ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

The compiler desires to acknowledge his very great indebtedness to George Tolman, Esquire, of Concord, Mass., for valuable information and assistance. All in the following pages which relates to the first three generations of Wheelers has been generously furnished by him. Mr. Tolman has devoted much time to careful and critical research into the history of the early Concord families, and there is no better authority upon the subject than he.

The late William F. Wheeler of Lincoln, Mass., rendered valuable assistance in searching the Concord and Acton records, and in other ways.

The thanks of the compiler are also due to Professor George T. Little of Brunswick, Maine, and to the Reverend Samuel May of Leicester, Mass., for valuable suggestions and assistance, and to the numerous members of the Wheeler and Warren families who have kindly and cheerfully responded to his requests for information, and who have aided him in various ways in the preparation of this record.

EXPLANATORY.

The arrangement of the genealogies contained in this book is similar to that of most works of the kind. A general account of the family is first given, followed by an account of its first known ancestor, then of his children, and so on.

On the left of the name of each descendant is a number, printed in large type. These numbers run in consecutive order and serve to identify the individual. A star prefixed to a number signifies that the name thus marked is made the subject of a paragraph farther on in the book, where it will be found with the individual's number printed above it. A separate paragraph is given to each male descendant bearing the family name concerning whom sufficient information has been obtained to warrant one. In these paragraphs, directly to the right of the name, is placed a small figure which indicates the generation. Adjoining, printed in italics, and within brackets, are given the names of the male ancestors. These names show at a glance one's line of descent. An account of each female descendant will be found under the record of her father, it being beyond the scope of this work to bring the lines down through other families.

To find one's place in the genealogy consult the family index for the individual's number. If it has a star before it turn to the paragraph having the same number above it. If no star is given find the number in the left-hand margin. Having found one place in the genealogy his ancestry can be easily traced by noting the number in the center of the page above the paragraph and then finding the same number in the left-hand margin, and so on.

To determine the relationship between two individuals compare the names printed in italics and inclosed in brackets, beginning at the right hand. If none of the names within the brackets coincide the two persons are first, second, third cousins according as there are one, two or three names included. In case the names are the same at the beginning, reject these and compute as before from the balance.

The compiler regrets that diligent inquiries have failed to elicit information concerning some members of the two families and their descendants, and that in other cases the information received is incomplete.

Every effort has been made to secure correctness in the various family records herein given, but some errors will doubtless be found. It is impossible in a work of this character, where the compiler has to rely largely upon information furnished by many correspondents, that absolute correctness in all cases should be secured. He confidently trusts, however, that such errors as may be found will not impair the general usefulness of the work.

THE WHEELER FAMILY.

The Wheeler family is of English origin, but no attempt is herein made to give any account of the English family beyond the simple statement that at least some of its members belonged to the aristocracy, it being a matter of record that during the reign of Charles II. (1649-1685), Sir Charles Wheeler was appointed "Captain-General of the Caribbee Islands," and that, in 1693, the English fleet under command of Sir Francis Wheeler, put into Boston to recruit. Mr. Orcutt, the historian of Stratford, Conn., says that Wheelers were in and around London four hundred years.

Between 1620 and 1650, there were many families of the name who came from England, and settled in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Virginia. In Hotten's "Lists of Emigrants to America, 1600-1700," it is stated that in 1620, Henrie Wheeler arrived in Virginia in the Tryall; that Edward Wheeler embarked at London, May 16, 1635, in the Plaine Joane for Virginia; that July 24, 1635, John Wheeler embarked in the Assurance from London for Virginia; and that Aug. 1, 1679, John Wheeler, Jr., embarked at London in the ship Returne for New England. There was a John Wheeler in Newbury, Mass., who, Savage says, came in the Mary and John in 1634. His will, 1668, mentions children and grandchildren here, and sons Adam, Edward and William in Salisbury, county of Wilts, England. George, Joseph and Obadiah were among the early settlers of Concord, Mass., and may have been members of the first party which settled there in 1635. Thomas, Timothy, Ephraim and Thomas, Jr., came to Concord directly from England in 1639. There was a Thomas in Boston in 1636; an Isaac in Charlestown, made a freeman in 1643; a Joseph in Newbury, who died in 1659; a Thomas in Lynn, made a freeman in 1642; and a Moses in Stratford, Conn., who, Mr. Orcutt, the historian of Stratford, says, was born in 1598, in the county of Kent, England.

Shattuck says, that between 1650 and 1680, there were in Concord alone, thirty distinct families of the name. Farmer records as an interesting fact that twenty-six of the name had graduated from New England colleges in 1826.

The Wheelers named in the following pages are descendants of George, of Concord, the record being carried in a single line to the fourth generation, commencing at which the various branches are given.

GEORGE WHEELER, OF CONCORD, AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

George Wheeler was certainly in Concord in 1638, his name appearing in the first year's records of the town, and it is not unlikely that he was one of the very first settlers in 1635. From what part of England he came is uncertain, and the relationship between him and the other Wheelers who came to Concord about the same time is unknown. The records of only a comparatively few English parishes have been printed. It is found, however, that the names Thomas, Joseph, Timothy and Obadiah appear frequently in various parishes in the county of Kent, and as these names were most common among the early New England members of the family, it is probable that the Concord Wheelers came from that part of England, and were related. George Wheeler appears to have been a person of consequence and presumably, a man of education and judgment, for he was often intrusted with important matters and put on many committees for the transaction of public business, and we find his name signed to all sorts of petitions and memorials to the General Court from the first settlement of the town to the very year of his death. He was selectman in 1660. He was a man of wealth and owned land in every part of the township — Brook Meadow, Fairhaven Meadow, the Cranefield, by Walden, Goose and Flint's pond, on White Pond Plain, on the Sudbury line, etc. He died between the years 1685 and 1687, his will being dated in January, 1685, and offered for probate 2 June, 1687.

His wife's name was Katharine, but nothing more is known concerning her except that she died in Concord, 2 January, 1684-5.

They had eight children, five of whom may have been born in England, as their births are not recorded here.

