PREFACE.

In offering their new Guide to the public, the publishers desire to call especial attention to the following features:

(1.) The Descriptions of all Points of Interest in the City and Vicinity are presented in terse, clear, and accurate form; they are arranged alphabetically and fully indexed, so as to afford easy reference.

(2.) The Appendices contain Full Lists and Interesting Statistics concerning the National and Municipal Governments, and the Various Local Organizations—Religious, Charitable, Educational, Mercantile, Social, etc.

(3.) The Select classified Lists of Trades and Professions together with the Business Cards, at the end of the book, represent the Principal Firms of the city. Introduced in a novel and attractive manner, this Department will be found to be one of the most useful and interesting in the book.

(4.) The Colored Map which accompanies the Guide antains an ingenious Tape Attachment by which even a manger can locate, instantly, all points of interest and the leading business houses mentioned in the Guide. This is by far the best patent map ever produced, and, to every resident of Washington, is alone worth many times the price of the Guide. As may be seen from inspection, the Guide and Map serve as a Pocket Directory, which will prove as indispensable to visitors and in the homes of citizens as the Large Directory is to Merchants.

Having spared neither time nor expense to make their publication worthy of the title which it bears—" Standard Guide," of the National Capital—the publishers are justified in believing that the work will be cordially received and merit a wide sale at the hands of the public.

INSTRUCTIONS

For finding on Map any place mentioned in the Guide.

Places in this guide are alphabetically arranged with figures attached, one in the column for margin, the other in the column for tape. To find, for instance, the location of Lincoln Park, margin 51, tape 30, place the tape on the corresponding marginal number on the map, and read the other number corresponding on the tape, and Lincoln Park will be found on the map and under the number of the tape. Or to find Water street, 19–56, as before, place the tape on the marginal number designated, and under the corresponding number on the tape is the name of the street printed on the map, the location of which is desired.

The tape is divided into numbered sections, each of which scales 880 feet; also divided into miles and fractions thereof.

To find the distance from one point to another place the tape conveniently at either point, and lay it along the route desired to be measured, turn it in corners if necessary, and when the other point is reached read off the number of sections and compute them, 5,280 feet to the mile, or read off the corresponding mile measure. For instance, the distance is wanted from the Schuetzen Park, 20-36, to the President's Mansion, 46-46, along Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue, place the divided end of the tape on Seventh street on the map and at the Schuetzen Park until it reaches the corner of Pennsylvania avenue, there turn it and run it along said avenue until you get to the President's Mansion, there read off the number of sections, and the distance is thus in either case found to be four miles. The city is divided in four quarters—east and west by the line of North and South Capitol streets extended, and north and south by the line of East Capitol street extended, these lines crossing in the center of the Capitol building, which is plainly illustrated by the coloring of the map, and hence the appellation of northwest, southeast, &c., to streets, thereby designating the particular quarter in which the street is located.

All streets running north and south are called by numbers; east or west from North and South Capitol streets.

All streets running east and west are called by letters of the alphabet in similar manner counted from the line of the East Capitol street extended.

The decimal system of house numbering is used, allowing one hundred numbers for each square.

Avenues named after States in the Union run diagonally from different centers, generally converging towards the Capitol Building or the President's Mansion.

SKETCH OF THE CITY AND DISTRICT.

The act locating the Capitol of the United States on the banks of the Potomac was passed by Congress at New York, in 1790. The land for the proposed District of ten miles square was ceded to the government by the States of Maryland and Virginia. The exact site for the Capital was decided on by George Washington, with the aid of three Commissioners. The name of it was chosen by the latter, and the plat of the city was made by Major L'Enfant, a French engineer. The government made very advantageous terms with the farmers who owned the land where the city now stands. Congress, which had meantime been sitting at Philadelphia, removed to its new home in 1800.

The growth of the city was at first very slow. The government was by a Mayor, Aldermen, and Councilmen. Up to the outbreak of the civil war the Capital seemed to be a failure. It was unattractive in appearance and the citizens were devoid of enterprise. Congress had long ceased to appropriate money for its improvement. There was talk of removing the Capital farther west—to the centre of the continent—but the war revived its waning fortunes. There was a sudden increase of activity and a vast influx of men and money. During these momentous years the population of the capital averaged a quarter of a million of inhabitants.

Afterwards, however, it was threatened with the same old stagnation. The old local government made an effort to inaugurate a comprehensive system of improvements, but were found to be incompetent. In 1871 Congress, by the advice of prominent citizens, devised a new form of government, consisting of a Governor, Legislative Assembly, and Board of Public Works.

The latter body at once undertook the thorough reconstruction and renovation of the city upon a grand scale.

They undoubtedly laid the foundation for its future unprecedented growth and present advantages of Washington as a residence city, though at the same time they recklessly plunged the city into a huge debt, of more than $20,000,000 which is heavier than it can bear without the aid of Congress. There is the more justice in Congress paying this debt, or a large portion of it, as the obligations were incurred mainly because of its presence and through officers of its appointment.

In 1874, owing to the high-handed methods of the prevailing local administration, called, from its leading spirit and highest officer, "The Shepherd Regime," Congress decided to abolish the whole system of local suffrage, and since then the District of Columbia has been governed by a board of three Commissioners appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate of the United States.

The people have no votes whatsoever, not even in Presidential elections. This is certainly an anomalous state of affairs to find at the capital of the leading Republic of the world. The system undoubtedly has some advantages, and Congress now pays half of the taxes for the city and District; but it is recalled that the measure was originally a compromise, devised when Congress was greatly puzzled and embarrassed over the large deficits and great confusion in the municipal finances; and, judging from this fact and the complaints which from time to time arise from citizens at being taxed for expenditures which they have no share in making, it is doubtful if the present form of government in vogue here will continue without being changed or essentially modified.

The population of Washington is about two hundred thousand inhabitants, nearly one-third of whom are colored persons. During the past decade it has grown faster than any other city in the United States. In general, its magnificent street area is well paved; its sewerage system is almost perfect and its water supply is one of the best in the world.

PLACES OF INTEREST.

Note.—The places are arranged alphabetically for ready reference. The letters and numerals following the titles refer to the Margin (M.) and Tape (T.) on the Map. (See instructions on preceding pages.)

AGRICULTURAL DEP'T. M. 56. T. 44.

The Department of Agriculture is located about midway between the Smithsonian Institution and the Washington Monument. It was created by Congress in 1862, for the purpose of promoting agricultural knowledge and distributing seeds among the people. Over a million packages are sent out annually. The main building is devoted to offices. An Herbarium and Taxidermist's Work-shops occupy the second floor. The Museum of Agriculture and Industrial Exposition will be found in the frame annex.

The Conservatory is west of the main building. It contains tropical plants and fruits and a grapery in the south wing.

The grounds surrounding the Department are beautifully laid out in terraces, flower-beds, and plant-houses.

The Museum and Conservatories are open till 4 p. m., Saturdays till 3 p. m. (See List of Illustrations.)

ALEXANDRIA.

On the right bank of the Potomac, about seven miles below Washington; is reached by railroad from the Baltimore and Potomac depot and by ferry-boats which run every hour in the day; horse-cars on 7th street connect with the ferry. Alexandria was for many years included in the District of Columbia, but has since been ceded back again by the United States to the State of Virginia. It is now devoid of the commercial activity which once characterized it. Christ Church, in which Washington worshiped, is an old and quaint structure standing near the centre of the town.

ANALOSTAN ISLAND.

Opposite Georgetown; about 70 acres, not under cultivation; a resort for pleasure excursions.

AQUEDUCT.

The aqueduct which supplies the city with water is led to its destination by a series of tunnels and magnificent bridges, the largest of which, called the Cabin-John Bridge, is considered one of the most successful engineering feats in the world. The material is granite blocks, formed into a single arch, with a span of 220 feet (making it the largest stone bridge in the world); cost $237,000; first projected in 1853; distance from the city, about 12 miles.

ARLINGTON.

On the right bank of the Potomac, about four miles from the Capitol stands the fine mansion which was at one time the home of General Robert E. Lee. It was purchased by the United States Government in 1864. The drive to it, through Georgetown, is a pleasant one.

