them come."

Sometimes they went to a guard-house close to the old sugar-house, which adjoined the Middle Dutch Church, in Nassau street, now the Post Office, and the sergeant permitted them to sit at the window, while the prisoners came into the yard below and talked with them. Well may Mrs. Ellet say, in speaking of these, "How many desponding hearts were comforted by such ministering visits and the examples of constancy and heroism exhibited by these generous women!" Not satisfied with such daily ministrations, she often had provisions carried to the unfortunate inmates of the prison-ships. A boat was sent to receive the supplies, and it is said the prisoners were sometimes allowed to speak with the ladies. In other words, what we left to commissions in our war, Mrs. Whetten did herself, in the midst of a city held by enemies, surrounded by cares and a large family, and herself straightened by her losses.

Nor did she hesitate to risk her own safety by receiving persons suspected of serving the American cause. Several of her descendants remember a story of her having assisted in the escape of a spy. When a party of soldiers came to the house to arrest the suspected person, having notice of their approach, she had merely time to slip a dressing-gown and night-cap upon her guest, place him in a large easy chair, and put a bowl of gruel in his hands. When the guard came, she showed them the seeming invalid, and they left him, intending to return and take him as soon as he was sufficiently recovered to accompany them. The officer was reprimanded and immediately ordered back, but by that time the object of suspicion had disappeared.

Captain Hunter, who often came with a flag to the city, was in the habit of sending and receiving communications through this family. On one occasion he was ordered to remain three or four days at her house, but finally permitted to depart. It was not long before she became aware that she was suspected of harboring spies, and feeling some uneasiness, she was advised to address a letter to the British Commander, soliciting his protection, she went herself to deliver it at his quarters and was absent until late in the afternoon which greatly alarmed her daughters who knew the object of her visit, and supposed that she had been arrested and sent to the Provost; she had only been detained by waiting for the Aid-de-camp who had promised to help her in gaining an audience and presenting her letter. The dread of being persecuted as obnoxious was no small part of their trials, for they had seen too many instances of such persecutions to be willing to subject themselves to similar troubles if they could be avoided. The time approached which was to end their dangers and sufferings. It was announced that N. Y. was speedily to be evacuated by the British. The rejoicing of patriotic families, who had lived so long in the midst of enemies, was great at the glorious prospect.

About this time the family were startled by the report of a neighbor who came running to inform her that Cunningham, the Provost Marshal, at the head of a party of soldiers was marching towards the house, but were soon relieved to find their destination was the house of one of their neighbors, who had dared to insult his majesty in the presence of his own troops, by hoisting a flag bearing thirteen stars, on the top of her house. The woman meanwhile hearing of his approach, locked her doors, and when the soldiers came, berated them so boldly that Cunningham thought it best to retire, and did, yielding to a rebel perhaps for the first time. That little flag was probably the first hoisted in the city; the name of the woman should have been preserved.

Mrs. Whetten's was the first house in the city to which the news of peace was brought, a French gentleman, a prisoner who boarded with her received from the French Ambassador at Philadelphia, (then the seat of Government,) a letter containing the earliest account. This was eminently proper, for her house was called "Rebel Headquarters" by the British in New York.

After the establishment of peace, Mrs. Whetton did not fail to receive thankful acknowledgments for the services she had rendered the cause of America, and a letter was written to her by Gen'l Washington, expressing his warm gratitude in behalf of the country. He also desired leave to breakfast with her, which she urged him to do, and he did, and during the meal, while conversing about the scenes through which she and her family had passed, he arose twice to thank her for the kindness she had shown the prisoners, and at such risk to herself, and expressed himself aware of the substantial aid she had rendered.

Mrs. Whetten was remarkable for quickness of repartee, and once in conversation with a British officer, the news of a signal victory gained by the Americans having just reached them, she asked with much archness "and did my countrymen run again this time?" "Aye, madam, in truth they did, but it was after us," was the reply.

Some time after peace, being in the stage, on the way to Hartford to visit her daughter Nancy, (then Mrs. Bull of that place,) she found herself in company with two Englishmen not remarkable for comeliness, who seemed to find a never-failing pleasure in abusing everything American. She quietly observed that in one respect her country seemed to have the advantage. "We beat you in handsome men." The two complaining Englishmen were good natured enough to join in the laugh the remark excited among the passengers, and they were afterwards so much pleased with her lively conversation, that they were sorry to part with her at her place of destination. She continued to reside in New York until her death, which occurred in the month of March 1809.

Their children were:

6. ³Sarah, b. June 16, 1758.
7. ³Margaret,
8. ³John.
9. ³Nancy, b. Feb. 8th, 1773.

THIRD GENERATION,

IN THE LINE OF MARGARET (TODD) WHETTEN.

6. ³SARAH WHETTEN, m. June 16, 1778, Henry Brevoort. The M. B. bears date, May 25, 1779.* Henry Brevoort was born October 29, 1747, and lived on the Brevoort Estate, at that time outside of the City of New York. This farm originally extended from Bowery Lane nearly to the present Sixth Avenue, and from Ninth Street on the south to Eighteenth Street on the north, and contained 80 acres. The portion north of Sixteenth Street was sold to Mr. Dawson in 1762, and contained about 23 acres. The portion between Fourteenth and Sixteenth Streets containing about 22 acres was conveyed about the same time by Elias Brevoort to Jno. Smith, whose executors sold it to Henry Spingler in 1788; (this H. S. m. Jane Sloo, half sister of Mrs. ¹Adam Todd, and sister of Mrs. James Duffie, both mentioned in this work.) The Spingler house was situated near the site of the hotel which bears its name, in the present Union Square. The remainder of the Brevoort Estate fell to the share of Hendricus, the father of Henry above. This was divided into six shares of about six acres each,

* KNOW ALL MEN, BY THESE PRESENTS, That we, Henry Brevoort and John Ousterman, of New York, are held and firmly bound unto our Sovereign Lord, George the Third, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, etc., in the sum of Five Hundred Pounds, current money of the Province of New York, to be paid to his said Majesty, or his heirs and successors: for the which payment well and truly to be made and done, we do bind ourselves, and each of us, our and each of our heirs, executors and administrators, and every one of them, firmly by these presents. Sealed with our seals, dated the 25th day of May in the nineteenth year of his said Majesty's reign, annoque domini one thousand seven hundred and seventy-nine.