Thomas², was doubtless born in the old country. He married, 10 Oct., 1657, Hannah Harrod (or Harwood as the name is now spelled). He died in Dec., 1686, and his estate was administered at Boston 21 Sept., 1687. An inventory of his estate is recorded in the Suffolk Reg., X, 115, and begins, "An inventory of the goods and estate of Thomas Wheeler, son of George Wheeler, late of Concord, deceased."

Thomas² [*Thomas*¹], called in the records of Concord "Ensign," was born in Concord, Mass., 1 Jan., 1659-60. He married 13 Nov., 1695, Sarah Davis, daughter of Lieut. Simon and Mary (Blood) Davis. She was born 11 March, 1665-6, and died 5 Aug., 1728, in the 63d year of her age. He died 2 Oct., 1734, in the 75th year of his age.

They lived in what was then called the "East Quarter," on the land which had been the site of the dwelling-place of his father, "Thomas Wheeler, Senior." This was on the "Bay Road," the way leading to Boston, and included probably the estate since occupied by Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Thomas⁴ [*Thomas*³, *Thomas*²], called in the records of Concord "Lieut.," and later in life receiving the title of "Deacon," was born in Concord, 14 Aug., 1696. He married, first, Mary Brooks, daughter of Daniel and Ann (Meriam) Brooks. She was born in Concord, 2 Mch., 1699-1700, and died in Worcester, 18 May, 1740, aged 40. He married, second, Susannah ——. She died in Worcester, 23 Sept., 1760, aged 58.

Thomas Wheeler appears to have sold out his possessions in the old part of Concord on 13 Dec., 1722, and to have removed to the "village," or "new grant," which was afterward (in 1735) set off as Acton. He was the first Town Clerk of Acton, in 1735-6; he was also a member of the Board of Selectmen of the town the same years. He removed to Worcester, between 22 Mch., 1739, and 18 May, 1740. His dismissal from the church in Acton to that in Worcester, was dated 22 Mch., 1741. He was one of the Selectmen of Worcester, in 1743, 1744, 1745, 1749, 1751 and 1753. He was elected deacon of the First Church in Worcester, 14 Jany., 1748 and held the office until his death in 1769.

In Worcester he resided upon his farm which adjoined the Leicester line on the old road to Leicester.

Soon after the marriage of his son Amos, in 1762, he went to Hardwick, Mass, where three of his sons resided, and died there, 31 Jan., 1769. His gravestone is still to be seen in Hardwick, though much worn, and with its inscription nearly obliterated. Deacon Wheeler was evidently a man of considerable wealth, as is shown by conveyances of property from and to him, as recorded in the Middlesex and in the Worcester Registry of Deeds.

Daniel⁵ [*Thomas*⁴, *Thomas*³, *Thomas*²], was born in Concord in 1728-9. He married, first, Betty Holloway, daughter of Lieut. William Holloway of Northborough, now Marlboro, Mass. She died in Hardwick, 7 March, 1774. He married, second, Mrs. Mary Cleveland of New Marlborough, published 2 April, 1775. She died 7 Dec., 1810. He settled in Hardwick where he died 10 Jan., 1813, aged 84. He was a farmer, respected for honesty and integrity but not prominent in public affairs. In various legal documents he was styled "Gentleman." About the time of the Revolution he owned largely in real estate but the vicissitudes of the times compelled him to mortgage the greater part of his property, taking therefor Continental money which subsequently depreciated to seven dollars on a thousand and left him on the verge of poverty.

Children:

Amos⁵ [Thomas⁴, Thomas³, Thomas²], was born in Acton, then a part of Concord, Mass., in July, 1733. He married, 2 May, 1762, Mary Belcher Henshaw, daughter of Daniel* and Elizabeth [Bass†] Henshaw. She was born in Boston, 20 June, 1739, and died 20 Nov., 1824. He died 20 Nov., 1820. After his marriage, as before, he lived with his father upon the old homestead, until 17 Feb., 1764, when he purchased one-half of the homestead and his father went to Hardwick to live with another son who resided there. Subsequently he purchased additional land in the vicinity and after the death of his father he came into full possession of the homestead. A deed executed 14 April, 1769, from "Daniel Wheeler, gentleman, of Hardwick, Nathan Wheeler, yeoman, and Thomas Wheeler, yeoman, both of Hardwick, for and in consideration of ninety-four pounds eleven shillings and eight pence," deeds to "Amos Wheeler, yeoman, of Worcester, all the right, title and interest we ever had, now have, or should have in and unto a certain tract or parcel of land laying and being in Worcester aforesaid, containing by estimation twenty-six acres, more or less, and is part of the home stade which was our honored fathers thomas Wheeler late of Hardwick deceased and lays and bounds as follows, viz. southerly on land of Amos Wheeler foresaid being parte of said home stade, westerly partely on land of Jabes Green and partly on land of said Amos northerly on land of said Amos Easterly on said Amoses land partly and partly on our land being part of said home stade left us by our father aforesaid by will together with the dwelling hous the barn and other Buildings thereon standing, to have and to hold," etc.

* He was son of Joshua and great-grandson of William of Lancashire, Great Britain.

† She was daughter of Samuel and Mary [Alden] Bass, the latter being the daughter of John and Priscilla Alden, made famous by Longfellow's well-known poem.

Amos Wheeler was a large, portly man, over six feet in height, with a high forehead and a bald head. He was a man of excellent judgment and of more than ordinary intelligence for the time in which he lived, and his advice was frequently sought in business and other matters. He was of an argumentative disposition, and was fond of discussing political and religious questions; and although he was earnest in his discussions and strong in his convictions, he was good-natured and charitable toward his opponent.

In middle life he was in excellent circumstances. He owned a large and valuable farm, well stocked, and with a good dwelling-house and farm buildings.

His house was well furnished, and he is said to have owned the handsomest carriage in Worcester. He was very hospitable, and his guests were from the wealthiest and most cultivated families in Worcester and Boston.

