PREFACE.

These pages contain a fairly complete record of five generations, in the male line, of the descendants of Richard Warren, the twelfth Signer of the Mayflower Compact. Pages three to twenty-three are reprinted from the January and April numbers of the "New-England Historical and Genealogical Register," and those that follow are additions thereto. The writer would be glad to have her attention called to any errors or omissions, and would be sincerely grateful for further information concerning numbers 20, 25, 26, 27, 28 and 29, and she hopes that the data here collected may attract the interest and arouse the enthusiasm of members of the Warren family, and that valuable additions from private sources may be added to the all too meagre records now existing of the descendants of the first Warren of America.

Since it has been proven beyond question, that Richard Warren's wife Elizabeth was not Elizabeth Ivatt of St. Prolph, Aldgate (as was claimed in the Warren Genealogy, published in 1854, by Dr. John Collins Warren), it is hoped that interest will be stimulated among his many descendants, to ascertain who she really was, and to rescue from oblivion the English records of "grave Richard Warren" and his wife "Mistress Elizabeth."

RICHARD WARREN OF THE MAYFLOWER, AND SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS.

RICHARD WARREN, the first of the Warren name in America, sailed from Plymouth, Eng., in the historic "Mayflower," 6 September, 1620 (O. S.) He was not of the Leyden Company, but joined the Pilgrims from London,* and he was one of the signers of the Compact framed in the cabir of the "Mayflower" while in Cape Cod Harbor, which was the first plat form of civil government in the new world, and which converted the band of unknown adventurers into an immortal Commonwealth. Morton, in his New England's Memorial, prints his name as twelfth in the list of signers, and Prince in his New England Chronology adds the honorable prefix of "Mr." from the Register at the end of Bradford's folio manuscript. He was one of the third exploring party which was surprised by the Indians,† 18 December, 1620, at the spot since known as "The First Encounter,"‡ and, technically speaking, he was one of the first to land at Plymouth, 21 December, 1620, on what might be called the birth-day of New England.

Inder the land division of 1623, Richard Warren's an Itionment, as one of the "Mayflower" passengers, fell in the north side of the town with William White, Edward Winslow, John Goodman, John Crackston, John Alden, Marie Chilton, Captain Myles Standish, Francis Eaton, Henry Sampson and Humilitie Coopers; and under those who came in the "Ann," his lands were "on the other side of the towne towards Eele River," where he made his home, in the section later known as Wellingstey or Hobshole, and where he died in 1628. He also owned land along the shore of the present Warren's Cove.

He was one of the nineteen signers of the Compact who survived the first winter. A cotemporaneous authority described him as "grave Richard Warren," "a man of integrity, justice and uprightness, of piety and serious religion," and as "a useful instrument during the short time he lived, bearing a deep share in the difficulties and troubles of the plantation."

He married in England, Elizabeth -----,* who followed him to Plymouth in the "Ann" in 1623, accompanied by her daughters. Warren was rated in the Plymouth tax list of 1632-3, and was one of the first purchasers of Dartmouth. A study of the early Plymouth records leads to the conclusion that she was a woman of force and social position in the community, and she is therein usually spoken of as "Mistress" Elizabeth Warren, a designation by no means common. And she is one of the rare instances in that early colony of continued widowhood. A glimpse of one side of her domestic life is to be had in connection with the prosecution by the General Court of her servant, Thomas Williams, 5 July, 1635, for "speaking profane & blasphemous speeches against ye majestie of God." "There being some dissention between him and his dame, she after other things, exhorted him to fear God & doe his duty."† Upon the marriage of her daughters, Mrs. Warren conveyed to their respective husbands certain lands, variously located at Eel River and Wellingsly. ‡ She died at Pivmouth, 2 October, 1673, aged above ninety years. For some unknown reason, unless there is a mistake in the record, she was not buried until the twenty-second day after her death. when it was entered on the records that she, "haueing lived a godly life, come to her grave as a shoke of corn fully

*Her maiden name is not known. In the Warren Genealogy, published in 1854 by Dr. John Collins Warren, her name is given as Elizabeth Juatt. While it is true that a certain Richard Warren of Greenwich in Kent married Elizabeth, daughter of —— Ivat and widow of —— Marsh, as appears in the 1620 visitation of Devon, there is no proof that that Richard Warren is the one who came to Plymouth. The late Horetio Gates Somerby, who supplied the abstracts and copies of English records used by Or. Warren, told me not many years before his death that he did not see proof sheets of Or. Warren's book, and that he did not identify the Richard Warren of Plymouth and the John Warren of Watertown as the Richard and the John Warren of the Devons ire visitation. In the tabular pedigree at the end of Dr. Warren's book, he has a same at the Richard and John of the visitation pedigree were the New England man. At the flichard and John of the visitation pedigree were the New England man. At the time when that book was published it was not unusual to assume connection with English families on evidence as slight as the similarity of names. Modern vitual researches have overthrown many of such assumptions.