THE CONDITION of this obligation is such, That Whereas the above bounden Henry Brevoort hath obtained a License of Marriage for himself of the one party, and Sarah Wheaton of New York, spinster, of the other party, Now if it shall not appear hereafter that they, or either of them, the said Henry Brevoort and Sarah Wheaton, have any lawful let or impediment of per contract, affinity, or consanguinity, to hinder their being joined in the holy bands of matrimony, and afterwards their living together as man and wife, then this obligation to be void and of non-effect, or else to stand, remain, abide, and be in full force and virtue.

Sealed and delivered in the presence of

J. MOORE.

HENRY BREVOORT, [L. s.]
JOHN OUSTERMAN, [L. s.]

and Henry received the most southerly one with the old house, and soon after purchased of his brother Charles the adjoining shares. The house, which was built of stone, was rebuilt by Henry, who carefully avoided making any change in the room in which he was born ; tho' he entirely renovated the remainder. When the plan of the city was established, Eleventh street was found to run on the site of this house, and the opening of this street was deemed desirable by many, who made frequent attempts to effect it. Mr. B. however resisted, and though ordinances were passed for its opening in 1836, and again in 1849, he still refused to remove, and they were rescinded ; and, finally, the attempt was given up, and Eleventh street remains closed from Broadway to Fourth avenue to the present time. Mr. B. was also the cause of turning Broadway at Tenth street, and so has left his mark upon the map of the city.

Miss Sarah Whetten was married while the enemy were in possession of the city, and the farm next adjoining on the south, and toward the city, had been purchased by Andrew Elliott, son of Sir Gilbert Elliott, Lord Chief Justice, Clerk of Scotland. Mr. E. was appointed Collector and Receiver-general of the Province of New York, and in 1780 Lieutenant-governor ; and, in the absence of the Governor, officiated in his stead until the evacuation of New York. Mr. Elliott's dau. m. in N. Y. a major in the British army, Lord, afterwards Earl Cathcart. The two families were very intimate ; nor was this the only instance of Mr. E. being highly esteemed by a Whig, for both parties admired his urbanity and integrity. The friendship in this instance did not terminate with the separation, for when Henry, the son of Henry Brevoort, was in England, long after, he received a letter from Lady Cathcart, seeking to know if he were related to the H. Brevoort who had been her father's friend during his residence in New York, and his answer in the affirmative was followed by an invitation to him to visit her.

THIRD GENERATION.

IN LINE OF MARGARET (TODD) WHETTEN.

7. ³MARGARET WHETTEN passed her youth in the midst of the troubles and dangers of the Revolution, she has already been referred to in the sketch of her mother (2) ²Mrs. William Whetten, with whom she often went to visit the prisoners at the provost and other military prisons. Miss Margaret had become so accustomed to such trips that she sometimes went without her mother. At one time, being accompanied by a female friend, she went to the provost to see a woman imprisoned there. They had not been present long before Cunningham, the Marshal, began to brag of having dug up various buried articles in a church yard at New Rochelle, which, as it happened, were the property of the lady who accompanied her.

They were subject to constant alarms during her younger days, all of which did not turn out equally serious. At one time they experienced some uneasiness at having a quarter-guard stationed opposite their house, but they were assured that so far from being an annoyance they would prove a protection, and they might leave their windows open by night as well as by day. After the close of the war, one of this guard, passing the window, stopped to pay his compliments to Miss Margaret Whetten. His hair was plaited in the fashion of that day, and as he removed his high pointed hat, he made bold to ask Miss Peggy's acceptance of his comb. The young lady declined the gift, but promised not to forget the polite soldier. She married Stuart Dean, of Albany, N. Y.

Mr. Dean was born in Maryland, but was a resident of Albany, N. Y. He was a sea captain, and went to sea when he was only twelve years of age. He was a small, active man, and had been married before his marriage with Miss Whetten. By his first marriage he had three children, viz., Anthony, who d. young, Andrew and Mary. In "Munsell's Annals of Albany" there is an account of Mr. Dean's expedition to China. The following is from an Albany paper of date of 4th April, 1867. The sloop in which the voyage was made, Mr. D. built himself in his own garden at Albany.

HOW DEAN STREET ACQUIRED ITS NAME.

Great importance is given to the fact that Bennett, Jr., crossed the Atlantic in a sail craft of remarkable slight tonnage. This feat, redounding greatly to the credit of the daring youth, had its compeer in an historic fact, intimately connected with our city. Why that avenue lying east of Broadway and west of the Quay (pronounced the key) is called Dean street is not generally known. And yet the circumstance giving it its designation was and is a great nautical event. The most remarkable of all the expeditions from this port, was the voyage of an Albany sloop to China. "In the Fall of 1785 the sloop Experiment, "eighty tons burden, Captain Stuart Dean, was fitted "out at this port for China. It was very properly considered a hazardous voyage for so small a craft. She "was laden with an assorted cargo for a regular trading expedition, and was the second venture from "the United States to Canton. She left on the 18th "of December and was absent eighteen months. Her "return trip was made in four months and twelve days, "with a cargo of teas and nankins. Several pieces of "costly damask silk were also brought to order, or for "family presents. One of the heir looms in the family "of a descendant of the mate of the Experiment, residing in Schenectady, is a dress, made of the silk referred to, in the fashion of that day. Captain Dean "also brought home thirteen sets of China ware, to "order, for such families as could afford and thought "proper to indulge in such luxuries. These articles "were so much valued that they have passed from "mothers to daughters, down to the present time; and "though much broken and scattered, are still objects "of curiosity, not only from the associations connected "with this singular voyage, but as showing the form "and style of Chinaware nearly a century ago. The "set that belonged to Captain Johnson, a revolutionary "veteran, whose house stood with its gable to the "street, on the corner of South Pearl and Howard "streets, was divided among his descendants.* These "sets being mostly brought to order, were ornamented