About the year 1790 he had a severe attack of rheumatism, which left him lame and obliged him to use crutches the rest of his life. This misfortune prevented his working upon his farm or having a proper oversight of the work which was performed by hired help. Subsequently he leased the farm at "halves," but for want of proper supervision it rapidly deteriorated, the buildings were neglected, and at last, in 1814, his son-in-law, Elijah Warren, in order to save the property from further depreciation, prevailed upon him to sell it. This was done, and Amos, his wife, daughter Charlotte and granddaughter Mary B. H. Wheeler, whom he had adopted, went to Leicester and lived in a part of Mr. Warren's house.

Mrs. Wheeler was a very superior woman. Rev. Dr. Nelson, in his remarks at her funeral, said of her : "It was her happiness to be born of parents who knew the value of education, and who were capable of forming her mind to habits of intellectual exertion, refinement and virtue. At the same time they impressed upon her mind and walked before her in all Christian example. Her only intercourse was with the higher classes in society. Her associates were the intelligent, the accomplished and the religious. Hence religion with her had peculiar charms. Being associated with all that was graceful and winning in its exterior deportment, it was set off, if we may so speak, with the graces of affability, kindness and good breeding."

Before her marriage she had received attentions from both the brothers Charles and Amos Wheeler. Both tried to win her, and being compelled to choose between them, she accepted Charles who was a physician and well educated, and therefore was, perhaps, more congenial to her than Amos, whose education was more limited. The doctor, however, died before their wedding day arrived. After the death of Charles, Amos renewed his suit and was accepted. Several silver tablespoons now in the family marked "C. W. to M. B. H.," were given by Dr. Charles Wheeler to Miss Mary Belcher Henshaw in anticipation of their intended marriage.

He took part in Shay's Rebellion, being one of the prominent officers among the insurgents, was tried for treason and condemned, but was pardoned, and was afterward elected and commissioned Captain of Militia. It is a family tradition that he was one of the finest officers on parade.

He married, second, 18 June, 1803, Mrs. Lydia (Randall) Dean, daughter of Benjamin Randall of Scituate, fourth generation from William of Scituate. She died 29 Sept., 1856, aged 89 years, 15 days. He died 17 Nov., 1806.

It is said of Amos Wheeler that he was naturally active and energetic, but that early cares and disappointments discouraged him and he became somewhat shiftless, or at least lost some of his energy and perseverance. Among other causes was his early marriage. His first wife was an intellectual woman, of excellent moral character, but she was extravagant in the management of her household affairs and she was, besides, somewhat of an invalid, which necessitated the employment of hired help and this, with their rapidly increasing family, made his expenses larger than he could easily meet.

In early life he lived with his father on the farm in Worcester. Later he was employed in a neighboring town as a cabinet-maker and was esteemed a good workman. Subsequently he removed to Woodstock, Vt., where he lived at the time of his death. His moral character is said to have been without reproach.

His second wife was a smart, active woman who was a real help to him during the few years of their married life.

They were both members of the Congregational church and led exemplary lives. In politics he was a Whig. His occupation was that of a clothier. He was a very ingenious man, and once told a friend that the only thing he ever failed in making was an Indian basket; he had plenty of "nuity," but not enough "ingen" in his makeup.

Daniel Wheeler⁷ [*John*⁶, *Daniel*⁵, *Thomas*⁴, *Thomas*³, *Thomas*²], was born 7 Oct., 1783. He married Sally, daughter of Col. Thomas Wheeler, 3 Nov., 1814. Resided in Hardwick. He died 13 June, 1864. She died 26 June, 1864, aged 70.

His father dying when he was but eleven years of age, his grandfather took him, with his brothers and sisters and their mother, to his home. Daniel being the oldest of the boys, was obliged to work early and late, and had but little opportunity to obtain an education. After his grandfather's death, and his own marriage, he sold the old farm and bought a new one south of the "Centre," where his ten children were born. He was an industrious and an honest man and a good citizen, but he was not prominent in public affairs. He was a member of the Congregational church, and in politics was a Whig. At the age of sixty, he fell on the ice and broke his arm, and in consequence of mal-practice on the part of the attending physician, amputation was rendered necessary. This rendered him nearly helpless for the rest of his life, but he bore his misfortune with heroic fortitude. Four years before his death he moved to Worcester in order to be with his children. He and his wife were both buried in the family lot in Hardwick.

Amos Dean⁷ [*Amos*⁶, *Amos*⁵, *Thomas*⁴, *Thomas*³, *Thomas*²], was born in Woodstock, Vt., 13 Dec., 1803. He married, 25 Aug., 1830, Louisa Amelia Warren, daughter of Elijah and Mary Belcher (Wheeler) Warren, of Leicester, Mass. He died 28 June, 1876.

His father dying when he was three years old, he was adopted by James Udall, Esquire, of Hartland, Vt., with whom he lived until seventeen years of age, receiving instruction in the common schools and at Thetford Academy. In 1820 he went to Leicester, Mass., where his relatives resided, and attended Leicester Academy for a while, subsequently teaching school until he entered Williams College, from which he graduated in 1827. He then taught the academy at Marlboro for two years, at the expiration of which time he was elected principal of the Latin Grammar School in Salem. He remained in that position for three years, studying theology, meantime, with the Reverend Charles Upham, D. D., who was then pastor of the First Church in Salem. Resigning his school in 1832, he spent a year at Harvard Divinity School, graduating therefrom in 1833. From Cambridge he went to Meadville, Pa., to supply the pulpit of the Unitarian Society, and remained there seven or eight months. While at Meadville he received a call to settle over that parish, but declined on account of the distance from his relatives and friends. In 1834 he was invited to and was settled over the Unitarian Society in Standish, Me. He continued in that place until 1839, when he received a call to settle in Topsham, Me., where he ever after lived. For fourteen years he preached in the Unitarian Meeting-House in Topsham. At the end of that time the Unitarian Society of Topsham and the Universalist Society of Brunswick were united under the name of "The Mason Street Religious Society," in Brunswick, and Mr. Wheeler was invited to become pastor of the new organization. He preached to this society until 1865, when he resigned and was soon after appointed missionary for the American Unitarian Association to the State of Maine.