THE NATIONAL CEMETERY

embraces about two hundred acres of the old Custis estate on Arlington Heights. The grounds were first formally opened for a soldiers' cemetery by the Government in 1867. 16,000 soldiers are buried here, both Union and Confederate. A portion of the cemetery is reserved for colored troops. Near Arlington House is a granite sarcophagus erected over the bones of 2,111 unknown soldiers, who perished at Bull Run and on other battle fields and in hospitals. By this tomb is a great amphitheater, capable of accommodating the large audience at the memorial exercises which are held here annually in honor of the heroes of the war. (See List of Illustrations.)

ARMY MEDICAL MUSEUM. M. 46. T. 42.

Stands on 10th street west, midway between E and F streets, north. The Museum on the third floor of the building is very complete. It contains (1) a surgical section (illustrating injuries received from missiles in war, and their treatment); (2) medical section (illustrating camp diseases); (3) microscopical section (illustrating diseased tissues and organs); (4) anatomical section (illustrating human anatomy); (5) section of comparative anatomy (illustrating skeletons of American mammals, birds, and fishes); (6) miscellaneous section (illustrating hospital and barracks life.)

On the first, second, and third floors are offices of the Surgeon-General and subordinates and the hospital records of the Civil War and those received from present posts of the regular army. A laboratory is connected with the establishment.

The building has a peculiar interest from the fact that it was the scene of President Lincoln's assassination by Wilkes Booth, April 14th, 1865. It was then Ford's Theater. After the tragedy it was closed by the Government, and in 1866 devoted to the purpose for which it is now used. Lincoln died in a house opposite the Museum. The hours for visitors are from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m.

The new building being erected by the Government in the grounds of the Smithsonian Institution will be ready for occupancy at an early date and will be admirably arranged to contain the collections and library described above. (See List of Illustrations.)

ARSENAL: U. S. BARRACKS. M. 71. T. 35. These grounds are located at the foot of  $4\frac{1}{2}$  street S.W., and may be reached by horse-cars. There are quarters for five batteries. The garrison drills daily; the store-houses contain ammunition and arms. Specimens of guns and mortars now in service may be seen; also some of those captured in various wars. The hours for visitors are from sunrise to sunset.

BOTANICAL GARDEN. M. 52. T. 38.

The Government Botanical Gardens are bounded by 1st and 3d streets west and Pennsylvania and Maryland avenues. The main entrance is opposite the center of the west side of the Capitol grounds. The gardens are open to visitors from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. Carriages are not permitted to enter the grounds. The collection of shrubs and flowers contain specimens from many climes.

The Conservatory is filled with varieties of palms and other tropical plants, including trees from Japan, China, and Egypt. The smaller conservatories are devoted to rare flowers and vines, the orchids being especially complete and beautiful.

North of the Conservatory is the Bartholdi fountain, from the Centennial Exposition, supplied from the aqueduct, and throwing a stream of water over sixty feet. It can be illuminated by electricity, and is used at its full capacity on national holidays. (See List of Illustrations.)

The object of Congress in keeping the garden is mainly the distribution of plants and seeds. Each member of Congress has at his disposal a specified number of them. The collection was first begun over forty years ago.

BUREAU OF EDUCATION. M. 44. T. 41.

The building rented for this bureau stands on the corner of G and 8th streets N. W., opposite the Patent Office. The several floors are occupied by offices, a library, and a room for exhibiting educational apparatus. Visitors are received at the usual hours.

BUREAU OF ENGRAVING AND PR'NT'G. M. 58. T. 44.

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing stands on the corner of B and 14th streets S. W. It is open to visitors from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m. on Saturdays only. Here a very interesting view may be had of every detail in the process of engraving and printing Government bonds, notes, and stamps. (See List of Illustrations.)

CAPITOL.

M. 52. T. 36.

The Capitol of the United States is situated on Capitol Hill, about the center of the city of Washington. It fronts east. Strangers generally enter from the west front, as the principal part of the city is in that direction.

DIMENSIONS.

The Capitol is 751 feet in length and 324 feet at its greatest breadth. It covers an area of three and one-half acres. The central portion of the building is built of yellow sandstone, painted white, from Aquia Creek, Va. The wings are built of white marble from Lee, Mass. The dome is built of iron and is 287 feet in height (above the base line of the east front). It is surmounted by a bronze statue of Freedom, 19 feet in height, modeled by the celebrated American artist Crawford. The dome is reached by a stair-case of 290 steps, and from the top may be had a beautiful and very extensive view.

EXTERIOR.

The north and south fronts of the Capitol are alike. The west front of the Capitol consists of three ornamental porticoes. The eastern and most ornamental front contains a central portico 160 feet wide and two corresponding porticoes 142 feet wide. The sandstone group on the tympanum of the pediment of the central portico represents "The Genius of America." On the southern abutment of this portico is a group representing the "Discovery of America." The corresponding group on the northern abutment represents "Civilization of America." The bronze doors at the top of the steps leading to the central entrance to this front are ornamented with scenes from the discoveries of Columbus, and weigh with their casings over twenty thousand pounds. Statues representing "Peace" and "War" fill the niches to the north and south of these doors respectively. Directly over the door is a basso-relievo representing "Fame" and "Peace" crowning Washington with a laurel wreath.

THE ROTUNDA.

The Rotunda is 95 feet in diameter and 180 feet high (to the top of the canopy). The fresco on the canopy, by Brumidi, an Italian artist, represents the Deification of Washington; the Fall of Tyranny; Agriculture; Mechanics; Commerce; Marine Power, and Arts and Sciences. The frieze of the Rotunda is decorated with scenes from American history. The sides of the room are divided into eight panels. Over the panels are busts of Columbus, Raleigh, Cabot, and La Salle (in order named, beginning on the left of the west door).

Over each of the four doors leading from the Rotunda are alto-relievos representing, (1) The Landing of the Pilgrims on Plymouth Rock; (2) William Penn's Treaty with the Indians in 1686; (3) The Preservation of Captain John Smith by Pocahontas; (4) Conflict between Daniel Boone and the Indians. The large pictures which occupy the eight panels are on the following subjects: (1) Declaration of Independence; (2) Surrender of Burgoyne; (3) Surrender of Cornwallis; (4) Resignation of General Washington; (5) Baptism of Pocahontas: (6) Discovery of the Mississippi River; (7) Landing of Columbus; (8) Embarkation of the Pilgrims.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS.

The Library of Congress is at the end of the hallway which leads from the west door of the Rotunda. It is used by the Senators and members of the House of Representatives, Judges of the Supreme Court, and heads of Departments, as well as by the general public. All persons are permitted to consult books in the library. The collection contains over half a million books and nearly a quarter of a million pamphlets. It is the largest collection of books in the United States and one of the largest collections in the world. It is increased at the rate of about twenty thousand volumes annually. The Librarian of Congress is registrar of all copyrights issued in the United States.

A new Library building will soon be erected on one of the squares east of the Capitol. (See List of Illustrations.)

SUPREME COURT.

At the right of the vestibule leading from the north door of the Rotunda is the Supreme Court of the United States. This room was for many years the United States Senate Chamber, where so many famous speeches were delivered. The busts on the walls are of former Chief Justices. The court meets annually in October, and usually continues to sit until May, with occasional adjournments. The public are admitted whenever the court is in session.

SENATE.

At the end of this same hallway is the present United States Senate Chamber. The main door at the eastern corridor is a massive paneled piece of bronze representing scenes in the American Revolution, by Crawford.

RECEPTION ROOM.

The Senate Reception Room, at the right of this door, is paved with marble and elaborately frescoed. Adjoining this room, from which visitors' cards are sent in to Senators after two o'clock, are the Senate Post Office and office of the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate. The west door of the Reception Room leads to the Lobby of the Senate, which is accessible to visitors when the Senate is not in session. At the right of the Lobby is the Vice-President's Room. Next is the celebrated Marble Room, with sides and floors of polished marble of different tints. Here Senators receive guests by appointment.

GALLERIES.