“with the initials of the owner on each piece. It “was a matter of surprise to the natives and Euro“peans in those seas, to see so small a craft arrive “from a clime so remote, and gave them an exalted “conception of the enterprise of the citizens of the “United States. The Experiment was an object of “alarm to the inhabitants at some of the ports at “which she touched, who mistook her for a tender to “a fleet of men-of-war. She returned on Sunday, “April 22, 1787, without the loss of a man during the “voyage. On her arrival she was visited by a large “portion of the citizens, few of whom had expected
 “her return. Captain Dean made several voyages to “China subsequently, when the famous merchant, “Howqua, formed so favorable an opinion of him, that “he was accustomed to send over a chest of black tea
 “to the Captain occasionally, long after the latter had “discontinued his voyages.”

Captain Dean died in N. Y., aged 85, at the house of Mr. Roderick Sedgwick, his son in law. Mrs. D.

THIRD GENERATION.

IN THE LINE OF MARGARET (TODD) WHETTEN.

8. ³JOHN WHETTEN m. Eliza Burling, by whom he had five children, after her death he m. 2d. Harriet Douglass, by whom he had one daughter. Mr. Whetten was a large fine appearing man. He accompanied his brother-in-law, Mr. Dean, to Canton, as first officer, and was afterwards master of an Indiaman of 500 tons, considered a monster in those days, and probably the largest ship out of the port of New York, which fact made her commander a man of prominence. Mr. Whetten was President of the Hope Insurance Company of New York, and also for twenty years of the New York Marine Society, which he joined as early as 1788. A special meeting of this Society was called for Tuesday evening, June 17, 1845, "in consequence of the recent death of the venerable Captain John Whetten, for the last twenty years President of the Marine Society of New York, with a view to recognize such respects to departed worth as the Society shall think proper to adopt." The following members were appointed a committee on resolutions, viz.:—"Capt's Hy. Russell, Jos. Tinkham and N. Briggs." Capt. R. was Secretary at the time, and J. T. retired from the same position only a few weeks since. The minutes of the meeting of above date, from which these facts were taken, are dated Oct. 13, 1845, and signed Henry Russell. Captain Whetten was also Superintendent of the Sailor's Snug Harbor, from its foundation until his death. At the next meeting of the Marine Society, Mr. Ehninger furnished a sketch of the deceased, which was received with the usual complimentary action and placed among the archives of the Society. I have made many attempts to see, or find out the whereabouts of this paper, but hitherto without effect, should I succeed in time, some portion, if not all, will be placed in an appendix.

The following is communicated by William Whetten, Esq., in a letter dated July 10, 1867, as it concerns two parties, both of whom are treated of by this book. I give it entire and verbatim:—"It is a curious circumstance that my father's frankness was the remote cause, perhaps, under Providence, of Mr. Astor's remarkably successful career as a merchant. I do not mean to imply that such talents for making and amassing money as Mr. Astor possessed, would not have secured success through almost any channel, but perhaps the very best channel then open (the fur trade) was brought under his view by the following incident:—

"One day at Bristol, I think, perhaps at some other port in England, my father was accosted, on board of the ship of which he was mate, by a young German, of his own age, who wished to emigrate to America. He had a pacotillo of musical instruments, and desired a steerage passage. The appearance and manners of the young German interested my father, and his manner and appearance then singularly prepossessing, I believe, must have attracted the young German. Their intercourse, in consequence, soon became confidential, and my father's advice to him was to prefer a passage in another vessel, lying close at hand, in which he would make the passage more comfortably than in my father's. The advice was adopted, and here comes in Mr. Astor's good luck.

"Among the cabin passengers of this vessel were some officers of one of the great English fur companies, the Hudson Bay Company, I think. These gentlemen, in their walks on the quarter-deck, naturally held converse together about the dealings for furs with the N. A. Indians, and of these conversations enough dropped in the neighborhood of the main-hatch to give to the astute young German “steerage passenger a glimpse of the wide avenue to “wealth upon which he subsequently entered.”

Captain Whetten, as before observed, d. in 1845.
The names of his children, (concerning whom I regret having so little information,) were

- 93. ⁴William m. Miss French of Albany. Resides at No. 24
E. 10th Street, New York.
- 94. ⁴John.
- 95. ⁴Eliza, m. Geo. Ehninger, whose mother was Catharine, own sister of John J. Astor.
- 96. ⁴Susan Matilda m. Douglass Cruger. She resides in 14th

Mr. Wm. Whetten d. in 1801, leaving a widow and several children. His widow married after his decease Capt. ———. The names of his children I have been unable to learn, excepting

- 99. ⁴Samuel b. about 1798, d. about 1823.

11. ³Samuel b. Jan. 5, 1768. The following sketch is from a letter lately received from Wm. Whetten, Esq., and is correctly and beautifully termed by him,
“The heroic consummation of an amiable and exem“plary life.”

“My Uncle Samuel, then a mere youth, was mate of “a vessel (I have forgotten her name, if I ever knew “it,) commanded by Captain Metcalf, father of the “present Judge Metcalf of Richmond, Staten Island.