In this same tabular pedigree Peter Warren of Boston (great grand-father of Gen-Joseph Warren, who was killed at Bunker Hill) is given as the son of John Warren of Watertown. The late Dr. Henry Bond, compiler of Watertown Genealogies, told me that he had found ample proof that Peter Warren was not the son of John of Watertown.—John Wand Daan.

that he had found ample proof that Peter Warren was not the son of John of Walertown.—John Ward Dean.

In 1872 the Harleian Society published an edition of the Devonshire Visitation of 1820, and in this edition the much discussed Warren Pedigree appeared, with the statement, "Inserted by later hand." That is was not the work of the visiting heralds of 1820, and that the John and Richard, named as sons of Christopher Warren of the pedigree, are not identical with Richard Warren of the Mayflower, and John Warren of Watertown, is clear from the following facts: Christopher Warren married Afree Webb, 15 June, 1613. His second son, John, was born in 1617, hence not the John Warren, "aged about 45 years," who emigrated to Massachusetts in 1639, in the floet with Saltonstall, and became the founder of the Warrens of Watertown. If theref, the third son of Christopher Warren, was baptized at Sydenham Daurell, 15 August, 1619, and was five years younger than his wife, Mrs. Elizal ath March, who was not licensed to marry her first husband until 1649. The license reads: "March, Francis, gent., of Stepney, backelor, 26, and Elizabeth Ivatt of St. Botolph, Aldgate, spinster, loadaughter of Oliver Ivatt, deceased, consent of Hugh Bourman her father (in law), at Westbam, Essex, 20 August, 1629." (London Marriage Licenses.) This first marniage of Elizabeth (Ivatt) March was one year after Richard Warren, the Mayflower Pigrine, had died at Plymouth, Massachusetts.—J. Granvelle Leads.

He was, however, of sufficient age in 1634 to be taxed equally with his father; was a volunteer for the Pequod war, 7 June, 1637, "if provision could be made for his family." It was in this year that Mrs. Warren, in consideration of a marriage solemnized between her daughter Sarah and John Cooke the younger, of Rockey Nook, conveyed to the said John land at Eel River, which he shortly after, 11 November, 1637, exchanged with his brother-in-law, Richard Bartlett.* He was a member of the Plymouth military company, August, 1643, and a representative from Plymouth in the General Court of the colony, 1638-9, 1641-4, 1647, 1653-6. Plymouth Church had made him one of its deacons, but disagreeing with the pastor, Reverend John Reyner, upon theological issues, and with others of the colony, upon the persecution of the Quakers, he removed to Dartmouth, of which he was one of the first purchasers; selectman 1670, 1672-3, 1675, 1679-83, and representative to the General Court 1666-8, 1673-5, 1679-1682, 1686. John Cooke was one of the partners in the building of the first vessel of the colony-"the forty ton leviathian of the deep, the pride and delight of Plymouth"-and was appointed to build a ferry between Dartmouth and Rhode Island. About the time of his settlement in Dartmouth he became an adherent of the religious principles implanted by Roger Williams and Obadiah Holmes, and was for many years a minister of the Baptist denomination.

He died at Dartmouth, 23 November, 1695, the last male survivor of the passengers on the "Mayflower," and lies buried at Oxford, the upper village of the town, with no monument to mark his resting place. His will, executed 9 November, 1694, is recorded in Bristol County Registry of Probate, I, 139.

- 5. ELIZABETH WARREN<sup>2</sup> (Richard<sup>1</sup>), born in England, was also a passenger in the "Ann," and died at Hingham, Massachusetts, 4 March, 1670. She married at Plymouth, about 1635-6, Richard Church, the first of that surname in America. Mr. Church probably arrived at Boston in the fleet with Winthrop, and requested admission as freeman of Massachusetts Colony, 19 October, 1630, but removed to Plymouth, and was there received as freeman, 2 January, 1632-3. He served in the Pequot war, in which he doubtless earned the title of Sergeant, by which he was subsequently known. In 1647 he exchanged his lands at Eel River, Plymouth, given him by Mrs. Warren, and removed to Hingham. He made a deposition at Sand. wich, 25 August, 1664, in which he gave his age as "about 56 yeares." He died at Dedham, 27 December, 1669, and was buried at Hingham. His will, dated two days earlier, provided for wife Elizabeth and all of his children, though naming but son Joseph, who was to receive a double portion in consideration of his lame hand.

†The Plymouth Records have opposite his name: "died the same day." There however, no other date of birth given to the Joseph who was the eldest son and decutor of the father's will in 1754. It is, of course, possible for him to have been beginning to the other children.

