“The public appreciates more and more the importance of investing money in men, not in buildings. When I hear of large gifts to erect magnificent halls at our colleges, I think what greater good would be accomplished if that money were used to help a number of deserving young men and women through their college courses. When these young people have finished their work in the world, they may each and all be able to erect fifty-thousand dollar buildings for their alma maters. A certain generous minded man once said to me, ‘I have given money quite freely to help the distressed, to soften the bitterness of helpless age, and to alleviate the conditions of the unfortunate; but there was little or no inspiration in it. When, on the other hand, I have helped a bright boy to secure for himself a good education, my imagination has become affected. I have seen my dollars—won by hard application, in sordid ways—transmuted into intellectual agencies powerful to affect the thoughts and feelings of generations which will live when I am dead. This sentiment is becoming prevalent among the thoughtful men of America’—Lyman J. Gage, in ‘Success.’ ”

THE SCHOLARSHIP FUND

To give talented graduates of the Detroit High Schools who have no money the same opportunity to profit by a higher education that the children of the rich enjoy, is the object of the Scholarship Fund. Michigan has provided a magnificent university "forever free" where all her sons may study, but transportation, matriculation fees, dues, lodging, food, clothes, books, heat, and light must be paid for by the student. Unless the means of paying for these items is assured he cannot go to college. Those who are at all familiar with the subject know that it is no longer practicable for a student to put himself through college unassisted without impairing his health or losing much of the benefit of his course.

No one who has listened to the appeal of a youth who has fitted himself for college, but is held back by poverty, will ever forget it.

Why maintain higher institutions of learning if such aspirations cannot be gratified? Infinitely more valuable to this community and the state will be the achievements of the beneficiaries of the Scholarship Fund than those of the well-to-do laggards who go to college to spend their fathers' money.

The fact that many who go through college might better be sawing wood has nothing to do with this argument. The students of whom we speak are in a class by themselves. To the enthusiasm of youth nothing is impossible. Instead of crushing proper and laudable ambition in the young it is surely our duty to give it every opportunity.

It may be supposed that a High School student who has been diligent above his fellows for four years and who wants a college education badly enough to incur a debt of ten hundred dollars, will have sufficient character to profit by his course and to repay the debt after leaving college. This supposition has been verified by actual experience.

The ideas underlying the Scholarship Fund are as follow:

1. That the cost of a college course can be earned by a graduate of the University of Michigan in less time than by a non-graduate, probably in half the time. Hence it is better for a student to borrow in advance the money he needs, rather than to postpone his college course until he has earned it.

2. That it is better for the student's self-respect to lend him the money on which to go through college, and require its repayment within a given time, rather than to give it to him outright, if a gift were possible.

3. That by restricting its loans to students of high character, sound bodily health, and fine scholarship, the probability of repayment is greatly increased on the score of honor, health, and ability. The requirements of signed notes and a life-insurance policy from each beneficiary would be of no avail otherwise.

4. That the Trustees of the fund by systematically requiring reports as to the election of studies and results of examinations from its beneficiaries, and by comparing these reports with those obtained from the faculty, can ensure better results for the money expended, than private generosity could possibly obtain.

5. That the Trustees are in position to obtain remunerative positions for the beneficiaries upon graduation, thereby making it possible for them to begin immediately their repayments to the fund.

6. That in the long run the fund if administered as planned must become self-sustaining, so that every dollar contributed to it will be used over and over again, instead of being exhausted in a single bequest.

It happened that the persons who, with the help of Professor Frederick Leroy Bliss, at that time principal of the Detroit High School, evolved these ideas, were members of the Alumni Executive Committee of 1890-1891. To them it seemed a fitting work for the Alumni Society to undertake. They relied for success upon the enthusiasm of its members and the generosity of others who were interested in the school, and they did not rely in vain.

The first High School in Detroit was opened in 1858 with the revered Henry Chaney as principal and sole instructor, and with few pupils.

On Thursday, Aug. 30, 1866, graduates of the school then numbering, all-told, only 63 met and organized the Detroit High School Alumni Society "for the purpose of promoting the welfare of the Detroit High School and its graduates and fostering the public school system of Detroit."