“My impression is that the vessel was trading for “pepper, and somewhere off one of the Malayan “Islands. While the captain was ashore negotiating “with the Rajah of the settlement, the natives made
“one of those sudden and unprovoked attacks upon
“the crew, of which many repetitions are on record.

“Those who survived the first murderous assault
“retreated to the fore-castle where they secured them“selves, all but Mr. Whetten, who made his way to “the cabin and barricaded it. The captors assembled “upon the quarter-deck, either to hold a council or to “rejoice in their victory, not dreaming of the deter“mined spirit at work beneath them. Mr. Whetten “placed a barrel of gunpowder upon the cabin table,
“and fired it (whether with or without a train is,
“of course, not known.) The savages, with the “quarter-deck, were blown into the air and the sea,
“and the crew regained possession of the ship. Mr.
“Whetten’s body was found in the cabin window, “hanging shattered and lifeless. His prayer-book was “found floating on the sea, by a Captain ———, and “was returned many years after the occurrence to “Mrs. Ann Bull of Hartford, the giver of it, in the “possession of whose family it now is. In the letter “accompanying the prayer-book the captain mentions
“the fact that he succeeded Mr. Whetten as mate.”

The year in which this heroic but melancholy death occurred was 1789

SECOND GENERATION.

3. ²ADAM TODD, b. June 2, 1746, m. Margaret Dodge, who was b. 1745. She was dau. of Jeremiah and Margaret (Vanderbilt) Dodge. Adam Todd was admitted freeman of New York 1769. He was, in early life, engaged in the cabinet-making business, but his health not allowing him to follow it he went to sea. When the British held New York he left the city and removed to Washington, Dutchess Co., N. Y. One of his children, Wm. W. was born there; that was in April, 1781. While there he worked on the two frigates then building for Congress at Po'keepsie; they were afterwards burnt before they were finished. When the enemy came to Aesopus, now Kingston, on their way to join Burgoyne, Capt. Todd was in command of an American store ship, lying in Aesopus Creek, and Mrs. T. and the rest of the family were living on board, but they were driven away and the ship burned the same day that the town was destroyed, Oct. 13, 1777. From here Capt. Todd went to Fort Pitt, now Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. He returned to the city in the month of June, 1783, before the evacuation by the British, which occurred on the 25th of Nov. in the same year. He now began running his vessel up and down the Hudson river, and bringing back the families which had been in exile. One day, after having got his clearance from the Custom House, a Mr. Duryea came to send a negro up the river Captain T. refused to take him, as he had been cleared; but on D's saying that he had a pass, and all necessary papers, the man was taken on board. When off the Battery a gun was fired which brought him to, and the officers who came on board took Capt. Todd for carrying a negro away without authority, and he was placed in the Provost Jail, now the Hall of Records, in the City Hall Park. This was in 1783. The notorious Cunningham was the Marshal of the Provost. Wm. Dodge, son of Samuel, brother of Mrs. Adam Todd, was with Capt. T. as mate of the vessel at the time of the arrest, and undertook to sail the vessel up the river, but the next morning found himself below Bedloe's Island. While in the Provost Capt. Todd contracted the jail fever, which confined him to the house for some time after his release, if so we may term his walking home one night, on finding his cell door and the outer doors open. After his recovery he sailed in the St. Thomas trade, either as owner or part owner of the "Polly," which afterwards foundered in forty-eight hours after leaving N. Y. Afterwards he commanded the "Hannah," which was partly owned by Bonventure Sire. The first appearance of the name in a New York City Directory was in that of 1789, as follows:—"Adam Todd, sea captain, 35 Beekman Street," and, same year, "Widow Todd, 81 Queen Street."

1790. "Adam Todd, sea captain, 142 Queen St."

1791. "Adam Todd, sailing master, 79 Queen St."

1792. "Adam Todd, ship master, 79 Queen St," and 1793 same.

1794. "Adam Todd, ship master, 358 Pearl."

1795. "Adam Todd, sen., 362 Pearl," and 1796-7
and 8 same.

Captain Todd died on his vessel, the "Hannah," at Havana, in 1798, aged 52 years. His widow died in April, 1823. The following is from a New York paper of the Monday following: "DIED.—On Saturday last, "Mrs. Margaret Todd, in the 78th year of her age. "The relatives and friends of the deceased, those of "her son, Wm. W. Todd, and her son-in-law, Jno. "Tiebout, are invited to attend her funeral this afternoon, at 5 o'clock, from her late residence, No. 68
"Gold Street, without further invitation."

John Jacob came to America in November, 1783, and accumulated a vast property by the fur business and the rise of real estate in the City of New York. He was the richest man in the United States. The Astor

Library, founded by him by a bequest, in 1848, of $400,000, is the noblest monument to his name, in his adopted country; though not probably so beneficial to the masses (being open only during the day time,) as the institutions endowed by him in his native town. John Jacob and Sarah (Todd) Astor had

131. ³WILLIAM BACKHOUSE ASTOR m. Margaret, dau. *Gen'l John Armstrong and Alida Livingston. Mr. Astor is known every where as one of the richest men,

*John Armstrong was a native of Penn., and Colonel of the troops from that State during the French and Indian wars. He headed an expedition against the savages at Kitaning, 1756, which dispersed them, destroyed the village, and brought away the stores which the French had sent there for their allies. For this service the City of Philadelphia passed a vote of thanks for Armstrong and his men and presented him with a medal and piece of plate. He was appointed Brig. Gen'l in the Continental Army, 1776, and did gallant service at Fort Moultrie and Charleston that summer; was engaged in the battles of Brandywine and Germantown in the autumn of 1777, and resigned at the close of that year. He was afterward elected to Congress, and if not the richest man in the United States. He was in business with his father and continued it after his father's death. He has also very much enlarged the Astor Library which his father founded, besides giving much towards its endowment. The Astor Library, situated in Lafayette Place, next door to Mr. Astor's residence, was opened in 1854, with 80,000 vols., since which time it has been doubled in size, and the number increased to 100,000 vols., many of which are very rare and valuable. This was the work of the son. He resides at No. 32 Lafayette Place. Wm. B. and Margaret Astor have had seven children.