The administration of his estate was granted to Seth Harlow, 1 June, 1767. The first division of his lands took place 7 July, 1772,* and the last, 27 August, 1794.† Mrs. Warren, the widow, was living at the former, and called "deceased" at the latter.

- 19. Samuel Warren<sup>5</sup> (Samuel, Richard, Nathaniel, Richard), was born at Middleborough, 9 August, 1707, and for many years was a resident of that town, indeed probably died there. His land transactions were numerous, and the last of record is the conveyance of 26 April, 1769, in which his wife Rebecca joins, to his son Jabez, of the whole of his homestead farm in Middleborough. The deed recites that in consideration of such conveyance, the son Jabez gave a bond for the support of his father and mother.* Mr. Warren was a member of the First Church of Middleborough, having been admitted by baptism, with his parents, 6 July, 1729. It is quite possible that he had other children than those below named.

He married at Middleborough, 13 June, 1734, Rebecca Durham, probably daughter of Eleazar and Miriam Durham.

Children:

- BETTY WARREN,<sup>5</sup> bapt. 4 April, 1741; m. 13 January, 1763, James Weston.
- ii. Jabez Warren, m. 17 January, 1767, Zilpah, daughter of Nathaniel Hooper of Bridgewater. By conveyance of 6 June, 1770, in which his wife joined, he disposed of his farm at Middleborough, and shortly afterward removed to Oakham, Worcester County, where, under date of 19 May, 1773, he sold a portion of lands acquired in Oakham. His wife Zilpah was also a party to the latter transaction.

- 20. Cornelius Warren<sup>5</sup> (Samuel, Richard, Nathaniel, Richard), was born at Middleborough, 12 June, 1709, and died there about 1750. He was probably a mariner. On 1 June, 1739, his father conveyed unto him land at Middleborough. He married at Plymouth, 18 January, 1732, Mercy, daughter of Nathan Ward by his wife Elizabeth Pope. She married 2d, 15 April, 1752, James Howard of Plymouth, and was again a widow, 20 October, 1770, when she joined with her son Joseph Warren in a deed of that date.

James Warren<sup>5</sup> (Samuel, Richard, Nuthaniel, Richard), was born at Middleborough, 24 February, 1710-11, and for some years was a resident of that town and a member of its First Church, as was also his wife. He removed to Freetown, Massachusetts, and later to Westport, where, under date of 4 December, 1788, he conveyed to his sons Cornelius and Gamaliel, of Tiverton, certain lands in Tiverton.* He died at what is now Fall River, in 1790. Mr. Theodore Warrent of Warren, Rhode Island, found the grave, removed the remains to his family lot in the North Main Street Cemetery, and placed a stone thereon with the following inscription:-"In memory of | James Warren, | of the fifth generation from | Richard Warren of the Mayflower. | He was born in Middleboro. Mass., in | 1710, settled in Tiverton, now Fall | River, and died there about 1790, was buried on his farm and removed from thence by his great-grandson, | Theodore Warren, | who erected this stone to his memory."

He married at Freetown, 4 September, 1735, Mary Terry, who is said to have died at Nine Partners, New York.

‡An advertisement in the Newport Mercury of 24 June, 1776, thus locates his homestead: "To be sold. By Gamaliel Warren. At the North-end of Tiverton, a mile and a half to the Eastward of Fall River, on the road that leads from Fall River to Dartmouth. About 30 acres of land, with a good dwelling house about 4 or 5 years old, with 4 good fire rooms in it. Whoever has a mind to purchase said land and louse may apply to said Warren on the premises or to the printer hereof."

22. NATHAN WARREN<sup>5</sup> (Samuel, Richard, Nathaniel, Richard), was born at Middleborough, 5 March, 1712, and died there 15 February, 1784. He joined the first church of Middleborough, 6 July, 1729, but neither he, or his children, are further mentioned on the church records. By deed of 24 March, 1781,* he made over to his sons Nathan and Sylvanus, the latter styled "gentleman," land previously received from his father, Samuel Warren, of Middleborough, and also land purchased of his brother Benjamin Warren. To this his wife Rachel released her right of dower.

The surname of his wife Rachel has not been found, though it is thought by some of her descendants to have been Doty. Her tombstone in the old cemetery at Middleborough reads: "Rachel wife of Nathan Warren," but the dates are obliterated. There may have been other children than those given below.

Under date of 9 February, 1782, he conveyed to his son Sylvanus all his homestead in Middleborough, bordering on lands of his brother Nathan; to which his wife Jedidah resigned her right of dower.