In 1860 he received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Bowdoin College. He was a member of the Maine Historical Society and for many years was a member of its standing committee. Soon after coming to Topsham he was elected a member of the superintending school committee of the town and held the position until within a few years of his death. He was also for many years on the committee of examination of Bowdoin College. "He was a man of unquestioned ability, of cultivated and literary tastes, an easy graceful writer and ready in extempore address. Few of his contemporaries excelled him in mathematical scholarship. He kept well up with the college curriculum in all its departments. He had a poetic taste and faculty beyond the average of cultivated men. Of clear mental vision and acute argumentative powers, he was strong as he was also fair and good-natured in general debate."

"Calm habitually, even to sedateness, self-governed and judicious, he could yet make merry with the gayest within the bounds of right and reason. Of singular purity of life and conversation, possessing a heart as tender and true as that of a child, scorning all equivocations, pursuing the right with unflinching purpose, leading the life of the humble and devoted Christian he won the love and esteem of all who knew him."*

His wife, now eighty-four years of age, is living with her son Henry in Brunswick, Me.

He was a young man of much promise and a mechanical genius. In politics he was a Whig. He died in Ticonderoga 30 Sept., 1818. William Augustus⁷ [*Thomas*⁶, *Thomas*⁵, *Thomas*⁴, *Thomas*³, *Thomas*²], was born in Hardwick, Mass., 31 Mar., 1798. He married, 13 Jan., 1825, Almira Warner Allen, daughter of Moses Allen of Hardwick. She was born 20 Feb., 1803, and died 28 Feb., 1867. He died 16 Feb., 1873. He learned the trade of blacksmith and was one of the oldest iron founders in the State, having begun in 1812 at "Old Furnace Village," Hardwick, named for a furnace established many years previously by his father. From Hardwick he went to Brookfield and from there, in 1823, to Worcester, where he established an iron foundry business at the corner of Thomas and Union streets. In 1825 he became associated with some of the leading men in Worcester in a foundry at Brookfield, where all kinds of castings were made, the doors of the Court House in Worcester being of his manufacture. To run his "fan" he is credited with having the first steam engine employed in the State, west of Boston. In 1830 he returned to Worcester and re-established himself as an iron founder on the old ground, where he continued in a large and successful business for over forty years. In 1840 a machine shop was added to the establishment. Castings were made for the iron workers and tool makers in the city besides a great variety of other work, such as heavy sheet iron work, fire-proof safes, castings for heavy gearing, mill irons, plow castings and factory shafting.

He designed the first boring machine in Worcester, and in 1838 got out patterns for cooking stoves and box stoves for heating, and manufactured them. In 1842 he invented a furnace for heating buildings with wood or coal. In 1838 he added to his business the manufacture of brass castings. In 1852 his son, Charles A. Wheeler, became associated with him in business, the partnership continuing until the latter's death in 1867.

Mr. Wheeler filled many official positions from Worcester's earliest history as a city. He was always interested in its public welfare and growth, and having a practical knowledge his opinions and services were required in many schemes for the development of the fast-growing city. He was one of the Worcester Aqueduct Company in 1845. In 1848, urged thereto by influential citizens (of Worcester), he became the contractor for building the Worcester and Nashua railroad, an enterprise which his indomitable energy and skill enabled him to carry through successfully amid many discouragements and financial perils.

He was one of the original founders of the Worcester Mechanics' Association in 1841, and was elected first President of that association in 1842; was very influential in the erection of Mechanics' Hall in 1857; was one of the building committee, and when, through financial embarrassment, the building was in danger of passing out of the hands of the mechanics, his energy and enthusiasm helped, in a great measure, to save it to the association. He joined the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanics' Association in 1838, and during his life was an interested and active member of the association. He was also a member of the old Worcester Fire Society.

He was a man of indomitable will and strictest integrity, and of a very clear judgment and generous disposition, as well as of an inventive and ingenious mind. Although having but few opportunities in his youth for the pursuit of knowledge, his perseverance and industrious habits enabled him to acquire a vast fund of information outside of his business interests, and he was justly proud in considering himself, as he was, a self-made man.

He was a member of the old Second Church (Unitarian), of Worcester. In politics he was first a Whig and then a Republican. In both church and party he was an active, zealous and disinterested worker.

He and his wife, and their deceased children, are buried in the family lot in "Rural Cemetery," Worcester.

Charles Henry⁸ [*Amos Dean*⁷, *Amos*⁶, *Amos*⁵, *Thomas*⁴, *Thomas*³, *Thomas*²], was born in Salem, Mass., 11 June, 1831. He married, 5 Oct., 1854, Ellen Gardner Gage, daughter of Rev. Nathaniel Gage and Abbie (Richardson) Gage, of Westboro, Mass. She was born in Nashua, N. H., 9 July, 1828. On the 30th of June, 1888, while riding together, their carriage was struck by a freight train at the State Line Crossing, near Winchendon, Mass., and both were almost instantly killed. They were buried in the family lot at Topsham, Me. He began attending school at a very early age, and was studying the Latin grammar at the age of seven. When eleven years of age he was a pupil in the Academy at North Yarmouth, Me., and at the age of twelve he entered Bowdoin College, from which institution he was graduated in 1847. During his college course he lived at home in Topsham, a mile and a half distant from the college, attending the early morning prayers and recitations, keeping up with his class, enjoying good health, sustaining an unblemished character and a high reputation as a scholar. After his graduation he taught for a time at the Topsham, Me., Academy and subsequently at Westford, Mass. In 1851 he entered the Divinity School at Cambridge, and pursued his theological studies there for a year. He then spent a year at the University of Göttingen, and in travels on the Continent. Returning to America he rejoined his class at the Cambridge Divinity School, and was graduated with them in 1854. He was ordained as pastor of the First Unitarian Church in South Danvers (now Peabody), Mass., 4 Oct., 1854, and was the faithful pastor of that parish for eight years. In 1865 he accepted a call to the Church of the Unity, Winchendon, Mass., and was pastor of that church until his death, a period of twenty-three years. In 1867 he was elected a member of the School Committee of the town and served in that capacity until his death, and during the greater portion of his membership he was Chairman of the Board. He was a Republican in politics.