In 1775 he left his studies at Princeton to join the army as a volunteer in Potter's Penn. Regt. was soon after appointed aid by Genl. Hugh Mercer, and remained on the staff of that Genl. until the death of the latter, after the battle of Princeton; was afterwards appointed to the same position on the staff of Genl. Gates, with whom he remained until after the capture of Burgoyne. In 1780 he was made Adjutant-General of the Southern Army, but his health compelled him to resign, and before the defeat at Camden he had resumed his position with Gates, which he held until the close of the war. He was the author of the Newburgh Addresses, in regard to which Genl. Washington, in 1797, bore testimony to his patriotic motives. He was Secretary of State and Adjt.-Genl. of Penn. until 1787, when he was chosen representative in Congress. Genl. A., m. 1789, Alida Livingston of N. Y., sister of Chancellor R. R. Livingston, and removed to N. Y. In 1793 Washington appointed him Collector of Internal Revenue, but he declined this and all other appointments until 1800, when he was elected U. S. Senator, and again in 1803. In 1804 was appointed Minister Plenipotentiary to France, which he held for more than six years, filling a special mission to Spain at the same time. In 1812 was made Brigadier Genl. in U. S. Army, and commanded in New York until 1813, when he was called by Madison to the War Department. 138. ⁴CHARLES ASTOR BRISTED m., 1847, ⁵Laura Whetten (20) second daughter of (12) ⁴Henry Brevoort. Mr. Bristed graduated at Yale, 1839, was afterwards Foundation scholar of Trinity College, Cambridge, England, where he took the degree of A. B., 1845, was afterwards made M. A., 1848. He is well known as an author, both under his own name, and his nom de plume, “Carl Benson.” He published “Five years in an English University,” in 1852. This is a very interesting 12mo in two volumes, and much sought for by American students. Also, “Letters to Horace Mann.” which appeared two years earlier. Mr. Bristed is somewhat cosmopolitan and may almost be said to have homes on both continents, he resides in New York City a portion of the time, but has also a residence in South Carolina.

The following is from a N. Y. paper of recent date:—
 “A contemporary announces the death of Mrs. Charles “Astor Bristed, the excellent and accomplished wife
 “of the well-known ‘Carl Benson.’ Mrs. Bristed ex“pired at her residence, at Baden Baden, Germany,
 “on Monday, August 5, of a complicated heart disease.
 “She was a woman of great personal and mental at“tractions, which she inherited from both her parents
 “(the late Henry Brevoort, of New York, and Laura “Carson, of South Carolina,) as well as of a most en“chanting sweetness and gaiety of disposition. In “Baden she was universally loved and respected. The “inhabitants and residents attended her funeral with “almost regal honors ; members of the Diplomatic “Corps came from a distance to be present at the “ceremony, and ladies of the highest aristocracy fol“lowed the procession to the grave. She was but “thirty-seven years of age, and in the zenith of her “matronly bloom and beauty. Her loss will be severely “felt in the brilliant circles of which she was so bright
 “an ornament.”

The following is from a N. Y. paper of Aug., 1867:—

241. ⁵SAMUEL TIEBOUT enlisted (under the first call of President Lincoln) April 21, 1861, for the term of two years in the Fifth Infantry, N. Y. Vols., (Duryea's Zouaves.) After a month of military instruction at Fort Schuyler, the Fifth was sent to Fortress Monroe, Va., and encamped at "Camp Hamilton." After a few days the regiment with several others was led by Brigadier-General Pierce against the batteries and rifle pits of Big Bethel, and owing to the inexperience of that officer,* the first action of the war terminated

*NOTE.—The facts of this sketch are furnished entirely by Lieutenant Tiebout, and in some cases I have taken his words almost verbatim. He shows a pride in his regiment, and it is this which makes a command glorious, when the men so act that they may have reason to be proud of their corps; in this case they gained the reputation of being "the best drilled volunteer regiment in the service."

adversely to the Union arms, after a two-hours' engagement, in which the Fifth lost 27. Shortly after the disaster at Bull Run, the Fifth was ordered to Baltimore, and erected the fine fortification known as Fort Federal Hill, the guns of which, bearing upon the City, had much to do with the loyalty of Baltimore. When the Army of the Potomac commenced the memorable "Onward to Richmond" in the Spring of '62, the Fifth was brigaded with the Regular Infantry, and thenceforth identified with the history of that army, participating in the siege of Yorktown and Richmond, engaged at Hanover Court-House, capturing a Rebel company entire; receiving the first attack of the enemy at Gaines' Mills, and holding the valley from morn till 9 P. M., with a loss at the close of the engagement of 135 out of 600; in the left flank at Malvern Hill; receiving the attack at the Second Manassas, the severity of which is told by the return, 365 killed and wounded out of 500, (the severest loss, for the number engaged, experienced by any command during the war); chasing the Rebel army on its raid through Maryland; supporting Burnside's columns at Antietam; driving the enemy through the Potomac at Dam No. 5; covering the retreat of the Center Grand Division at the Fredericksburgh slaughter; and contending on the bloody field of Chancellorsville; and throughout gaining a reputation which is, as it should be, a subject of pride for every man in the command, and the State at large from which they went.

