NOTE

Pages 1 to 10 inclusive, covering the first five generations, represents the labor of Col. E.W. Foster, of Watsonville, California, who very generously furnished the material essentially as it is found herein. One or two minor details have been added.

Pages 11 to 20 have been added to the material furnished by Col. Foster, from material gathered by Wm. H. and Henry H. Walker from many different sources, as indicated herein. It will be noted that whereas from the first to the fifth generations inclusive only the main line has been followed, from the sixth generation on to the tenth the main line together with the collateral lines has been traced. This outlines briefly the history of this line down to date, the latest entry being that of a wedding solemnized Oct. 21, 1922. This second part of the genealogy has been organised by Henry H. Walker, 5757 University Avenue, Chicago, Ill..

Introduction.

Walker: Origin and Meaning of the Name.

Surnames have been in use among English speaking people since about the 11th. or 12th. century. They originated from various sources. Nearly all of them came from one of the following mentioned classes:

1. Baptismal or personal names.
2. Local surnames.
3. Official surnames.
4. Occupative surnames.
5. Sobriquet surnames or Nicknames.

Under one of these five divisions will nearly every surname in use in all the countries of Europe be found.

Many names have been materially changed since they were first adopted so that it is extremely difficult in many instances to trace their real or true origin. But when thoroughly investigated and analyzed it will be found that nearly every one of them may be found in one of the above mentioned classes.

The name Walker appears to have originated, in many instances, from an occupation. In the manufacture of cloth a considerable number of those employed in the industry were called "walkeres" or "fulleres" and when surnames were assigned such persons took that name.

The name is also found among the Landed Gentry who came over with William the Conqueror in 1066. In the Encyclopedia of Heraldry there are more than fifty families of Walkers with their armorial bearings given, some of whom were doubtless among those who settled in the colonies of New England, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

The above Introduction, together with the material which follows down to and including the Sixth Generation, has been prepared with laborious toil by Col. H. A. Foster, descendant, on his mother's side, and representing the eighth generation from Samuel Walker of Coburn, Mass. Col. Foster is now residing (Aug. 1922) in Watsonville, California (P.O. Box 132, Route 6), and is in his 88th. year. In a letter dated April 29, 1922, and addressed to Henry S. Walker, of Chicago, Ill., Col. Foster says: "I am now sending you a complete copy of an extract from the manuscript prepared by myself containing your own ancestral line from Samuel Walker of the first generation to Josiah Walker of the 6th. generation. I feel quite sure that whatever is written in this genealogical record is absolutely correct and may safely be depended upon as is full agreement with the official records as far as it goes. I find that for some reason I have never written up the record of your line from the 6th. generation as I have never felt certain of the completeness of the data that has been handed to me. I wanted to learn more than I had accumulated recording Josiah (6) and his immediate descendants; perhaps you have enough material in your possession or at your command to complete this. If you have I shall be glad to receive a copy of what you can give relative to each of your ancestors following Josiah (6); I have a mass of material relating to the whole subject, much of which is valuable for a genealogist, but I find myself, I fear I must confess, unable to give the attention to it that is necessary to give to complete the work."

In a former letter from Col. Foster addressed to H. E. Walker, under date of March 22, 1922, the writer says: "The public services of Samuel Walker, of his son Israel and of the latter's son Henry and that of the son of Henry, Josiah Walker, confer to each of their descendants an eligibility to membership in the Society of Colonial Sons or of the Colonial Lances, and other patriotic societies."

Col. Foster also has furnished H. E. Walker with the Walker Coat of Arms, which was used in Colonial times by Major Edward Walker of Boston and Westfield, Mass., and later Major and Paymaster in the Army during the War of the Revolution. It is not known to whom the right to use the Coat of Arms was first granted.

Acting on the suggestion of Col. Foster, I, Henry E. Walker, of the 8th. generation, have assembled the material bearing on the genealogical tree from the Seventh Generation down to the present, 1922. I am indebted to a number of descendants of the 8th. generation for this information, particularly to my brother, Wm. E. Walker, who was interested in this study long before I was, and who had gathered extensive material bearing on the subject. Others cooperating in furnishing this material include:

Mrs. Cora Walker (widow of James Henry), 614 E. 2nd. St., Santa Ana, Calif.