Of his life and character a writer in the Christian Register of 19 July, 1888, says: "He signally drew to himself the affections and the confidence of a people who could appreciate the force and sagacity and tenderness, combined with the exquisite taste and exact scholarship, which lay hidden beneath a calm exterior. He might have adorned a professorship of belles lettres had his convictions not have drawn him to the ministry.

"In social life he was a charming companion. His intellectual acuteness and breadth of view, with his reverent spirit and his wealth of sympathy, combined to make him an effective preacher. In his daily life, patient, cheery, untiring, yet all the time bound, as it were, like a victim to the altar of sacrifice,* he preached more pathetically, more impressively still."†

William Adolphus⁸ [*Amos Dean*⁷, *Amos*⁶, *Amos*⁵, *Thomas*⁴, *Thomas*³, *Thomas*²], was born in Leicester, Mass., 14 Nov., 1833. He married, 13 July, 1856, Olive Winsor Frazar, daughter of Samuel Alden Frazar and Maria (Winsor) Frazar of Duxbury, Mass. She was born 25 Oct., 1835. He died in Boston 28 Oct., 1874, and was buried in Duxbury.

He entered Bowdoin College in 1849, graduating in 1853. After his graduation he taught school in Marlborough, Mass., at Northfield, Mass., and, in the fall of 1854, became preceptor of Partridge Academy, Duxbury, Mass. In May, 1856, he resigned the preceptorship of Partridge Academy and removed to Cambridge to assist Dr. Worcester in the preparation of his Quarto Dictionary. In 1857 he prepared, in conjunction with Mr. Richard Soule, a spelling book which was extensively used under the name of Worcester's. In 1860 he accepted a proposition from the publishers of Webster's Dictionary to assist in the revision of that work. In 1861 he published as joint author with Mr. Richard Soule, a "Manual of English Pronunciation and Spelling." In 1864-5 he prepared for the press, and published in the latter year, a "Dictionary of the Noted Names of Fiction." In 1866 he edited, for the Messrs. Hurd & Houghton of New York, a reprint, with additions and alterations, of Hole's "Brief Biographical Dictionary." In 1867 he prepared for the Messrs. G. & C. Merriam, of Springfield, Mass., "The National Dictionary," an octavo abridgment of Webster's larger dictionary; also entirely new editions of the smaller or school editions. In April, 1868, he became connected with the Boston Public Library and in November of the same year he was chosen assistant superintendent, which position he held till his death. In 1869 he published a sumptuous edition, in quarto, of "Mother Goose's Melodies," with antiquarian and philological notes, and an account of the Goose or Vergoose family, of Boston, from one member of which the work derived its name. In 1872 he published a "Dickens' Dictionary," which bears the name of Gilbert A. Pierce on the title page as chief author, but scarcely any thing more than the copyright and general plan of the work was his.

At the time of his death he was engaged in the preparation of a new edition of Webster's Quarto Dictionary, and in the collection of materials for a "Cyclopædia of Shakesperian Literature," on the general plan of Smith's Dictionary of the Bible. He had, also, nearly ready for the press, an index to the more noted works in ancient and modern literature, entitled "Who Wrote It?" This work has since been completed and published by his nephew, Mr. Charles G. Wheeler.

"His literary work, though not of a kind to attract public attention, was yet, from the accurate and extensive learning which it displayed, such as gave him a high rank among American scholars. In his special department of lexicography he stood confessedly at the head in this country, whilst he had few equals in bibliographical knowledge. His room in the library building was the resort of many scholars who came to seek his advice and assistance; and no work was so pressing but that he laid it aside to give to the extent of his ability that for which he was asked. The vast and varied stores of his learning were opened with generous liberality to every student. Of winning sweetness of manner, the expression of a pure and noble nature in which a womanly tenderness took nothing from a genuine manliness, he attracted all who came in contact with him."*

He received from Bowdoin College the degrees of A. B. and A. M.; and from Harvard University the honorary degree of A. M. In politics he was a Republican, and in religion a Unitarian.

Henry Warren⁸ [*Amos Dean*⁷, *Amos*⁶, *Amos*⁵, *Thomas*⁴, *Thomas*³, *Thomas*²], was born in Topsham, Me., 23 May, 1840. At the age of seven (28 Apr., 1847), while stepping from "rib" to "rib" of a vessel which was then being built in Topsham, he fell and broke his leg. This accident, and a subsequent further injury to the same limb, rendered him lame for life. He was educated at the private school of his aunt, Mary B. H. Wheeler; at the common schools in Topsham; at the Topsham Academy; and at the Partridge Academy in Duxbury, Mass. His father offered him a collegiate education, but he preferred a business life. While a boy, fourteen to sixteen years of age, he was a clerk in a store and in the post-office in Topsham for one or two years. In 1858 he engaged in the business of telegraphy in Brunswick. 1 Jan., 1862, he removed to Boston, where he was employed as an operator by the American Telegraph Company, and its successor, the Western Union Telegraph Company, until 1870, when he returned to Brunswick. Previous to his leaving Boston, he entered the Boston School for the Ministry with the view of becoming a preacher of the Unitarian faith, being urged thereto by the Rev. George

H. Hepworth, president of the School, and by others, but after pursuing his studies for some time, he became more and more conscious of his lack of that early educational training which is necessary for one to become a sound and thorough scholar, and an acceptable Unitarian preacher, and he, therefore, concluded to remain in the more humble occupation for which he was better fitted. He entered upon his present duties as ticket agent at the railroad station and manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company's office in Brunswick, 1 Sept., 1870. In 1876-8 he compiled, in conjunction with his brother George, the History of Brunswick, Topsham and Harpswell, Me. In 1874 upon the organization of the Unitarian Society in Brunswick, he was elected its clerk and has been annually re-elected. In 1883, upon the formation of the Brunswick Public Library Association, he was elected a member of its board of directors, to which position he has been annually re-elected. He was one of the original members of the "Gentlemen's Club" in Brunswick, organized in 1884, and is still a member. The club is composed of twenty-five gentlemen of literary tastes, who meet fortnightly in winter for the discussion of literary, scientific, religious, political or other topics, and for social intercourse. In Jan., 1888, he was elected President of the Pejepscot Historical Society of Brunswick, and still occupies that position. He has read before the society several papers upon historical subjects, which have been published in the society's collections. His latest literary effort is this genealogy, for which he hopes for the grateful remembrance of a numerous posterity! In religion he is a Unitarian, and in politics a Republican, but not a partisan. He married, first, 1 Jan., 1865, Annie Parker McNear, daughter of James and Sarah (Trundy) McNear of Wiscasset, Me. She died 20 Jan., 1866, aged 20 years, 3 months, 26 days. He married, second, 15 Nov., 1870, Mary Ingraham Adams, daughter of Joshua Cushing and Nancy (Whitney) Adams of Owls Head, Thomaston, now Rockland, Me. She was born 12 Dec., 1847.