In this command the subject of this sketch bore his part of the labors, shared the dangers, and did his duty; he participated in every march, siege, picket, and engagement, and was "on duty" from time of enlistment to mustering out, (which only four others in his company can say); his rifle-stock was struck by a Minnie ball at Gaines' Mills; his haversack received a second, and his breast-plate a third ball in that action ; at Second Manassas his canteen was split open by a grape shot, and a ball passed through the sleeve of his coat, making a flesh wound on the elbow ; and at the return of the regiment he had passed through the grades of Corporal, Sergeant and Lieutenant.

LIEUTENANT TIEBOUT m. Oct. 5, 1865, Hattie M., dau. David and Eliza Hall. She was born May 22, 1844. They have one child :

259. ⁶Emma M. Tiebout, b. Sept. 29, 1866.

244. ⁵MARGARET TODD TIEBOUT m. Nov. 6, 1862, Charles C., son of William and Sarah Varian. Mr. Varian is a farmer. They have had two children, viz :

260. ⁶Emily T. Varian b. Sept. 15, 1863 ; d. Sept. 29, 1863.

261. ⁶Charles Varian b. Dec. 30, 1865.

THIRD GENERATION.

124. ³WILLIAM TODD ; died young.

125. ³MARCIA TODD ; died young.

126. ³SARAH TODD b. Dec. 31, 1778, at Esopus, now Kingston, Ulster Co., N. Y., whither her parents had fled at the capture of that City ; this was after the place had been burned by the British. In 1783 they returned to New York, and at the time of the evacuation by the enemy were living in Pearl St. Miss Todd remembers the departure of the troops lately so haughty, and in marked contrast the entrance of the Continentals, with banners flying and bands playing "Yankee Doodle," Washington and Governor Clinton at their head, and all showing in dress and visage the results of a seven years' war, of which Valley Forge was but one scene of a single act. The troops that day passed through the Bowery and Pearl Street, and so passed Mrs. Todd's house, but there was too much interest felt in the event to allow the Whig ladies and children of New York to await the troops at the window, and they went, with the rest, some distance out of town to welcome and follow them down. Miss Todd never married, but lived with her mother until her death, since which time she has lived with her sister, (Margaret Todd,) Mrs. Jno. Tiebout, her niece, (Sarah Anne Todd,) Mrs. Wm. W. Green, and for many years with her nephew, James L. Todd. She is now in her 89th year. I cannot pass to the next sketch without adding a word of respect for this venerable Christian woman. Always careful to avoid giving trouble, but at the same time seeking every opportunity to do something for others, timing her visits when there was work to be done, until the children began to think of quilting frames whenever they heard "Aunt Sally is coming;" never idle a moment, yet always ready with kind words and Christian conversation. Her Bible was her best friend, and she loved to teach the young to love it; and by means of her Bible stories, she never failed to inspire them with a love for it, and at the same time for herself. Three generations who have been benefitted by her care will unite with us in saying, "God bless her."

127. ³WILLIAM WHETTEN TODD was b. in Washington, Dutchess Co., N. Y., April 7, 1781, while the family were in exile and the British troops in possession of New York. He was two years old when the family returned to town in June, 1783. The family residence was at 91 Queen St., now 362 Pearl St. Many of the British officers were quartered in that neighborhood. Admiral Rodney occupied a house where 256 Pearl now stands; Cornwallis was three doors below Rodney; Admiral Walton lived in his own house, yet standing, 326 Pearl. W. W. T. was quite a pet with the British officers who lived opposite to Mrs. Todd's, and they would send often and bring him into their quarters, though his mother was a firm Whig, and not a little troubled by their attentions to Little Willie.

When Wm. W. was 12 years old, he went with his uncle, Jno. Jacob Astor ; Cornelius Heeney was there at that time ; Wm. Roberts was in the store afterwards. In November, 1795, he was sent by Astor to Canada; this trip took thirty days, divided as follows: Seven days to Albany, in a sloop; four more to Whitehall, in an open wagon, there being no public conveyance; here he was detained for nine days by a snow storm ; thence they walked to Basin Harbor, about fifty miles, at the rate of 12 miles per day, from which place they took a boat to Rouse's Point, and thence traveled on the ice to St. John's, crossed to La Prairie in a sleigh, and finally crossed the St. Lawrence to Montreal on foot, which took an entire day. Arrived at Montreal, he entered the college; Dr. Chequeneau was President ; four other priests were instructors. Here he remained six or seven months, from December, 1795, till July, 1796. After learning French, and having written to Astor that he was tired of Canada, he received permission to return, after going fifty miles to the Villages by Lake of Two Mountains, and buying up all the marten skins. He went, and having purchased, baled up about five hundred skins. The return trip took eleven days. In '97 he was sent by Astor to Newport, Providence and Boston on business ; after his return he left Mr. Astor, and would not return again, though the latter urged him to do so.

In June, 1798, he went into the store of Jno. Duffie, on Old Slip, between Water and Front Sts. On the 20th December, 1799, they moved into the store No. 77 Front St., corner Old Slip. In 1805 he was taken into partnership. In 1807, January 14, he married the daughter of his senior partner, who lived at No. 81 Front, corner Old Slip. Jno. Duffie died July 8, 1808, lamented by a large circle of friends, and universally esteemed. He was buried in Gold St. burying ground, and afterwards removed to Greenwood Cemetery. Mrs. W. W. Todd was the eldest of the children of Mr. D., named as follows :—(1) Maria Caroline; (2) Cornelius Roosevelt, who m. Helen Bleecker; (3) Margaret, unmarried; (4) Matilda, who m. Gerrard De Peyster; (5) Cornelia, unmarried; (6) Antoinette, who m. (1) Miles R. Burke, (2) Isaac Gibson, no issue.