Mrs. Horatio E. Greene, Washingtonville, N. Y.

Miss Caroline L. Walker, 1611 Garland St., Flint, Michigan.

Mrs. G. E. Dickinson, Groton, Tompkins Co., N. Y.

Rev. Wm. A. Barker, 176 Spring St., Woonsocket, R. I.

Mrs. A. S. Alis, Box 15, Leesville, Louisiana.

As Col. Foster says of his statement, I would also say that I have taken every precaution to check up on the facts here recorded, and regard the record from the 7th generation on as substantially accurate, as far as it goes. I am this day, Aug. 16, 1922 making copies of the entire genealogical table, Col. Foster's and my own. A copy of this will be sent to Col. Foster, another will be deposited with the Newberry Public Library, Chicago, Ill., which specializes in genealogical material, a third copy will go to Wm. E. Walker. I shall keep a copy for my own family.

THE WALKER FAMILY.

Extract from the Walker Genealogy. Unpublished.

First Generation.

WALTER SAMUEL (1) was born, probably, in England about the year 1615 or 1616 - the date of the year of his birth has been ascertained from a deposition made by himself and his son Samuel, Dec. 26, 1658, wherein he testified that his age at that time was "about 43 years", and in another statement made on April 2, 1661, he gives his age at "about 44 years" --: he died in Coburn, N.H., Nov. 6, 1684. As near as we have been able to learn he was twice married, the date of his first marriage, the name of his first wife, her nativity or lineage is not known: she died, it is presumed, not long after the family came from Reading. He married for his second wife, about 1676 or 1677, Ann Roberts Alger, daughter Giles Roberts and widow of Arthur Alger of Scarborough, now Seaco, Me., whose first husband had been killed by Indians.

The date of the arrival of Mr. Walker in America is unknown, but it is generally believed that he came over with kinfolk or with a master as early as 1635 and perhaps as early as 1630. Very little has been learned concerning the early life and activities of Mr. Walker. About the first authentic information we have of him, he was living with his family in the town of Reading in the year 1642. The church records of that town indicate that he was admitted into that church by letter from the church at Boston that year. His seven children by his first wife were born in Reading. In the year 1654 he with his wife - name not given - were dismissed from the church at Reading and commended to the fellowship of the church at Coburn, a neighboring town. From that time his connection with Reading ceased, and the following year we find his name inscribed on the tax rolls of Coburn, in which town from that time onward he became an active and honored citizen.

Not long after becoming a resident of Coburn he seems to have won the confidence and esteem of his fellow townsmen, who soon discovered him to be a valuable addition to their town. On Feb. 25, 1661-2 he was chosen to be Surveyor of Highways for the town. Following that period he was called upon nearly every year during the remainder of his life to fill some office of trust and usefulness in the town. He was chosen to be one of the selectmen for a succession of years.

Mr. Walker was a malster by occupation, a vocation that he probably pursued prior to his removal to Coburn and which he probably learned when a young man. It is quite probable that the real object in making a change in his residence was with a view to select a suitable place to engage in a business that he thoroughly understood. Mr. Walker was the first licensed tavern keeper in Coburn. The town records as well as the records of Middlesex County indicate that he was authorized to keep tavern and "to sell strong drinke" as early as 1661; also that he applied for a license or for the renewal of a license in 1675. The following quaint petition with the endorsement of the citizens and the approval of the Selectmen of the town is taken from the records of Middlesex County.

Petition.

The following is as true a copy as can conveniently be made:

"The petition of Samuel Walker of ye town of Coburn humbly sheweth: That whereas your petitioner not long since by advise of friends did set upon ye trade of etilling strong waters, and for yt, and by reason of his wife's weakness purchased a place near ye meeting-house, where in building and other vtencils for ye work he hath expended about two hundred pounds,

"wou'd bee of little use to him shoul'd he not goe on with ye Trade and
"more especiallie seeing ye petitioner is resolu'd with God's assistance
"to prevent as much as in him lies ye too frequent abyse thereof, nor shall
"he bee wanting to obserue ye bovndes and rules for, shoul'd you be pleased
"to grant a lisenee for ye retaineing of liquors."