In 1872 he went to Washington Territory, giving his attention at first to horticulture, but since 1873, the making of roads and Soon after the latter battle he was taken sick with a disease which became chronic, in consequence of which he was discharged, 9 April, 1863. Recovering in a measure, he returned to his former clerkship in Rockport. In 1866 he engaged in trade, on his own account, in Rockport, with good success. In 1869 he removed to Perkinsville, Vt., and for ten years engaged in the manufacture of lumber, and in wood-working specialties. In 1879 he removed to Erskine, N. J., where he now resides, pursuing the occupation of farming, in addition to which he is more or less interested in several other pursuits.

While in Rockport, he was elected a member of the Board of School Trustees of the town. Later, in Weathersfield, he was several times elected First Lister, Constable and Collector, and for five years was a Justice of the Peace for the town. He also represented the town in the State Legislature in 1872-3. THE Warren Family.

Enquire, I pray thee, of the former age, and prepare thyself to the search of their fathers.—Job, viii, 8.

THE WARREN FAMILY.

The name, Warren, was derived from the name of the Manor of William, Earl Warren, which was called fief of Warrenne, or as some have supposed, from a rabbit warren which stood near by on his grounds.* He was a Norman baron of Danish extraction. He accompanied William the Conqueror on his expedition to England; fought at the battle of Hastings, 1066; was rewarded with riches that were shorn from the intrepid Saxons; and won the confidence of the Court to such an extent that when the king left England on a visit to his native land, Earl Warren was appointed one of the two guardians of the kingdom.† From this ancestry the Warrens are followed down through earls, knights and commoners to the period of the colonization of America. Then emigrants of this name settled in Plymouth, Watertown and Boston, but no proof has been discovered of a connection between these families. Richard was the first of the name to settle in America. He came in the "Mayflower" and settled in Plymouth. John came from England to Watertown in 1630, and another John settled in Boston the same year. Among the Virginia colonists, also, there were two Warrens, Joseph, who came from England in the ship "Alice" in 1635, and afterward settled in New England, and John, who came in 1635 in the "Plaine Joan."

* New England Genealogical Register.

† Genealogy of Warren, with some historical sketches, by Dr. J. C. Warren, Boston, 1854.

JOHN WARREN, of Boston, was the first American ancestor of the family herein recorded. He came with Governor Winthrop in the "Arabella," and arrived in Salem 12 June, 1630. From Salem he, with the rest of the company, went to Charlestown, whence, after a brief tarry, they went to Boston, where a final settlement was made. The name of John Warren appears in the first list of those who took the freeman's oath, 18 May, 1631. This John was doubtless the father of Peter, whose eldest son was named John.*

PETER WARREN, born in 1628, is first mentioned in Suffolk Deeds as purchasing land in Boston, on Essex street, 8 Mar., 1659, and is there styled "Mariner." He married, first, Sarah, daughter of Robert Tucker, of Dorchester, 1 Aug., 1660, by whom he had John, born 8 Sept., 1661; Joseph, born 19 Feb., 1663; Benjamin, born 25 July, 1665; Elizabeth, born 4 Jan., 1667; Robert, born 14 Dec., 1670; Ebenezer, born 11 Feb., 1672; Peter, born 20 Apr., 1676. He married, second, Hannah, by whom he had Hannah, born 19 May, 1680; Mary, born 24 Nov., 1683; Robert, born 24 Dec., 1684. He married, third, Esther, by whom he had no children.* Of these children Joseph had a son Joseph, who was father of General Joseph of Revolutionary fame.

EBENEZER WARREN, who was born in 1714 and settled in Leicester, was, with very little doubt, a grandson of Peter, but which of Peter's sons was his father is uncertain. It is the family tradition, coming through three lines from Ebenezer, of Leicester, that his (Ebenezer's) children were cousins to General Joseph. If they were first cousins, then he was uncle to the General, but it is an established fact that the General's uncle Ebenezer was born in 1699 and died in Roxbury in 1756, while Ebenezer, of Leicester, was not born until 1714, and died in 1800. The family tradition is, however, so positive and so general among the descendants, that it must have had some foundation in fact, and the most natural solution of the question is that the father of the General and Ebenezer, of Leicester, were cousins instead of brothers, and the children of the latter second cousins to the General instead of cousins, a distinction of which Ebenezer's descendants have lost sight. The name, Ebenezer, is frequent among the descendants of Peter, and is not found in the Watertown or Plymouth families of that period. There is, therefore, no reasonable doubt that Ebenezer, of Leicester, was a descendant of John, through Peter, and the evidence seems to be conclusive that he was a grandson of Peter, but, as the line cannot be traced, this record will begin with Ebenezer, of Leicester.

It is worthy of note, in passing, that a well-informed member of the family asserts that "none of Ebenezer's descendants used tobacco in any form until 1857, and but few use it now;" also that "only one has been arrested for crime, and that was for a minor offense. The name has been well honored."