W. W. Todd being now without a partner in business, took in his brother-in-law, C. R. Duffie, who had graduated from Columbia College in 1809, and his younger brother, James Hallock Todd, and the firm became Todd, Duffie & Todd. This continued until 1814, when C. R. D. went into a commission business alone at No. 86 Wall St., but in 1821, began study for the ministry, and in 1824 was ordained. In 1823 the building of St. Thomas, corner Houston St. and Broadway, was begun, and completed in 1826, and C. R. D. became its Rector, where he continued until he died in 1828, and was buried beneath the altar of the church. St. Thomas Church was torn down 1866.

The firm, which was now W. W. & J. H. Todd, was again changed in January, 1821, the junior partner having died February 8, 1820, and it became a second time W. W. Todd.

In 1833, Wm. Tiebout, a nephew of Mr. Todd, (being the fourth child of his sister Margaret,) was admitted, and the firm became and continued W. W. Todd & Co. until 1848, when he retired, and Mr. Tiebout, some twelve years later. Todd & Co. is now composed of Wm. Jas. Todd and Theodore Wallace Todd, two sons of W. W. Todd, and they continue on the same site the business has occupied nearly seventy years.

Wm. W. Todd was appointed Ensign in the State Militia in 1800, and had risen until, at the breaking out of our second war with England, he had become Lieutenant-Colonel. Two regiments were drafted in

New York City into the service, and of one of these, Col. Van Hook's Regiment, W. W. Todd was appointed Lieutenant-Colonel. Albert Christie was Adjutant, and Judge Stryker was a Captain, and Charles King, afterwards President of Columbia College, also a Captain and Brevet Major, A. D. C.

Colonel Todd was for twenty years Director in the Howard Insurance Company, and twenty-five years Director of the Manhattan Bank.

John Duffie was a prominent man in the Baptist Church in the early part of the present century. W. W. Todd, his son-in-law, succeeded him as Secretary of First Baptist Church. He was twenty-six years Secretary; nine years Treasurer; then fourteen years Chairman, being in all forty-nine years in the Board of Trustees. He was a fine penman, writing a noble, manly hand, and therefore made a fine Secretary. He always had credit, though the church had not, and so made an excellent man for the position of Treasurer. He was very early gray, and being six feet two-and-a-half inches in height, made a commanding, dignified Chairman, and easily the best man to preside over the Board. The following resolutions of the Trustees were published in The New York Leader, June 21, 1862, and January 10, 1863, and were passed at a meeting of the Board held January 5, 1848:

"Resolved, That this Board, in receiving the resignation of Wm. W. Todd as Treasurer of the Corporation of the First Baptist Church, deeply sympathize with him in the afflicting dispensation of Providence in depriving him of sight, which has rendered it necessary for him to resign a post which he has so long and faithfully sustained; that they remember how often he has stood faithful and firm in the time of their pressing need, through the vicissitudes of forty years; and that the vote of thanks which they now offer can but feebly express the sense of the obligations and favors received at his hands."

At a regular meeting of the Church, January 31, 1848, a similar resolution, though in different words, was passed unanimously, and forwarded with the signatures of S. H. Cone, Pastor, and Sylvester Pier, Church Clerk, and an expression of their strong personal regards.

When Dr. Spencer H. Cone, the Pastor of the First Church, introduced the new version or translation of the Bible, the entire denomination, as well as this church, was divided; and when Dr. Cone carried the church, Col. Todd and family left them and connected themselves with the Baptist Tabernacle Church, Rev. Edward Lathrop, D. D., (now J. R. Kendrick, D. D.,) Pastor, located in Second Avenue, between Tenth and Eleventh Sts. W. W. T., soon after removing to this Church, connected himself therewith on profession of faith.*

Col. Todd owned the first line of Baltimore packets. He bought his first vessel in 1811; in 1815 it was called "Todd's Line," having been established immediately after the war; he sold out in 1835. He owned other ships besides the above-mentioned line. His business was exclusively "salt," and so it continues in the hands of his sons.

Col. Todd was put in nomination in the Second Ward for Assistant Alderman with Saul Alley for Alderman, and again in the Eighth Ward for Alderman. He also received the regular Whig nomination for State Senator in 1840, but declined. In 1842 he was Governor of the Almshouse; his associates were Peter S. Titus, who usually presided, Revo C. Hance, Rich'd S. Williams, and Hamilton Fish; the latter acted as Secretary.

*For additional particulars see statement of the Trustees of the First Baptist Church, published in pamphlet, and sketches by "Walter Barrett, Clerk," in The New York Leader of June 21, 1862, and January 10, 1863, and The Old Merchants of New York, which are not entirely reliable, but at the same time give some information.

Col. Todd was for many years previous to Jackson's elevation to the Presidency a member of St. Tammany Society, or the Columbian Order; Clarkson Crolius and Matthew L. Davis were prominent in the society at the same time; the latter ran once against Col. Todd for Grand Sachem, but Col. Todd was elected. Benjamin Roméyn was Treasurer at that time.

From 1844 until 1849 Col. Todd was so blind that he could not read; the last two, viz., 1848 and 1849, he was entirely blind. Under Dr. Elliott's treatment one eye was ruined, and is entirely sightless. Dr. Wm. Clay Wallace afterwards restored the sight of the other, and in good weather Mr. Todd is still in the habit of going down to the store "to talk salt" with "the boys."

The following is the notice of the wedding from a New York newspaper of January 24, 1807:

"MARRIED.—On Wednesday evening, the 14th inst., by the Rev. William Parkinson, Mr. William W. Todd, merchant, to Miss Caroline Duffie, daughter of Mr. John Duffie, merchant, all of this city."