At foot of the stairs leading to the east gallery of the Senate is the statue of Franklin by Powers, and over the first landing is Powell's noted picture of Commodore Perry's victory over the British on Lake Erie. The east gallery of the Senate is the Ladies' Gallery; the west is the Gentlemen's Gallery; the central portion of the north gallery is for the newspaper reporters; opposite this is the Diplomatic Gallery, for foreign representatives. The Ladies' Retiring-Room adjoins the Ladies' Gallery on the north side. The two large paintings in the vestibule of the Ladies' Gallery—" The Grand Cañon of the Yellowstone" and "The Grand Cañon of the Colorado"—are by Thomas Moran, an American artist.

PRESIDENT'S ROOM.

On the right of the west vestibule is the President's Room, where he sometimes remains to sign bills in the last hours of a session of Congress. This room is handsomely frescoed with symbolical designs and adorned with portraits of American statesmen. At the foot of the staircase leading to the west gallery is a statue of John Hancock, by Stone. "The Storming of Chapultepec under General Scott," which hangs over the first landing, is by the artist Walker.

SENATE CHAMBER.

The Senate Chamber is a well-proportioned room one hundred and twelve feet in length. The desks of the Senators are of polished mahogany. Some of them were used in the old Senate Chamber. The paintings on the skylight represent The Union, The Army, The Navy, etc. Under the east, west, and south galleries are cloak-rooms for the Senators. On this floor and the floors above and below are various committee rooms. The Senate Chamber is heated and ventilated through great registers connected with machinery in the basement.

The Vice-President presides over the sessions of this body on a dais at the north end of the chamber. The public are admitted to the floor when the Senate is not in session. They are admitted at all times to the galleries, excepting when the Senate is in executive session.

BASEMENT OF SENATE.

In the basement of the Senate wing are, besides the Committee Rooms (which may be visited on permission from Senators), the Restaurant, folding rooms, and the official telegraph and telephone office—connecting with the various Departments of the Government and the Government Printing Office.

THE CRYPT.

Beneath the Rotunda, extending toward the Senate, is The Crypt, and under this is the Undercroft—offered for keeping the remains of George Washington, but refused by his family.

LAW LIBRARY.

Underneath the court-room is the Law Department of the Congressional Library, one of the finest technical libraries in the United States. This room was formerly occupied by the Supreme Court.

STATUARY HALL.

The next room south of the Rotunda is the old hall of the House of Representatives. It is now used as a Hall of Statuary, Congress having devoted it to this purpose "in order that each State should send the effigies of two of her chosen sons to be placed here permanently." Rhode Island has sent Roger Williams, "the Apostle of Religious Liberty," and Nathaniel Green, Major General in the Army of the Revolution; Connecticut, Jonathan Trumbull, the last Colonial Governor of the State, an intimate friend of Washington, and Roger Sherman, delegate to Congress and one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence; New York, George Clinton, Vice-President of the United States, and Robert Livingston, a signer of the Declaration of Independence; Massachusetts, John Winthrop and Samuel Adams; Vermont, Ethan Allen, the hero of Ticonderoga, and Jacob Collamer, an early Postmaster General and United States Senator; Maine, William King, her first Governor; Pennsylvania, Robert Fulton, inventor of steam navigation, and Peter Mühlenburgh, a "fighting minister" (General) in the Revolutionary War

Besides these statues the Government is represented by the following works of art:

Miss Ream's statue of Abraham Lincoln, for which Congress paid ten thousand dollars; bust of Lincoln; bust of Thomas Crawford; statue of Alexander Hamilton; bronze statue of Thomas Jefferson; cast of Washington; bust of Kosciusko; portraits of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Charles Carroll, Henry Clay, Gunning Bedford, Benjamin West, and Joshua R. Giddings, and mosaics of Lincoln and Garfield. The graceful marble clock in this room represents History in the Car of Time.

HALL OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Hall of Representatives, which stands at the opposite end of the building from the Senate Chamber, is the largest legislative hall in the world, being 140 feet in length, 95 feet in width, and 40 feet high. There are desks for 333 members. The Republican members sit at the left of the Speaker, and the Democrats in the right half of the hall. The galleries will contain about 1,500 persons. The ceiling of the hall is of iron, with glass panels decorated with the arms of the different States. The Speaker's chair and desk are in the middle of the south side of the hall, behind the clerk's desk. On the right and left of this desk respectively are life-size portraits of Washington and Lafayette. In the panel next to the portrait of Lafayette is a painting by Bierstadt representing "The Discovery of the Hudson River." In the corresponding panel next to the portrait of Washington is a companion picture by the same artist, the subject being "The King's River Cañon." Adjoining the picture of the Hudson is a fresco representing "Washington at Yorktown." The

CORRIDORS, LOBBY, GALLERIES, AND COMMITTEE ROOMS

Of the House are in general arrangement and decorations similar to those of the Senate. The Members' Reception Rooms and the Speaker's Room are open to the public when the House is not in session. At the foot of the east staircase leading to the galleries is a statue of Jefferson by Powers; over the first landing is an equestrian statue of General Scott; above the landing of the eastern staircase is the historic painting of President Lincoln and his Cabinet, entitled "Signing the Emancipation Proclamation," purchased by a New York lady and presented to Congress. At the foot of the west staircase corresponding is a bronze bust of a Chippewa Indian Chieftain. Over the first landing is the great picture "Westward Ho," which cost twenty thousand dollars.

BASEMENT OF THE HOUSE.

The basement of the House wing contains a Restaurant, and is arranged for Committee Rooms. That used by the Committee of Agriculture is noticeable for elaborate frescoing.

The Speaker presides over the House when it is in session. At his right hand, on a pedestal of marble, is kept the mace—consisting of a number of rods bound together by silvered bands and capped by a globe and eagle. This is his official emblem of authority, and, in the hands of the Sergeant-at-Arms, is used (though rarely) to bring unruly members to order. (See List of Illustrations.)

CAPITOL GROUNDS.

Eleven avenues and streets lead to the Capitol Grounds from all sections of the city. The principal western approach is by Pennsylvania avenue. At the foot of the steps leading to the first terrace is Story's bronze statue of Chief-Justice Marshall. The marble fish-pond on this terrace was the site of a proposed monument to commemorate the deeds of the American navy.

In the east park there are handsome granite and bronze vases for plants. In the middle of this great plaza (which holds the crowds who come to witness the Inauguration ceremonies) is Greenough's colossal statue of Washington, bearing the familiar inscription : "First in War; First in Peace; First in the Hearts of his Countrymen;" words first used by Governor Henry Lee, of Virginia.

On the north side of the park, about midway up the hill, there has been placed for the refreshment of visitors a rustic summer-house and drinking-fountain.

The stone tower at the south side of the grounds aids in supplying fresh air to the ventilating apparatus in the Hall of Representatives.

The Capitol Grounds were formerly smaller than they are now and were neglected. About ten years ago Congress resolved to enlarge and improve them. Frederick Law Olmstead, the New York landscape architect, has been employed to prepare plans for stone terraces and other ornamental work (now in course of construction), which when completed will render the appearance of the Capitol even more imposing than at present.

CENTRE MARKET. M. 51. T. 41.

Occupies the space between 7th and 9th streets, adjacent to Pennsylvania avenue N. W. It is conducted by an incorporated body and affords the best product available. (See List of Illustrations.)

CHRIST CHURCH,

The oldest church in the city, is on G street, between 6th and 7th streets, near the Marine Barracks. It dates from 1800, and used to be attended by personages of prominence in political and social circles of the Capital.

COAST & GEODETIC SURVEY OFFICE.

M. 55. T. 36. The United States Coast Survey office occupies a building on New Jersey avenue, near the Capitol. It is here that the standard weights and measures of the United States are regulated. (See List of Illustrations.)

COLUMBIAN UNIVERSITY. M. 42. T. 45. The main building is on the corner of 15th and H streets N. W. It was erected in 1884, and is occupied by the Collegiate and Law Departments. The institution was founded by Baptists in 1822. The President of the United States and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court are ex-officio members of the board of trustees.