EBENEZER WARREN, OF LEICESTER, AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

Ebenezer Warren first appears in Leicester in 1744, at which time he bought of Patrick Watson, for £112 10s., three acres of land with a dwelling-house, bark-house, mill-house, beam-house and tanyard. The land comprised a portion of the farm now owned by Edward Warren. In the deed conveying the property he is styled "of Medford," but the records of that town contain no account of him, and it is probable that his residence there had been of short duration. It is not positively known who his parents were. There is, however, little doubt that he was a grandson of Peter, of Boston. Joseph Warren, of Leicester, grandson of Ebenezer, made a written statement that the latter was born in Charlestown in 1714. This statement is not substantiated by the records of Charlestown, but no evidence has been found to refute it. Very little is known of his life and character beyond the fact that he was a man of intelligence and of good repute. He was evidently quite successful in business, as he added largely to his possessions, owning, a few years before his death, about one hundred acres of land, besides his dwelling-house and tanyard buildings. He died in 1800 and was buried in Leicester, but no gravestone marks the spot.

He married Lydia Harrington, of Brookfield, Mass. Nothing is known concerning her, excepting that she became insane and it was found necessary to secure her with a chain, fastened to a bolt in the kitchen, to prevent her from running away. She died in 1795.

The dwelling-house named in the deed was a small, one-story building situated on the north side of the road to Spencer, a short distance east of the road to Paxton. The tanyard was on the opposite side of the road, a little farther east. About the year 1780 he built a new house a short distance east of the old one. It was larger than the first, two stories high, with an ell of one story in the rear. Upon the death of Ebenezer the house descended to his son Elijah, and from him to his son Henry Elijah, by whom it was demolished about the year 1860.

Jonathan, was born in Leicester, 27 Nov., 1750. He married, first, 3 Jan., 1775, Martha* Bemis, of Spencer. In 1796 she fell in a fainting fit into the fire-place, where there was a large bed of oak tan burning, and was burned to death. He married, second, Lucy How. She died 11 June, 1831. He was a tanner and resided where Horace Warren now lives.

*The History of Spencer and town records of Leicester give the name Martha, but according to family tradition it was Persis. It will be noticed that there was a daughter Persis.

A portion of the old house still remains and forms a part of the present one. In 1797 he bought a one-half interest in the old tanyard, his brother Elijah owning the other half, and together they carried on the business. He died, according to one account, 4 Dec., 1824, or, according to another, 26 Jan., 1827.

Elijah², was born in Leicester in 1758. He married, first, in March, 1781, Elizabeth Wheeler, daughter of Amos and Mary Belcher (Henshaw*) Wheeler of Worcester. She was born 4 May, 1763, and died 30 Mch., 1800. He married, second, 21 June, 1801, Mary Belcher Wheeler, a sister of his first wife. She was born 19 Dec., 1774, and died 15 Aug., 1851. He died 18 July, 1843. He was a volunteer in the Revolutionary Army, and was in the battle of White Plains, N. Y. Various transfers of real estate were made to him from his father between the years 1783 and 1798, but, owing to the indefiniteness of the boundaries given in the deeds, it is impossible to locate, positively, the different lots, but they were apparently all in the western part of the town in the vicinity of Horace and Edward Warren's. On the 5th of June, 1783, for £500, Ebenezer deeded to Elijah the three acres of land with dwelling-house, bark-house, mill-house, beam-house and tanyard which he bought of Patrick Watson in 1744, together with twelve acres of land which he had purchased of Dorcas Smith, seventeen acres which he had bought of Daniel Henshaw, twenty acres bought of Capt. Daniel Denny, and four and three-quarters acres bought of Col. Samuel Denny. The deed was a warrantee deed in which his wife joined. It would appear, however, that Ebenezer repurchased at least a portion of the real estate named in the deed above mentioned, as we find that on the 23d of January, 1793, he mortgaged the first-named three acres of land and the tanyard to Elijah for five shillings; and later, 17 Feb., 1795, he sold to Elijah for £100, one acre, "being the same land I purchased of Patrick Watson," with a dwelling-house and other buildings standing thereon; and still later, 28 Jan., 1797, he sold one-half of the tanyard to Elijah for $88.34, Jonathan buying the other half at the same price; and, 25 June, 1798, he sold to Elijah for $500, ninety-seven acres of land, a portion of which seems to have been that named in the first-mentioned deed.* The dwelling-house which Elijah bought in 1795 was doubtless the one erected by Ebenezer about 1780 and which descended to Henry Elijah, by whom it was destroyed about 1860 or a little later.

Of his life and character the Reverend Samuel May says: "He was a man of great worth and general estimation. The writer of this knew him only in the last five or six years of his life and has the impression that his age and some infirmities kept him closely at home. He was not an invalid, but is remembered as mostly in his arm-chair, in the old and comfortable house opposite to the tanyard, where his years of industry had been spent, and that he appeared older even than his years. His mind continued clear, his memory good, his spirit and manners gentle and kindly. Not of many words, he was alive to the interests of those about him, and gave cordial welcome to his friends. His old age seemed unusually cheerful and serene. As a citizen and neighbor he maintained a position of confidence and respect."

His first wife is said to have been a most estimable woman, but there is no one who can speak from personal knowledge concerning her. Of his second wife, Mary, Mr. May says: "She had passed the prime of life when the present writer became acquainted with her. She already possessed a ripeness of character which seemed to fall short of nothing desirable in life. This is much to say; but it is said with deep conviction of its truth by one whose memory of over eighty years includes many noble examples of upright men and honorable women. The faithfulness and gentleness with which she did all her duty as wife, step-mother and mother, grew with her years. No loss or trial impaired her faith or lessened her trust in the Divine Goodness; so that she was a living light and blessing to all who knew her. By all her experiences of life she was made ready to welcome the Unitarian faith as it became known to her in middle life; and when the Unitarian Church in Leicester was formed she connected herself with it with a simple dignity and modesty which gave new beauty to her always beautiful and gracious life. In her day it had not come into vogue — what may even now be too much of a fashion — to form societies of the King's Daughters, but if that title can ever belong to women in this life, beyond a doubt it belonged to her."

On the 17th of Sept., 1863, there was a remarkable and interesting meeting of eight of the children of Elijah at the old homestead in Leicester. Some of the elder children left home before the younger ones were born, and this was the first and only time that they were all together during their lives. There were present Amos, Joseph, Betsey, Lydia, Mary, Charlotte, Louisa and Henry. The eldest of the number was 81 and the youngest 54. Before they parted there was a large and excellent photograph taken of the group.*

* Edward Warren, Leicester, Mass., and Charles C. Warren, Waterbury, Vt., each possess a copy.