January 14, 1857, was the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding, and it was celebrated by an assembly of their family and friends at their residence, No. 33 East Twenty-third St. It found them both well and happy; but only a few months rolled around before that lovely Christian woman went to her reward. She died the 29th of July, 1857, and was buried in the new family vault in Greenwood Cemetery. The children of W. W. and M. C. Todd were:

Mr. T. was commissioned Paymaster in the Militia by Gov. Seward, 1843. Went into the store of his father, 1844, and was taken into partnership the following year, where he has ever since continued, and is now the head of the firm. This business was established by Jno. Duffie somewhere about the year 1784 in Old Slip, his brother-in-law, Cornelius Roosevelt, was a silent partner. Wm. W. Todd went into the store as clerk, in June, 1798, and on the 20th Dec., 1799, the business was removed to No. 77 Front St., corner of Old Slip, where it has ever since continued. The firm continued John Duffie until 1805, when it was changed to John Duffie & Co, (consisting of Jno. Duffie and Wm. W. Todd,) and so continued until 1808, when it became Wm. W. Todd (the senior partner having died July 8, 1808), and in 1810 was again changed to Todd, Duffie & Todd (consisting of Wm. W. Todd, Cornelius Roosevelt Duffie, and Jas. Hallock Todd). In 1814 Mr. C. R. Duffie withdrew, and the firm became W. W. & J. H. Todd; the latter died Jan. 8, 1821, and from that time until 1833 the business was conducted in the name of W. W. Todd alone, but at that date Wm. Tiebout was taken in, and it became and continued W. W. Todd & Co. until 1853. Wm. James Todd was admitted in 1845, Theodore W. Todd, 1846, the senior partner retired 1848, and Wm. Tiebout withdrew 1859, since which time the firm has been Todd & Co, the subject of this sketch being the senior partner. Mr. T. has been Director in the Artisans Bank and Commonwealth Insurance Co., and Trustee of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church, 1862-63. W. Todd & Co., and in 1846 was admitted into partnership, and is still in the firm, his brother Wm. J. being senior and he the junior member. In 1841 he joined the 4th Co. 27th Reg. N. Y. Militia. This was one of the four Companies which was taken from the 11th Reg. in 1824, and called the National Guard, 27th Reg. In this organization Mr. Todd was Corporal and Sergeant; in 1847 the number of the regiment was

They had seventeen children, of whom Abner, b. 1773, was the eldest. Abner m., 1797, at Danbury, Mary Osborn, who was b. about 1772, she was dau. of Moses Osborn. Abner and Mary O. During the Revolution a French surgeon came to this country with General Lafayette, whose name was John Francis Rague. This Dr. Rague was with the American Army when the winter quarters were near Morristown, N. J. and with other young officers, having little or nothing to do, endeavored to relieve the monotony of camp life by such amusements as they could get, which were often only practical jokes; one of these threatened to end seriously, and Capt. Bonnell prevailed on Dr. Rague to go to his residence, which was near Morristown, and remain there until the difficulty was settled. A few days after Capt. B. wrote to Dr. R. that he might return, and was answered that he could not under three or four days. When he did return he reported to Capt. B. that he had fallen in love with and married his sister Hannah Bonnell during his absence. Dr. Rague and Hannah his wife had a daughter Catharine, who m. Jonas Stansbury, and from this union was b. State Militia" was changed to "National Guard S. N. Y.," and it now belongs to every regiment in the State. In 1861 he was made Director in the Brevoort Insurance Co.; in 1865 Trustee of Tabernacle Baptist Church; in 1867 Treasurer of the same; he is also Superintendent of the Sunday School. T. W. & M. C. DUFFIE FAMILY.

The name Duffie is Scotch in its derivation and had the patronymic Mac prefixed, which modern usage has dropped; the derivation is from the gaëlic "Dubh," meaning, "a dark man;" "bh" has the sound of "f" or "v," and Clan Dhubhi, MacDuffie or MacPhce (as it was called in the Island of Colonsay, County Argyle,) means "a dark colored tribe." I have among my papers much more in regard to this name, but shall confine myself to Cis-Atlantic territory.

1. ¹JOHN DUFFIE, b. in Scotland, set sail for America, 1741, but was lost at sea, having fallen overboard by accident before arriving. He had m. in Scotland, Catharine Carmichael, who was a widow with two children, viz.: Ann, who m. Duncan Campbell, and had descendants; and James, who m. ——— Harriman. I have been unable to discover Mrs. Catharine Duffie's maiden name, but she belonged to a wealthy French family and had been persecuted and imprisoned for being a Huguenot. She came to America in the ship from which her husband was lost, bringing with her her son Duncan Duffie, but leaving her daughter in Edinburgh, where she m. William Wallace, a wealthy linen manufacturer, and probably always resided. Mrs. D. is said to have left large possessions on her escape from France, but had prepared a skirt (while she was imprisoned for six months in her own house) in the quiltings of which she had secreted a quantity of gold pieces, one in each diamond; the rest of her property was forfeited by her flight, if not by her religion. Her escape was aided by a Catholic priest. There is still among her descendants a chair which she brought with her to this country, and in which she was let down from the vessel. She attended the French Church and at her decease was buried in the grounds of that church in Pine Street.

2. ²DUNCAN DUFFIE, b. in Edinburgh, April 19, 1733, came with his mother, being at that time but eight years old; m. Mary Thompson, who was b. May, 1730; her mother's name was Hannah Canyne or Cannon. There was a Duncan Duffie m. Sept. 30, 1757, Barbara Cropsey, who, I think, is not of this family.

The following is from "conveyances" in the office of the Register of the City of New York: "Jan. 15, 1757. Parties, Duncan Duffie and Angus McGuire, the latter going on cruise on board the Royal Hester, against His Majesty's Priv'r Warr, Capt. Sol'n Davis, Comdr., for £10 paid, agree to pay Duncan Duffie a full quarter share of all they take or make in said or any other vessel." The above instrument was recorded at the request of Duncan Duffie, Feb. 10, 1758. This was in the old French war. We can judge whether his privateering was profitable from the following, also on record in the same office:—

"Feb. 8th, Mr. John McGregor to Duncan Duffie, Dr.