CONGRESSIONAL CEMETERY. M. 55. T. 25. The Congressional Cemetery embraces about thirty acres charmingly situated on the Eastern Branch of the Potomac

M. 57. T. 31.

River, a mile above the Navy Yard. The act of Congress creating cenotaphs to deceased members has since been repealed. The tract is controlled by Christ Church, which stands near the Marine Barracks. Few congressmen are buried here, but some who died during their term of public service are commemorated by cenotaphs. There are also monuments to a few noted men, among others George Clinton and Elbridge Gerry. The grounds are open every day except Sunday.

CONVENT OF VISITATION. M. 8. T. 55.

On Fayette street, West Washington, near the Catholic College; the grounds are extensive, but are not usually open to visitors.

CORCORAN ART GALLERY. M. 43. T. 47.

The gallery is a well-proportioned building at the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and 17th street. The class of architecture is the Renaissance. On the first floor are a designing room and hall of sculpture. On the second floor are the several picture galleries, containing a large number of very valuable works by American and foreign artists. The collection includes the private gallery of the donor of the building, which was valued at $100,000 at the time of its presentation. The cost of the structure was $250,000. Mr. W. W. Corcoran, the well-known philanthropist of Washington, also bestowed an endowment of $900,000 for supporting his gift, the income of which is expended under the direction of a board of trustees to increase the completeness of the gallery. The purpose of the trust is to afford enjoyment to the public and to promote art. Special facilities are offered to artists wishing to copy works which are on exhibition here. The public are admitted daily between October and May from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.; between May and October from 9 a. m.

to 4 p. m. Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays admission is free; on other days the charge is 25 cents. (See List of Illustrations.)

DEAF-MUTE COLLEGE. M. 41. T. 31. The National Deaf-Mute College and Columbian Institution for the Deaf and Dumb is at the north end of 7th street east. The grounds, of roo acres, are known as "Kendall Green." A portion of them were formerly owned by Amos Kendall, when Postmaster-General of the United States. The institution was incorporated by the Government in 1857, and many deaf-mute children of members of the army and navy corps and of residents of the District of Columbia have since received a collegiate education there, free of expense. The main building, which is a handsome and symmetrical stone structure, was dedicated by Congress in 1871. The institution is open every day excepting Sunday.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE. M. 44. T. 45. Stands opposite the north front of the Treasury, on Pennsylvania avenue. The building was originally the Freedman's Bank. The Attorney-General's office and the Court of Claims against the United States are now located here. In the office of the former is a fine collection of portraits of his predecessors. A very fine law library, including full sets of the Reports of all the States and Territories in the Union, is open to the public.

DISTRICT COURT-HOUSE. M. 48. T. 39. The District Court-House (formerly City Hall) stands on the south side of Judiciary Square, which extends from the intersection of Louisiana and Indiana avenues to G street, and from 4th to 5th street. The courts of the District of Columbia sit here. The marble statue of Abraham Lincoln in front of the building was purchased and placed there by the efforts of private citizens.

DISTRICT GOV'T'S OFFICE. M. 50. T. 40.

Four-and-a-half street, near Pennsylvania avenue. Α more commodious office will probably soon be erected.

DUPONT CIRCLE.

Formed by the intersection of Massachusetts avenue, Connecticut avenue, and other streets and avenues, N. W. The statue of Rear Admiral Dupont is by Launt Thompson, erected in 1884 by Congress.

EXCURSIONS FOR SIGHT-SEERS.

Single trips in the city (in order of interest): I. The Capitol. II. The White House. III. Patent Office. IV. National Museum. V. Bureau of Engraving and Printing. VI. Corcoran Art Gallery.

Single trips outside the city (in order of interest): I. Mt. Vernon. II. Soldiers' Home. III. Arlington Cemetery.

A fine view of the city may be obtained from the top of Messrs. Moses & Sons' high building, corner of 11th and F streets N.W. Elevators run between the hours of 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. Visitors are invited to use them free of charge.

MANSION, OR "WHITE EXECUTIVE HOUSE." M. 46. T. 46.

The "White House" fronts on Pennsylvania avenue, about one mile and a half west of the Capitol. The plan is said to have been copied from an Irish nobleman's country house. The material is sandstone painted white. The dimensions are 180 feet in length by about 90 in in depth. Carriages can drive under the wide portico on the north side. The south front has a semi-circular colonnade of six columns.

The following are the rooms on the first floor: Vestibule, 40 by 50 feet; East Room, 80 by 40 feet, used for public receptions-the only room in the building at all times accessible to visitors (between the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.)

Adjoining this apartment, en suite, are the Green Room, the Blue Room, and the Red Room. These rooms take their name from the prevailing tints of their decorations and furniture. The one last named is the room most commonly used by occupants of the house for social purposes. At receptions the President usually receives his guests in the Blue Room. The State Dining-Room, where all the large dinners are given, is at the southwest end of the building. The Family Dining-Room is just north of this.

On the second floor are the Executive Offices, including the President's Private Room, in which the Cabinet meetings are held. A library is attached to it. The sleeping apartments have a southern and western frontage.

The basement contains the kitchen, servants' quarters, and store-rooms.

Stables and a conservatory are attached to the "White House."

Many of the decorations and furnishings of the Executive Mansion made since 1881 are expensive and beautiful and will repay an effort made to secure from attendants the privilege of examining them in detail.

The "White House" grounds contain about eighty acres laid out in walks and drives. Near the south portico is a band-stand, from which, on summer evenings, it has been the custom to have the Marine Band play selections for the entertainment of the public. (See List of Illustrations.)

FALLS OF THE POTOMAC.

The distance from Georgetown to the Great Falls of the Potomac is about 15 miles; the channel of the Potomac River here is narrow and rocky, and there are picturesque cascades. The water with which Washington is supplied is carried from this point, by aqueduct, to an immense receiving reservoir. A steam-packet from Georgetown carries passengers on this excursion.

The "Little Falls" of the Potomac are about four miles above Georgetown. The scenery, though pretty, is not so bold as that at the Great Falls.

FISH-COMMISSION.

The United States Fish-Commission stands on the corner of B and 6th streets S. W. The appliances on exhibition here appertain to the hatching of varieties of salmon, trout, herring, shad, and other valuable fish. The Commission was created in 1871 and is under the charge of Professor Baird, the well-known specialist, who has made American fish-culture famous throughout the civilized world. The premises can be inspected on week days till four o'clock in the afternoon.

FISH-PONDS.

A few hundred yards from the Washington Monument are the Government ponds for raising carp and other fish. They were established and are managed by the United States Fish Commission. Persons desiring to stock their ponds are supplied with carp. About 300,000 of them are raised here annually. Gold fish and turtles are also hatched. The premises may be inspected between the hours of 8 a. m. and 4 p. m.

FORT MYER.

Near Arlington House; used in the Civil War; now a signal station.

FRANKLIN SQUARE. M. 41. T. 44. Between 13th and 14th and I and K streets N. W.; beautifully laid out with trees, shrubs, and a fountain; was purchased by the Government many years ago for the purpose of controlling a spring to supply the White House with drinking-water.

GEOLOGICAL SURVEY M. 47. T. 45.

Is located in the iron building, 1332 F street. Here are prepared the various scientific reports which have given this branch of the Government a world-wide reputation. The large collections of the Survey may be seen at the National Museum.

GEORGETOWN

Is now called West Washington. It is the port of entry for the District of Columbia; about two miles north of the White House; is reached by the F street and Pennsylvania avenue lines of horse-cars; was founded many years before the Capital.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY, M. 5. T. 56.

At the head of O street northwest, under the care of Jesuits, is the oldest Catholic college in the United States, being founded in 1789. Here is a library of thirty thousand volumes and many old and rare manuscripts. The new stone building is a fine one, open to visitors, excepting Sunday.

GOV'T PRINTING OFFICE. M. 44. T. 37.

This building is situated on the corner of H and North Capitol streets, and should be entered from the door opening on the latter street. The hours are from 8 a.m. till 5 p.m. The printing of Congress and the Departments is done here. It is one of the largest printing offices in the world, the outfit including press-rooms, foldingrooms, paper warehouses, electrotyping and stereotyping departments, besides the type-setting and proof rooms. All of the documents distributed by Congress are printed here. The cost of the work amounts to several millions of dollars annually.