This organization has enjoyed an active existence ever since, having held annual reunions with literary exercises, participated in by its members, uninterruptedly for 36 years. Much enthusiasm was shown at some of these reunions but no money was accumulated and there was no definite object for which to work. When the Committee of '91 decided to found the Scholarship Fund the Society had neither money nor credit. The initial expenses were paid out of the members' pockets. The Committee decided to divide the reunion exercises, holding the literary exercises with music in the afternoon and the reception in the evening. The afternoon entertainment was given in the Detroit Opera House. Alumni who had paid their annual dues of $1.00 each were admitted free, but others paid an admission fee of fifty cents. The evening reception at the Light Guard Armory was the most brilliant the Society had ever known. The Alumni flocked to the support of the movement and for the first time in the history of the Society a handsome surplus was realized, amounting to more than $450.

With some modifications and with the addition of a moonlight excursion on the Detroit River in the summer, for which no additional charge is made to members of the Alumni Society, practically the same plan for raising money has been followed ever since. In some years the surplus has amounted to $700, and in others it has fallen to less than $150. Realizing the uncertainty that must attend this method of building up the fund, the Committee had laid deeper plans. On the day after the reunion of '91 what was called the "Donorship roll" appeared and some 20 citizens, headed by officers of the Alumni, pledged themselves in writing each to contribute ten dollars per year for five years, to carry on the work of the Scholarship Fund. This "Donorship Roll" with its additional list now numbering 84 subscribers has been the main reliance of the Scholarship Fund.

At the ensuing business meeting the Alumni Society formally ratified what had been done, a plan of work and rules and regulations were adopted, trustees were chosen by the Alumni and by the donors to the fund, and the first attempt ever made by a High School Society to help its own members through college was fairly launched.

At the first meeting of the Board of Trustees, held May 20, 1891, in the library room of the old Capitol Building, on Griswold St., then occupied by the High School, Hon. D. M. Ferry was elected chairman. Mr. Ferry served until March, 1893. His time and influence were freely given to the cause, as they always have been to every effort for the betterment of Detroit.

Miss Octavia W. Bates was the first secretary and faithfully performed every duty of her office until absence from the city compelled her to resign from the board in October, 1894. Miss Bates was succeeded as secretary by Miss Amelia May Potter, who has served with fidelity ever since. Mr. Walter S. Heavenrich, one of the most enthusiastic and untiring members of the Society, was the first treasurer of the fund and served for eight years. To his ability and discretion much of the success of the fund is due. On the retirement of Mr. Heavenrich, Mr. Allen H. Zacharias, the efficient chairman of the committee of '99, was elected treasurer. The duties of this office are very exacting. Mr. Zacharias has performed them with much zeal and success.

The above officers, with Charles H. Jacobs, Vice-Chairman; Henry A. Chaney and Frederick L. Bliss, ex-officio, constituted the first Board of Trustees.

The present board is constituted as follows:
Charles H. Jacobs, '71, Chairman; Ralph Phelps, Jr., '78, Vice-Chairman; Amelia May Potter, '85, Secretary; Rachel A. Malcolmson, Assistant Secretary; Allen H. Zacharias, '93, Treasurer; Wm. A. Livingstone, '84, and James H. Beazell, ex-officio.

In addition to those mentioned above the following have served on the board: Cameron D. Waterman, Jared W. Finney, Rufus N. Crosman and Miss Olive Bagley (Mrs. Steadman Buttrick).

From the outset there has been practical unanimity in regard to all important questions of administering the fund. Definite rules and regulations have been formulated to systematize the work. No application is passed upon without thorough investigation and the final vote is almost always unanimous.

There has never been any dearth of applications for assistance from the Fund. Whether the applicant desires only $100 per year or the full stipend of $250 permitted by law, the method of procedure is the same. He must obtain from the Secretary and must fill out and sign an application blank to be presented to the Trustees. The substance of this blank is given on page 47. The applicant must be in sound bodily health. He must be a graduate of one of the Detroit High Schools. He must have exhausted all other means for obtaining a college education, and he must promise to return to the Fund all the money he borrows from it. When the application comes up for consideration, the student's High School record is examined from start to finish. If it is poor or only fairly good his case is hopeless. If, as frequently occurs, there are several applications, and only one or two can be granted, the several records and all the circumstances pertaining to each case are carefully compared. The rules require that the number of male and female beneficiaries shall be kept as nearly equal as possible, but an applicant with a poor record is never accepted on this account. Preference is usually given to applicants who have finished part of the college course and to those who have resided longest in Detroit.