He married, 31 December, 1741, Jedidah Tupper, born at Middleborough in 1724, and died there, 20 October, 1807. Two of their descendants have had a world-wide reputation. Very little has been ascertained concerning him, and the name of his wife has not been learned, unless he be the John Warren of Newport who declared intention of marriage with Sarah Ingraham of Bristol, 16 September, 1744. The names of his children are taken from the will of his father. There is a pedigree in Munsell's American Ancestry which states that he had a son Josiah, born at Scituate, 8 April, 1748, and died at Norridgewock, Maine, 4 August, 1795, and that the father died near Groton in 1753, but these statements lack confirmation.

died, 28 November, 1808. He was graduated at Harvard in 1745, and became a prosperous merchant of Plymouth, and one of its most eminent citizens. He was commissioned high sheriff of Plymouth County, and was the third of his name to fill that office, his father and grandfather having preceded him. In 1766, he was chosen to represent Plymouth in the General Court of Massachusetts, where he served until its dissolution in 1774. He took a prominent part in the establishment of the system of committees of correspondence. After the death of General Joseph Warren, at Bunker Hill, he was chosen to succeed him as president of the Provincial Congress of Massachusetts, and while the American army was at Cambridge he was Paymaster-General. General Warren was an interesting figure of the Revolutionary period, and a friend and correspondent of the immortal Washington. Among the letters preserved in the family is one touching on Washington's then hoped for visit to New England, in which the latter writes in 1785: "It would afford me great pleasure to go over those grounds in your State, with a mind more at ease than when I travelled them in 1775 and 1776, and to unite in congratulations on the happy change, with those characters who participated in the anxious moments we passed in those days, and for whom I entertain a sincere regard." After the Constitution was formed, General Warren was many years Speaker of the House of Representatives. In 1780, he was Lieutenant-Governor of the State under Hancock, but refused to serve, and he also declined other important offices.

General Warren married at Barnstable, in November, 1754, Mercy, daughter of Colonel James Otis of Barnstable, by his wife Mary Allyne, a great-granddaughter of Edward Doty, a Mayflower passenger. An excellent portrait of Mary Allyn Otis, in the costume of that time, was, some time since in the possession of her grandson, the late Honorable Harrison Gray Otis of Boston.

Mercy Otis was born at Barnstable, 14 September, 1728, and died at Plymouth, 19 October, 1814. She had a brilliant as well as a powerful mind, took an active part in the politics of the day, and held correspondence with some of the foremost statesmen of the times. With a brother, Honorable James Otis, so many years the chief leader and adviser in all the councils of opposition to the encroachments of the mother government, and with a husband earnestly engaged in the same cause, she could not fail to become acquainted with all the principles and occurrences of that stirring period, in which her disposition led her to be deeply interested. She wrote political speeches for some of the members of the Convention called for adopting the Federal constitution in 1788, and one of the speakers was detected in his borrowed plumage by the eloquence and the style of his oration, and from his ignorance of some of her classical allusions. She also wrote a history of the Revolutionary war, which was published in three volumes, octavo, in 1805. This work shows great research and sound judgment. It is seldom that women have written of battles with success, even in fiction, but certainly Mrs. Warren shows that she had clear ideas of a fight. In drawing the picture of John Adams, she exhibited him as inclining to aristocratic principles, which produced a lively correspondence between the statesman and historian, but which was amicably settled, and notes of courtesy passed between them.* Some of her writings were published under the title. "Poems. Dramatic and Miscellaneous" (Boston, 1790), and contain "The Squabble of the Tea-Nymphs," an account of the Boston Tea Party, somewhat after the style of the Rape of the Lock; "The Group," in which Governor Hutchinson and other prominent tories were satirized; "The Ladies of Castile"; and "The Sack of Rome." She was the life long friend of Abigail Adams, and enjoyed an equally friendly relation with Mrs. Washington. Indeed, one of the most interesting letters written by Mrs. Washington, which has found its way to the public eye, was addressed to Mrs. Warren. Her portrait, painted by Copley in her early matronhood, gives evidence of the beauty of the original. Her word-picture of herself in her later years, is as an autumn tint to the fulness of summer:

"Me, 'fortune favor's not, though friends caress,'—With every wish denied the power to bless.
On pleasures' throne my seat was never reared,
On life's gay theatre I ne'er appeared:
In sorrows' vale were passed my carliest years—
There did I learn the luxury of tears;
And now, deprived of health, no power I boast—
Like a wrecked vessel on some desert coast,
Or a weak barque upon the ocean tossed,
Each cheering, social scene, to me is lost."

She and her husband were interred on Burial Hill, Plymouth, where a stone with the following legend marks the spot:

"General James Warren died November 28, 1808; aged 82. Mercy Warren his wife, daughter of James Otis of Barnstable, died October 19, 1814, aged 86."