GREENE'S STATUE. M. 49. T. 33.

The equestrian statue of General Nathaniel Greene, the well-known Revolutionary general, beautifies Stanton Place, at the intersection of Massachusetts and Maryland avenues N. E. It was erected in 1877 by Congress. (See List of Illustrations.)

HOSPITAL FOR INSANE. M. 72. T. 27.

The Government hospital for care of insane persons is on the opposite side of the river from the Navy Yard. It is open to visitors on Wednesday afternoons. The grounds are several hundred acres in extent; are well cultivated and afford a perfect view of the Capital. One thousand persons can be accomodated in the building, which was designed by Walter, architect of the new wings of the Capitol. This institution is for the use of the army and navy and residents of the District of Columbia. It was founded in 1855.

HOWARD UNIVERSITY. M. 24. T. 37.

Howard University commands a fine view of the Capital from a plateau beyond the northern terminus of the 7th-street horse-railroad. The building contains recitation-rooms, a dormitory, library, dining-hall, and offices. There are accommodations for 300 students, residences for teachers, and grounds thirty-five acres in extent, valued, in all, at six hundred thousand dollars. The institution was incorporated in 1867 and named in honor of General Howard, who was then manager of the Freedmen's Bureau. Pupils of either sex or color are admitted to the privileges of the University, though at present attendance is confined almost without exception to the colored race.

LAFAYETTE SQUARE.

Opposite the White House. The statue of General Jackson in the center of the park was designed by Clark Mills; cost $50,000, and was erected in 1853, on the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans. (See List of Illustrations.)

LINCOLN PARK.

About one mile from the Capitol, at the head of East Capitol Street, between 11th and 13th Streets. The statue and group in honor of Lincoln which stand in the center of the park were donated by freedmen; cost $17,000, and considered among the finest works of art in the city. (See List of Illustrations.)

LOUISE HOME

On Massachusetts avenue, just south of Scott Circle, is a memorial by Mr. W. W. Corcoran to his deceased wife and daughter. Southern ladies needing a home are cared for here. Accommodations for 55 inmates are at the disposal of the board of directors. The building cost $200,000, and the institution is well endowed. Open to visitors in the afternoons.

LUTHER STATUE.

Just northeast of the Thomas Statue, across the circle, is the bronze statue of Martin Luther, erected, in 1884, by members of the Lutheran Church.

McPHERSON SQUARE. M. 40. T. 45.

On Vermont avenue, between I and K streets N. W. The bronze statue of General McPherson was erected in his honor by the Society of the Army of the Tennessee, of which he was commander in 1864. The material is cannon appropriated by Congress. (See List of Illustrations.)

MARINE BARRACKS.

M. 57. T. 30.

The Marine Barracks are two squares north of the Navy Yard, on 8th street. There are accommodations for about two hundred men.

The Marine Corps is an adjunct of the Navy Department. Its headquarters are here in Washington. The armory at the Barracks contains some historic battleflags. The premises may be inspected from 9 a. m. till sundown. Mondays, at 10 a. m., there is a drill of marines, with music by the band.

MOUNT VERNON.

Mount Vernon, for many years the residence of Washington and the site of his tomb, is distant from the Capital about sixteen miles down the Potomac river. Many points of interest may be observed on the sail. The mansion is attractive in appearance, is in an excellent state of preservation, and contains a full collection of household relics and paintings belonging to the illustrious owner of the mansion and his esteemed spouse. The numerous out-buildings on the premises are much as the owner left them. The house itself and grounds are now under care of the "Mount Vernon Ladies' Association of the Union," a society which was incorporated in 1856 for this worthy object. The tomb in which the remains of Washington and his wife lie buried is built of brick, with iron gratings, and incloses marble sarcophagi.

Mount Vernon is reached by steamboat W. W. Corcoran, Capt. L. L. Blake, via the 7th street line of horse-cars. The boat starts at 10 a. m. daily, excepting Sundays, and lands passengers in the city at 4 p. m. The fare for the round trip is one dollar, including admission to the grounds.

NAT'L MILITARY CEMETERY. M. 22. T. 27. Adjoins the Soldiers' Home; opened in 1861; contains the graves of several thousand Union and Confederate soldiers.

NATIONAL MUSEUM.

Just east of the Smithsonian stands the new National Museum, an immense structure built in 1879, covering over two acres of ground and containing all the collections made on Government exploring expeditions and many other curiosities in nearly every department of the arts and sciences. The halls on the ground floor are en suite, and display the collections of pottery, ceramics, geological specimens, fossils, etc., etc. In the towers and elsewhere are many offices devoted to investigations in osteology, paleontology, metallurgy, and other scientific branches. The necessary funds for them are supplied by the Govern-A quarter of a million of dollars was appropriated ment. by Congress to build the Museum. The collections were removed here in 1883. The premises may be visited daily from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. (See List of Illustrations.)

NAVAL HOSPITAL.

Is situated near the Marine Barracks, between 9th and 10th streets. It is used for the navy and marine corps. Hours for visitors, afternoons of week days.

NAVAL MONUMENT.

This is one of the most beautiful and effective statues in Washington. It stands on Pennsylvania avenue, at the western approach to Capitol Hill. The name given to it by Congress is "The Monument of Peace." Figures representing "History," "America," "Victory," and "Peace" adorn the top and sides of the shaft. The inscription is to the memory of the officers, seamen, and marines who fell in defense of the Union in the Civil War. The funds were raised by contributions from officers and sailors in the Navy, to which Congress added $25,000 to complete the statue and the pedestal.

NAVAL OBSERVATORY. M. 49. T. 51.

The United States Naval Observatory occupies a prominent position on the bank of the Potomac, at the foot of 24th street. The grounds comprise nearly 20 acres. The group of buildings consist of a main building, with revolving dome (containing an equatorial telescope), and two wings, for residence of the Superintendent, taking observations, etc. There are rooms for a mural circle and transit, chronometer, sidereal clock, and other astronomical instruments. The great Equatorial—the largest in the world is mounted in a new and commodious extension in the rear of the main building. It cost, with the setting, over $60,000; was made in Massachusetts and weighs in all six tons.

The National Observatory is one of the leading Observatories of the world. It was founded by Congress in 1842. The premises are open daily from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m.

The Government has purchased a site for a new Observatory finely located in Rock Creek valley, and will soon begin construction.

NAVY DEPARTMENT. M. 45. T. 47.

(For description of building see State Department.) In the Hydrographic Office, on the basement floor, are made all the charts furnished for the Navy and for commerce. The Office of the Secretary of the Navy, on the second floor, is elaborately decorated. The Library, on the fourth floor, is a costly and convenient room, with a good collection of books, for the use of members of the department. Hours for visitors, from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. (See List of Illustrations.)

NAVY YARD.

The Navy Yard is located on the banks of the Anacostia River, about one mile southeast of the Capitol. It is reached by horse-cars via Pennsylvania avenue, and may be visited during all hours of the day. The grounds comprise about 27 acres, and in them are grouped ordnance-foundries and gun-shops. A naval storehouse supplies all the necessaries for fitting out vessels. There is a museum illustrating naval warfare which contains several antiques valuable. Officers and men of the marine corps are stationed at this point.

M. 61. T. 30.

OAK HILL CEMETERY. M. 15. T. 51.

Containing 25 acres; situated on high ground, at the head of 30th street, West Washington. Many distinguished men are buried here, including the author of "Home, Sweet Home."

PATENT OFFICE.

The Patent Office is bounded by 7th and 9th and F and G streets N. W. The site is the one originally intended for a national church. The older portion of the building is painted sandstone and the new part is white marble. The lower stories are occupied by the Indian Office, Public Land Office, and other branches of the Department of the Interior. The Model Rooms are on the second floor. They contain models of a great number of patents issued by the Government.