Signed Sam'l Walker.

ENDORSEMENT OF CITIZENS/

"The presices considered to whose names are underwritten humble reqvst this honored court that wold be pleased to grant ye "petitioners license, not onlie to still, but also to sell strong waters by ye quart as long as he shall obserue ye stolome laws
"and rules the Supreme Powr and this Court shall set for preventing "ye abyse thereof. So may it not be driven to ye more remote "Towns for a svply of ovr necessities herein, when wchif you shall be pleased to grnt ye reqvst I haue a svply at home."

(Signed) John Knight

John Wyman and forty others.

The records show that the petition was favorably considered and that the license was granted.

It is also of record that Mr. Walker once got into trouble by permitting a well known tippler to enter his house and to indulge his appetite for "strong water" to excess, for which offense both Mr. Walker and the toper were haled before the Court and penalized: the toper was fined ten shillings while Mr. Walker was mulcted in the sum of twenty shillings. There were probably mitigating circumstances connected with the affair as the license does not appear to have been revoked.

Americans who take interest in preserving their ancestral lines endeavor to trace their descent to their first American ancestor, not caring as a rule to go beyond that time, and as Samuel Walker of Woburn must have come to America when but a mere lad, the supposition has been that he came over with parents or other relatives or perhaps in charge of a master to whom he was bound, so there has been an eagerness to ascertain if possible who his parents were: Up to this time(1920) no satisfactory solution has been found for the problem. No tradition or much less no record has been found that is at all satisfactory to the researcher for the truth.

Mr. John Farmer who compiled a Register of the first settlers of New England and Mr. Savage who was the author of that wonderful work A Genealogical Dictionary, giving the first three generations of the settlers in New England both listed Samuel Walker of Woburn as son of Capt. Augustine, a mariner of Charlestown. This record was accepted as authentic and was so revered until Mr. Sewell compiled the "History of Woburn", when he discovered from his records that Samuel the son of Capt. Augustine Walker was born in the year 1642, while our ancestor Samuel of Woburn was born, according to his own deposition, as early as 1616, showing a disparity of more than 25 years. The same historian also suggested that it was more than probable that Samuel of Woburn was the son or a near relative of Captain Richard Walker, an early settler of Lynn, a man of prominence who had been a Representative to the General Court and distinguished himself as an Indian fighter and in other ways, and who lived in the same town with Samuel, at Reading. The suggestion of Mr. Sewell was verifiable and it was accordingly accepted as authentic. So for many years it seemed to be the settled conviction of genealogists and others that Capt. Richard Walker was the real ancestor and progenitor of this branch of the Walker family.

Yet as no satisfactory evidence of Mr. Sewell's suggestion had been found, there remained a lingering doubt as to its accuracy; and the doubt became more pronounced when in the year 1903 Messrs Cutter and Loring, genealogists of Scoburn, published an article in the New England Genealogical Register for Oct. 1903 giving the first four generations of the descendants of Samuel Walker of Scoburn in which some doubt was expressed as to the plausibility of the suggestion of Mr. Sewell, all of which gave rise to a long drawn out contest as to the paternity of Samuel Walker of Scoburn.

Since then Mr. Chas R. Mann of Boston and Malden, a descendant of Samuel Walker has made a thorough search of the Town and Court records of Suffolk, Essex and Middlesex Counties with a view to determine for himself as to the correctness of his own lineage as shown in the different records. More than two years was required to complete this search and it was thoroughly done. Mr. Mann published his conclusions in the form of a lecture given before the Lynn Historical Society, and it was republished in Vol. XVI of the Register. The conclusions are that there was but one Capt. Richard Walker; that he lived in Reading and in Lynn, Mass.; that there was not more than eight years difference in the ages of Richard of Lynn and Samuel of Reading and Scoburn; that they were probably related and both were early immigrants to America and both should be listed as "first settlers."

As has been stated, Mr. Walker was prominent in his town, both in church and in secular affairs. He was evidently a man possessed of good, sound judgment, and was capable of giving wholesome and unselfish advice. He was often chosen to represent the town at committee meetings, to attend conventions, etc., to advocate the wishes of the people or to voice their claims.