A remarkable and interesting meeting of Brothers and Sisters took place in the good old town of Leicester, Mass., Sept. 17, 1861. Eight children of the late Elijah Warren, of said Leicester, met for the first and probably for the last time, at the old homestead where they were born. The elder children emigrated to different States before the younger were born, and even their father never saw them all together; their names, places of residence and time of birth are as follows:—

AMOS WARREN, Woodstock, Vt., July 25, 1780.
 JOSEPH WARREN, Leicester, Mass., Jan. 8, 1784.
 BETSEY BOND, Lisbon, Ill., Oct. 17, 1785.
 LYDIA WARREN, Leicester, Mass., March 20, 1788.

MARY W. CHAPIN, Lisbon, Ill., May 23, 1790.
 CHARLOTTE FULLER, Leicester, Mass., Aug. 8, 1792.
 LOUISA A. WHEELER, Topsham, Me., Aug. 18, 1807.
 HENRY E. WARREN, Leicester, Mass., July 4, 1800.

The mother of the first six, Elisabeth Wheeler, born May 4, 1761, died March 20, 1800. The mother of the last two, Mary B. Wheeler, sister of Elisabeth, born Dec. 10, 1774, died Aug. 15, 1851. The father, Elijah Warren, born Aug. 27, 1750, died July 18, 1841. All of their grandparents lived to be between 80 and 90 years old. All the children of the first marriage are still living and the circle has remained unbroken nearly three-fourths of a century. Mrs. Bond and Mrs. Chapin, taking the excursion of the lakes, traveled over 1000 miles to the meeting. Before their final separation, they went to Worcester and had the above Photographs taken in a group. The only saddening thought upon this last occasion was that they would behold each other no more.

Henry Elijah³ [*Elijah*²], was born in Leicester, Mass., 4 July, 1809. He married, 3 Oct., 1839, Mary Whittemore, daughter of John and Nancy (Howard) Whittemore of Leicester. He died 5 July, 1865. Of his life and character the Reverend Samuel May says: "He inherited the fine qualities of character of his parents. Succeeding to his father's business, he enlarged it, and strove most diligently to maintain it. And if faithful application and probity could have commanded success, he must have secured it. But the competition of the rapidly-growing west, with its ample means of manufacturing leather more easily and cheaply than could be done in New England, was too much for even his courage and industry. His severe and mortal illness in middle life was undoubtedly brought on by his too strenuous labors. But he had not wholly failed of even material successes. He built for himself and growing family a commodious and handsome residence, where also he made a home for his mother and step-sister. He enlarged and improved the paternal farm, and was an industrious farmer as well as worker in leather. Indeed he took upon himself labors beyond one man's strength. He had early identified himself with the Unitarian Society and church, then newly formed in Leicester, and was ever an exemplary and respected member of it. His widow still lives, having the respect of all who know her. His children fill important places in life efficiently and honorably. His memory is cherished as that of a true man, modest withal but brave and hopeful, affectionate in his home and faithful in his friendships."

Waterman Goulding⁴ [*Samuel*³, *Jonathan*²], was born in Ward (now Auburn), Mass., on the old Warren homestead, in that part of the town known as West Auburn, 16 May, 1807. He married, 22 Apr., 1830, Mary Eddy, daughter of Samuel and Lydia (Hart) Eddy. She was born at Auburn, Mass., 7 Feb., 1806, and died 3 Sept., 1887. He died 7 Aug., 1886. He belonged to a family of tanners, his ancestors for four generations, on both his father's and his mother's side, having pursued that avocation. His opportunities for obtaining an education were extremely limited. He worked upon his father's farm and in the tannery summers and attended the district school winters. When he was married his wedding present from his father was two dollars to pay the minister's fee, and the loan of his old horse and "shay" with which to bring home his bride. Two years after his marriage his father died and he inherited the ancestral tannery. He pursued the business of tanning with varying success until 1840 when he removed to Holden, continuing in the same business, in partnership with his brother Samuel, for ten years. In the spring of 1850, this partnership was dissolved by mutual consent and he purchased the Edward Richardson tannery located one-half mile west of Holden Centre. The tannery was enlarged and improved and the business successfully continued for more than twenty-five years, his son Samuel being his partner for a portion of the time. In 1874 he formed a partnership with his two other sons under the firm name of B. & H. W. Warren & Co., and this company erected the brick tannery nearer Holden Centre. He still continued the business, with his eldest son, at the Richardson tannery. The new tannery in its character and equipment, its facilities for producing card leather, which is its specialty, is probably, not surpassed by any other in the State. In 1882 the old tannery was abandoned and Samuel became a member of the firm consisting of the father and three sons, the style being changed to W. G. Warren & Sons. The business was successfully continued, being carried on since the death of the father in 1886, by the three sons under the firm-name of W. G. Warren's Sons.

He was a devoted husband and father, kind-hearted and charitable; a man of good common sense, sound judgment and strictest integrity. He had marked peculiarities and a strong personality. He was an ardent temperance man and a liberal supporter of all the moral reforms of his day. In early life he was an abolitionist and after the enactment of the Fugitive Slave law he made his home a refuge for the escaping bondman. He boldly proclaimed his sentiments in favor of liberty for the oppressed when such action meant scorn and persecution. He and his wife attended the Baptist church, but were not members of the church.

Leicester Mass. July 17th 1889

M.E. Warren.

Dear Madam:

I have been looking up the ancestry of my g.g. grandfather Ebenezer Warren who settled in Leicester in 1744. He was born June 23^d 1719 and son of Dea. John Warren of Preston Mass.
I notice an error in the reference to him in Bond's Leicester & its vicinity. It may be a mistake.

in the paper of "L. E." by 702. When I understand and that is made, and that the name
I can find in the list of his names (1727) and in the list of his names (1728) with the name of his birth 1719 make me a good deal of the mistake can have been made. The genealogy of Ebenezer Warren Gloucester is found in "The Wheelwright Warren Families". A copy of which is in the collection. At the time it was published his parentage was not known. Yours truly,
Albert Warren