In 1877 a fire destroyed many of the old patent-models. The building has since been handsomely renovated and is now fire-proof. The Patent Office is no expense to the Government, but, on the contrary, yields it a large revenue annually, from the fees received for issuing patents. It is an institution which in its way is unequaled in the world, and of which every American may be justly proud. The models may be seen every week day between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. (Sce List of Illustrations.)

PENSION BUILDING. M. 45. T. 39. The United States Pension Building occupies a conspicuous site on Judiciary Square, north of the District

Court-House. The huge structure covers two acres, is of rather a unique style of architecture, and cost $700,000. The interior hallways look on a court yard of vast dimensions, roofed over and lit with side windows. In this hall the Inaugural ball of 1885 was held, with ten thousand persons in attendance. There are regular accommodations for 15,000 clerks. Hours of admittance, from 9 until 2. (See List of Illustrations.)

POST OFFICE (CITY) M. 49. T. 40. Stands on Louisiana avenue, near the intersection of 7th street and Pennsylvania avenue N. W. Congress has recently taken steps to erect a much more commodious building.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT. M. 47. T. 41.

The building is one of the handsomest in Washington; covers the square opposite the Patent Office, between 7th and 8th and E and F streets N. W. It is built of Maryland and New York marbles and is in the Corinthian style of architecture. The proportions are about 200 x 300 feet. In the center is a large court yard faced with granite. The building cost nearly a million and three-quarters of dollars. The Postmaster-Generals's Office and the Dead-Letter Office are located in this building. The Postmaster General was not admitted to the Cabinet till President Jackson's term of office. The Dead-Letter Office may be visited by permit from the chief clerk in the building. The hours for visiting the department are betwen 9 a. m. and 3 p. m. (See List of Illustrations.)

PROPAGATING GARDEN. M. 58. T. 45. The Government nursery for trees and shrubs, to supply the public parks with and for forcing and curing flowers and seeds, includes 8 acres of land on the banks of the Potomac river, a short distance southwest of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

RAWLINS SQUARE.

Situated on New York avenue a short distance west of the State Department. The statue of General John A. Rawlins, at one time chief-of-staff to General Grant and subsequently Secretary of War, was erected in 1874, by the combined efforts of Congress and his personal friends.

ROCK CREEK CEMETERY M. 14. T. 44. Is adjacent to the Soldiers' Home; the site is picturesque, and the church is a very old one, built of bricks brought from England. Services are held here on the Sabbath, and the grounds are open to the public on week days.

ROUTES FOR DAYS.

First day: The Capitol, Navy Yard, Marine Barracks, Government Printing Office, and Botanical Garden.

Second day: White House, Treasury Department, State, War, and Navy Departments, Corcoran Art Gallery, and Naval Observatory.

Third day: Smithsonian Institution, National Museum, Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Washington Monument, and Patent Office.

SCOTT CIRCLE,

M. 33. T. 45.

M. 44. T. 47.

At the intersection of Massachusetts and Rhode Island avenues. The statue of General Winfield Scott is made from cannon captured in the Mexican War; the pedestal is composed of some of the largest pieces of Massachusetts granite ever quarried; ordered by Congress and located in 1874. (See List of Illustrations.)

SIGNAL OFFICE.

This Bureau occupies two brick houses west of the War Department, on G street. Here is the office of the famous "Old Probabilities," whose duty it is to inform the country of the state and indications of the weather. The work was begun in 1871, and has since been much extended and developed. In the Instrument Room, on the fourth story, may be seen the apparatus for making the observations. The hours are from 12 m. to 3 p. m.

SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION. M. 55. T. 42.

The Smithsonian Institution stands in a park of 20 acres, south of Pennsylvania avenue, between 7th and 12th streets. The building is of red sandstone and the architecture is the style usually called Romanesque. The work was completed in 1856, at a cost of nearly half a million dollars. This sum was bequeathed to the United States Government by James Smithson, an English gentleman and a scientist, "to found an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men."

The object of the Institution, as now defined, is for scientific research and publication. The current expenses are defrayed by income from the donation. The Regents or governing board are appointed by Congress. In the grounds are a statue of Professor Joseph Henry, first Secretary of the Institution, and a memorial vase in honor of Andrew Downing, the landscape gardener who first improved this park. It has lately been cared for by Congress, and is planted with many varieties of American trees and shrubs. The building is open daily from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m., except Sundays. (See List of Illustrations.)

SOCIAL CUSTOMS.

The etiquette of Washington is not so intricate as it is often supposed to be by strangers. Nevertheless there are a few social observancies prevalent here which it will be well for visitors to understand and to follow.

TITLES.

The following titles should be used in conversation with those who bear them : "Mr. President" (to the President of the United States); "Mr. Vice-President" (to the Vice-President of the United States); "Mr. Secretary" (to any of the members of his Cabinet); "Mr. Chief Justice" (to the Chief Justice of the United States); "Mr. Justice" (to the other members of the Supreme Court); "Mr. Speaker" (to the Speaker of the House of Representative); "Senator" (to Senators of the United States); "Mr." (to members of the House of Representatives); their regular titles to officers of the army or navy.

In addressing letters or communications to the above their full title should be used, all members of Congress of course being "Honorable." It is customary in formal letters for the wives to receive the titles of their husbands on their letters, as "Mrs. Secretary of the —," "The Hon. Mrs. —," etc., though this rule is not invariable.

RECEPTIONS, ETC.

Most of the social entertainments at the Capital occur between New Years and Lent. The most notable are the public receptions held at the White House and the residences of the members of the President's Cabinet and of the various Senators and Representatives. The dates for holding them are announced in the newspapers soon after the opening of Congress, (on the first Monday in December of each year.) The hours for the receptions are usually from 2 until 5 in the afternoon and from 8 until 11 in the evening. The afternoon receptions are open to the public, and the evening are by card, unless announcement to the contrary is made. The dress appropriate to these occasions is the same as would be worn elsewhere at corresponding hours. It is not necessary to send acceptances to the evening receptions. Cards should be handed to the usher at the afternoon receptions.

CALLING.

The hours for general calling during the season are from 3 until 6 p. m. Evening calls have gone out of style in Washington recently, excepting between intimate friends. The President and mistress of the White House do not return calls. The wives of Secretaries, Judges, Senators, and Representatives return the visits of their acquaintances when called upon first. The ladies of Judges of the Supreme Court usually receive on Mondays; members of the Cabinet on Wednesdays; Senators on Thursdays and Representatives on Tuesdays.

The President receives visitors daily at half-past one o'clock, excepting on Cabinet days (which are Tuesdays and Thursdays) Saturday and Sunday. Persons are received at other hours by appointment by sending in their cards. Only intimate friends are received at the White House socially in the evening.

These hours are subject to slight change according to the season of the year. Special reception days are selected for different sections of the city and are announced by the press at the beginning of the season.

SOLDIERS' HOME.

The drive to this place is the favorite one in the vicinity of Washington. The park comprises about 500 acres, finely situated, 4 miles to the northward of the city, and carefully laid out in lawns, gardens, and pathways. The group of houses include a Dormitory, Hospital, Chapel, and residences for the Governor and Surgeon.

Several Presidents of the United States have occupied one of the cottages here in summer. On the brow of the hill, commanding a fine view of the Capitol, is a bronze statue of General Scott, through whose efforts the home was founded shortly after the close of the Mexican War. The sum donated by Congress has since been increased by levying a small monthly tax on each soldier in the regular army. Disabled private soldiers in the army are cared for at the home, free of charge. The grounds are open every day. Horse-cars which approach nearest are the 7th-street line and continuation. (See List of Illustrations.)

STATE DEP'T BUILDING. M. 46. T. 47.

This, the largest public department building in Washington, stands west of the White House, fronting Pennsylvania avenue. The dimensions, including steps, are 567 feet x 342 feet. The design was made by Mullett, supervising architect of the Treasury, and is suggestive of the Roman Doric style of architecture. The material is granite from Maine and Virginia. The building was begun in 1871 and has cost over $5,000,000. The south wing is occupied by the Department of State, the north wing by the War Department, and the east wing by the Navy All the offices are substantially and many Department. of them are elegantly furnished. The Diplomatic Reception Room is a particularly sumptuous apartment. The Library in the third story of the State Department is very complete and valuable, relating principally to the diplomatic history of the United States. Here is preserved also the original Declaration of Independence, and other Revolutionary documents. Open to the public daily between 9:30 and 2:30, excepting Thursdays and Saturdays (during sessions of Congress.) (See List of Illustrations.)