Mr. Walker appears to have had acquaintances with people who lived up the coast, at least as far as Scarborough, now Saco, Me., where he had business relations with Mr. Arthur Alger who had the misfortune to be killed by the Indians, and whose widow afterward became the second wife of Samuel Walker, as above related.

The various services accomplished by Samuel Walker have been recognized by the so-called patriotic societies of the country as conferring to his descendants eligibility to membership therein.

Josiah (4) Walker (~~X our record says 1703~~) (Recky (3) and first wife Ruth-Mendall-Walker; Israel (2) and first wife Sarah Baldwin; Samuel (1) and wife) was bn. in Roburn, Mass., May 11, 1705; b. place and date not ascertained. He married about 1729 Mary Forbush-Shattuck, daughter of Jonathan and Hannah (Hollingsay) Shattuck, and widow of Isaac Shattuck or Shadduck deceased. She was bn. in Marlboro, Mass., Dec. 31, 1706 place and date of death not ascertained. Mr. Walker came to Hopkinton, Mass., from Roburn at about the year 1725, with his parents. He appears to have become employed as a farm laborer in Westborough paying a rental for its use. About the year 1739 he acquired land at Becket in Berkshire Co.. At a later date he acquired, by exchange, land in Suffield, Mass., now in Conn. In the year 1748 he enlisted in the Colonial military service and served a term of several months at Fort Pelham, now Rowe, Mass. At a later date he removed to Becket and later to Granville, N. Y. The church records at Hopkinton give the birth dates of his children, and the records of Westborough give the birth dates of others. It is supposed that the youngest of the family was bn. in Granville, N. Y. There appear to have been several transactions in land between Mr. Walker and his father-in-law Jonathan Forbush at Becket, or as that place was then known Ionic No. 4. On account of the fact that several persons bearing this name have been found it has been necessary to use great care in tracing the operations of Mr. Walker. Residence, Hopkinton, Westborough and Becket, Mass.; also, probably, Granville, N. Y. His children numbered eight, bn. i. in Hopkinton; ii.-vi. in Westborough; others probably in Granville.

~~X~~ That of H. H. Walker.

Timothy (5) Walker (Josiah (4) and wife Mary Borbush-Battcock; Henry (3) and first wife Ruth Kendall-Walker; Israel (2) and first wife Susanah-Baldwin; Nathl (1) and first wife) was bn. in Westborough, Mass., Feb. 6, 1732-33; dd. at about the year 1790; he married, in Westfield, Mass., July 1758, Elizabeth Stiles, daughter of Ephraim and second wife Jonita Meacham; she was bn. in Westfield, Mass., June 17, 1739 and dd. at about the year 1790. Mr. Walker lived with his parents in Westborough, until about 1745, when the family appear to have moved to Becket then known as Const Co. 4, where he appears to have acquired an education. He also at this place united with the Baptist Church and was later made an Elder. At Becket his first six children were born. At a later date he removed to Westfield, Mass., and still later to Granville N. Y. He also lived for a time in Hancock, Delaware Co., and in Ontario Counties, N. Y. Mr. Walker was an evangelist - a traveling missionary. He is said to have been an earnest and effective preacher. He also served for a time in the colonial military service, in the French and Indian War of 1756-57, in a Company commanded by Capt. Israel Willizes; also in Capt. Ebenezer Houlton's Co., Mass. militia. He was an ardent patriot, and no doubt had service in the War of the Revolution, altho no record of such service has been found. Mrs. Walker was a descendant, in the 6th. generation, of John Stiles, an immigrant to Windsor Conn. in 1635, from England. Her ancestral line is as follows: Elizabeth (5) Stiles Walker; Ephraim (4) and wife Jemima-Keschem-; Ephraim (3) and wife Abigail-Neal John (2) and wife Dorcas-Burt-; John (1) and wife Rachel, immigrants from England. Mrs. Walker is said to have been a woman of considerable force and very zealous in her religious thought; their residence, Becket, Westfield and Pittsfield, Mass..