THOMAS STATUE

M. 36. T. 44.

At the intersection of Massachusetts avenue and 14th street N. W., was designed by the sculptor Ward, and erected to the memory of Gen. George H. Thomas by the Society of the Army of the Cumberland in 1879. Cost, $50,000. (See List of Illustrations.)

TREASURY DEPARTMENT. M. 46. T. 45. The United States Treasury Department stands on 15th (3) street, a few rods east of the White House. It contains nearly two hundred rooms or offices.

The following are those of most interest to visitors: Cash Room, opposite the north entrance, with floor and walls of rare marble; The Vaults, built of steel and iron, in which the gold is kept—in the northeast section of the building (about $10,000,000 is usually kept here at one time); the Secret Service Bureau, showing counterfeiters' implements and photographs of the criminals; Office of the Secretary of the Treasury, a handsome apartment on the second floor, south corridor.

The rooms of the Supervising Architect of the Treasury are in the basement and contain plans of the principal buildings erected by the Government. The Redemption Division, for canceling, by machinery, money unfit for circulation, is in the north corridor of the same floor. Counting the currency, by lady clerks, may be watched through the doorways of the west corridor, north end.

The Treasury Building cost nearly seven millions of dollars. The portion fronting on 15th street stands on the site of the old Treasury Building, which was burned in 1833. The granite of which it is built was brought from Maine. The design of the building is of Greek (Ionic) architecture. The Treasury Department may be visited daily from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m. (See List of Illustrations.)

WAR DEPARTMENT. M. 45. 'Γ. 47.

(For description of the building see State Department.) The Headquarters of the Army are on the first floor, east of the main entrance. In this room is a collection of portraits of distinguished American generals, battle scenes, and sketches of border life. The Apartments of the Secretary of War, second floor, north corridor, contain some fine specimens of tile work. On the third floor is a military library. Hours for visitors, daily, between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. (See List of Illustrations.)

WASHINGTON MONUMENT. M. 56. T. 45. This structure may be most conveniently approached from Pennsylvania avenue where it turns at the Treasury, thence by 15th or 17th streets. It is also convenient of access from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. The height of the obelisk from the foundation is 555 feet. This makes it the highest work of human hands in the world. Its weight is over 80,000 tons; the base is 55 feet square; the walls are 15 feet thick; the material is Maryland marble; foundation Gneiss rock and Portland cement. The interior of the shaft is hollow, and is furnished with an elevator (not now running) and an iron staircase of 900 steps. The view from the windows at the top of this flight is extensive, both of the city and surrounding country. Tablets adorn the lower portion of the interior of the monument, and it is intended that similar contributions in marble and bronze to the memory of Washington from States, Territories, foreign nations, religious societies, charitable organizations, and similar institutions shall beautify the remaining space. The grounds at the base will also probably be elaborately improved, eventually, with tiling, pathways, etc.

The monument has already cost more than $1,187,000. Three hundred thousand dollars of this was contributed by the society which was incorporated to build the monument and the remainder by the United States Government.

The project of building this memorial was actively begun in 1833 by citizens of the city of Washington, who asked the general public to contribute, and with $87,000 in hand laid the corner-stone of the edifice July 4th, 1848. Work on the shaft ceased in 1855 and was not resumed till 1880. In 1876 Congress appointed a committee to complete the work and made generous appropriations for this purpose; but delay was caused by the necessary precaution of strengthening the old foundations. The dedication of the completed monument occurred on Saturday, February 21st, 1885, with appropriate ceremonies. (See List of Illustrations.)

DIRECTORY OF BUSINESS HOUSES.

DIRECTORY

OF

PRINCIPAL BUSINESS HOUSES

WASHINGTON, D. C.

REFERENCES.—The letters M. and T., with numbers below, which appear after the address of each firm, refer to the Margin and Tape on the Map accompanying this book. Thus, to find the location of the Arlington Publish-ing Co., which appears under the head of Art Publishers as M. 46, T. 45, we place the tape on 46 on the marginal scale of the Map and at 45 on the tape, is found the Corcoran Building, where their office is located. For alphabetical lists of all the business houses in the city see Boyd's Directory published annually in January

JOHN E. RUEBSAM,

INVENTOR AND MANUFACTURER OF THE Home Gymnasium and Muscle Beater.

EXERCISING APPARATUS. Operation Lounges for Doctors and Manipulators. WASHINGTON, D. C.

This is an invention constructed on the principle of the Swedish Movements, to IMPROVE THE MUSCLES BY THE PULLING OF WEIGHTS. Any man, woman or child may bring their Muscles into active use. The Handles of the Gymnasium are six on each side, so arranged that a person can pull the weights in any direction or position, standing, sitting or laying on the lounge which is attached to the apparatus.

DEAR SIR: PHILADELPHIA, May 11, 1885. Your HOME GYMNASIUM APPARATUS combines simplicity with thorough effectiveness, for the development and training of the muscular system, and with all has the merit of cheapness. Yours truly, D. HAYES AGNEW, M. D.,

1611 Chestnut Street.

From a modest introduction in this city, a few years ago, of this important method of restoring health, it has merited popularity to the extent of necessitating accommodation at 903 16th street N. W., in well furnished and equipped parlors on two different floors. The treatment is administered between 8 a. m. and 8 p. m., by Hartvig Nissen, the Proprietor and Director, with an efficient corps of assistants. He also treats patients at their homes, if desired.

The method of this system of dealing with disorders to which mankind is subjected, is not generally known although of ancient origin—hence it is considered of mutual benefit to offer a short description of its process. It has existed in all ages because it is based on mechanical and anatomical principles, and produces salutary effects when other remedies are not applicable.

The name of Swedish Health Institute is derived from what is known as the Swedish Movement Cure, combined with Massage. As Linnaeus systematized botany, Berzelius chemistry, so did another Swedish professor, Pehr Henrik Ling, in 1813, establish an everlasting repution by effecting astonishing cures through manipulation of the human body without employment of medicine.

He organized a Central Institute, now supported by the Swedish Government in Stockholm, from which graduates have established others in almost every country in the civilized world.

The system of the Swedish Movement Cure deals mainly with the circulation of the blood—a part of physiology not much known until about the middle of the seventeenth century.

Visitors are always welcome to inspect the institute and examine the mode of treatment.

Washington Real Estate has been clearly demonstrated to be the very best of investment in the country—many large fortunes have grown from small beginnings in this kind of property. Any wanting homes or investments can find such as they desire at the North Washington Real Estate Co., 508 and 510 F street N. W.

Photography in Washington has reached the highest grade of achievement in the Gallery of Messrs. Merritt and Van Wagner, 925 Pennsylvania avenue, headquarters for Cabinets, Boudoirs, and Panels of all sizes, Crayons, Portraits, etc. Outside groups are taken and unmounted views furnished for insertion in albums. Mr. Merritt has himself made over 30,000 sittings in this gallery alone, which testifies to his high professional skill and popularity. He is very successful in photographing children, for which the facilities of this gallery are unsurpassed. Their rooms have an historic interest as those formerly used by the "Shepherd Ring." Here also the great picture of the "Electoral Commission" was painted by Mrs. Fassett. A fine collection of new and picturesque views of the city are now on sale here.

One of the largest and perhaps the most complete establishment of its kind in this city is the Dry Goods, Millinery, and Notions Stores of Mr. Charles Baum, located on Seventh, Eighth, and D streets northwest. This gentleman's career as a merchant of Washington has been most eventful as well as exceptionally successful. He came here at the close of the civil war, aspiring to establish a first-class business, though then possessing literally but one penny of capital. Pluck, perseverance, and business capacity did the rest. From a small rented room Mr. Baum's business has steadily increased until it now occupies the commodious stores which are so well known to and appreciated by the local public. A specialty of his has been to procure his stock for the various seasons with the energy displayed by the leading merchants of the East, and to conduct the sales at the lowest rates. The ladies appreciate how complete and how well furnished with the latest novelties is the millinery and notion department of this enterprising house.

Fronting on the beautiful McPherson Square, and conveniently near the chief points of interest in the city, is Chamberlain's far-famed Hotel, which has been the scene of so many public and private festivities in the social world of Washington. Here a delicious menu is always served, in a manner which does credit to the Capital. The apartments also are of ample proportions, and artistically decorated. Families desiring to make a short stay in the city can there avoid the crowds and confusion which characterize the larger Hotels during "the season." For gentlemen the large café at Chamberlain's affords a delightful place for the interchange of the latest social news and political ideas—almost equal to a Casino. Notwithstanding all the recent competition Chamberlain's thrives and even increases in popularity, as it deserves to do.

Schuetzen Park, one of the most attractive Pleasure Parks in the vicinity of Washington, is situated on Seventh Street extended, in the vicinity of Soldier's Home. It occupies a large tract of handsomely improved grounds, and has a commodious Club House for the use of members. This is a favorite resort for pleasure parties, and is open to the public on all days, except Sundays.

Congress has now under consideration a plan for completing a topographical survey of the district, delineating the extension of certain street and avenues, especially in the northern and western portion of the city. No city in the country stands more in need of a liberal policy in such matters than Washington.

With all classes and degrees of American officials, civil and military, it has long been a favorite resort. Politicians have made it their headquarters. It has several times been the starting point of Presidents-elect on their drive to the inauguration. Here, also, many cabinet and foreign ministers have been chosen and military and State papers have been drawn.

The recent improvements of the premises have been liberal and intelligently made. In particular some of the decorations and furnishing of the suites of spacious rooms on the lower floors are very superior.

The excellence of the cuisine has long been appreciated by the community. Fortunately for the public the prices are still reasonable. The present proprietor is Mr. O. G. Staples, a gentleman who has become exceedingly popular with all with whom he has come in contact, by reason of his executive ability, friendliness, and invariable courtesy.

C. C. WILLARD, Proprietor.

The Ebbitt House bears the name of a New York gentleman. In 1865 it was purchased by the present proprietor, C. C. Willard, Esq., who had been previously identified with successful management of the famous Hygiea Hotel, at Fortress Monroe.

Mr. Willard at once began the reconstruction and refurnishing of his new property with characteristic energy. The ground plans were enlarged and the building carried up to seven stories in height. Neither pains nor expense were spared to make the structure perfectly adapted to the purpose for which it was intended. No hotels in Washington (and few in the world) are now better equipped than is the Ebbitt with the essentials for the comfort and safety of guests. A firm spiral stair-case on the outside of the building—the only one of its kind in the city of Washington renders the establishment practically fire-proof.

Many illustrations might be given to the liberality and executive ability which Mr. Willard bestows, constantly, to maintain the high reputation of his house. His only diversion seems to be to buy and improve property in the neighborhood of the Ebbitt.

The hotel is pleasantly located, on F Street, one block from the United States Treasury. It can accommodate over five hundred guests. The dining-room is attractive and the table generous. While by all classes of the best visitors and residents, this elegant hotel has been long and increasingly patronized, with army and navy people and in diplomatic circles, it has always been especially popular.

The architecture of Washington has become famous for attractiveness, diversity, and originality of design. It is a common remark of visitors that in no city in the United States is there such a large number of beautiful residences.

Of the architects who have beautified the Capitol with the most artistic and commodious dwellings, none have achieved a more enviable reputation for thorough workmanship and symmetry of design than Mr. Harvey L. Page, lately of the firm of Gray & Page, a sample of whose art a perfect gem in its way—may be seen above. Mr. Page is located in a very pretty and convenient suite of rooms, at 1515 H Street N. W., where visitors will always be welcome and certain to receive every courtesy, whether intending to engage Mr. Page's professional services, or desiring merely to examine his collection of plans and drawings.

F. K. WARD, ALDERNEY DAIRIES DEPOT, The Largest City Dairy in the World, 929-931 D Street Northwest, WASHINGTON, D. C.

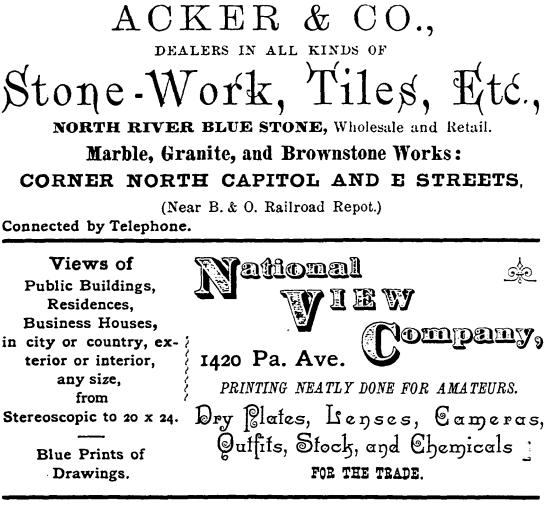

Washington is excellently supplied with milk and butter through several large Alderney Dairies, managed by Mr. Frank K. Ward. The farms are situated in Maryland and Virginia and are conducted in accordance with the most approved principles of scientific farming, to secure richness and purity in the dairy products. Public inspection of the thorough and successful system on which the farms are managed is at all times invited, and will repay any one with a taste for the charms of farm life.

At present more than fifty farms contribute their daily quota of milk, butter, and cream to Mr. Ward's immense establishments; and though the quantity is so great, the quality is never allowed to deteriorate. Mr. Ward has a standing offer of a liberal reward for any persons detecting milk in his cans which is in the slightest degree impure. In these days of inferior cattle, fed with refuse food, this fact is especially worthy of commendation.

F. K. Ward is, undoubtedly, the most enterprising gentlemen in the local Dairy business. His present establishment is the "beau ideal" of his hopes and resolutions. Sketches of him have so frequently been published, that it is not worth while to reprint one here. Without advertisement, F. K. Ward's name will always be among the leading business men of Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

One of the most enterprising business men of this city is Mr. M. T. Bridwell, the well-known Bottler, whose establishment is located at 347-351 M street southwest, near the Arsenal grounds, which now affords a fine park and promenade for the residents of South Washington.

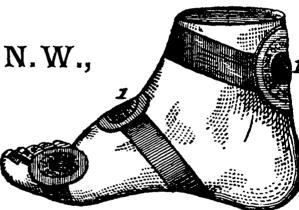

Mr. Bridwell commenced in business at his present location over thirty-five years ago on a small scale, and by industry has extended his premises to cover more than half of the square on which his factory is situated. His trade is not confined alone to the District, but extends into the adjoining States, and is constantly increasing. A number of wagons are employed in the delivery of goods, and employment is given to fifteen or twenty able assistants. Tonic Beer, Soda Waters, Mineral Waters, &c., of various flavors, and all kinds of light summer drinks are manufactured, and in every case warranted to be made from first-class and strictly pure materials.

Survey and Map department includes the preparation of City and Town Plats, Maps of States and Counties, Maps and Plats for Evidence in Land and Mining Cases, and for Claims before Congress and the Departments.

The Real Estate department includes the charge of estates, the sale, rental, and care of property; the safe investment of funds in District Real Estate, and investment for profit.

The rapid enhancement in the value of real estate in and about Washington has enabled many persons to acquire fortunes within a few years; but the rate of increase of the past is merely "surface indication" of the inevitable future. Real estate in the District of Columbia will, doubtless, during this decade, realize prices far beyond the present investor's highest priced dream.

District of Columbia Real Estate now is the recognized investment for profit in the United States.

This department now has for investment a large and attractive selection of City and District property, consisting of well situated ground for building in large or small blocks; full modern improved high and medium priced residences, centrally located business, and other properties, to which the attention of buyers and investors is particularly invited.

Loans made at 5 and 6 per cent. on good unincumbered property in the City and District. Charges moderate; all business confidential; correspondence invited.