Previous to the year 1895 there was only one High School in Detroit. At the beginning of the school year 1895-96 the "Eastern" and "Western" High Schools were established and the original school then became known as the "Central High School." Graduates of both the Eastern and Western Schools are eligible to membership in the High School Alumni Society and Scholarship Fund Association, on the same terms as graduates of the Central High School. Those of the Eastern High School generally avail themselves of this privilege. Representation has been accorded them on the Executive Committee and two beneficiaries of the Scholarship Fund have already been taken from their number.

At an early meeting of the Trustees it was decided in deference to the feelings of our beneficiaries, that the names should not be disclosed until after they had finished their college course. This policy has been adhered to ever since. In the opinion of many it is a mistake. The rigid scrutiny into the record of every applicant and the certainty that the granting of his application will depend upon fine scholarship, gives a distinction to the beneficiaries of which no false pride should make them ashamed. It is worthy of note that the beneficiary who seemed most anxious to have this policy observed is the only one who has given the Trustees serious trouble by withholding repayments which she is able to make.

As the beneficiaries are picked students, selected because they will reflect credit upon the High Schools and the Alumni Society, and are supposed to be in perfect health, it is expected that they will lead their classes in the University, and they generally do so.

Before a beneficiary starts for Ann Arbor he is made to understand that the continuance of his allowance will depend upon the excellence of his scholarship and the faithful performance of his college duties.

At the beginning of each semester he reports to the secretary of the fund his election of studies. If for any reason this election is not approved by the board he is required to make it satisfactory. He must also report the result of his final examinations at the end of each term or course of study. These reports are compared with information obtained otherwise and any lapse from the high standard of scholarship insisted upon is soon detected. A single condition subjects the beneficiary to reprimand, unless satisfactorily explained; and a second one, from whatever cause, would probably terminate his connection with the fund. Beneficiaries are not permitted to earn money during the college term by employment that would interfere with a high standard of scholarship. This must always be maintained.

The trustees are equally insistent that those who represent the fund shall avoid college pranks and behave with propriety. In one instance a class president was disciplined for a misdemeanor by suspending his allowance for six months.

The amount of money a beneficiary is to receive during the first college year is decided upon when his application is granted. Unless the applicant has some outside source of assistance the trustees approve of giving him the maximum amount of $250 per year, this being considered the smallest sum on which he can live comfortably in Ann Arbor and do creditable work. The allotment to each student is reviewed annually and is changed as circumstances make advisable.

The yearly allowance is divided into several payments arranged to suit the convenience of the beneficiaries. Remittances are made by check in envelopes which give no indication of their contents.

The perpetuity of the Scholarship Fund as instituted depends upon the recovery from the beneficiaries of the amounts loaned to them. If these payments are assured, the work can go on indefinitely.

The trustees have believed from the start that beneficiaries would regard the loans made to them as debts of honor to be repaid as soon as possible, but this belief did not prevent them from safeguarding the money entrusted to them in every possible way. The fourth question in the application blank, "are you in sound bodily health?" is asked for two reasons: First, because the applicant cannot do the best work in college if he is sickly, and second because he will have to pass a rigid examination for a life insurance policy if his application is accepted.

This policy, in the sum of one thousand dollars, is required from every beneficiary as security for the money advanced to him. The premiums are paid out of his allowance if he cannot arrange for them otherwise. The policy, which is ordinarily a ten or twenty year endowment, is assigned to the Scholarship Fund Association. In the event of the death of a beneficiary before his obligations have been discharged, the entire proceeds of the policy go to the Fund. When the beneficiary has paid in full the policy is reassigned to him.

When the first payment on his allowance is made to a beneficiary, and with each subsequent payment, a one-day note is handed to him for his signature. These notes must be endorsed by his parent, guardian, or next friend. As the beneficiaries are generally under age and have certified that they could not go to college without the help of the Fund, it is not supposed that these notes possess any intrinsic value. At the end of each year the beneficiary gives a single note, endorsed as before, in exchange for the smaller ones outstanding, and at the end of his college course, he being then of age, a note is given to cover his entire obligation. No interest is charged on these notes until one year after graduation, when interest begins at the rate of four per cent. per annum. In the meantime the trustees have interested themselves in getting the young man who represents so large an investment a position where he can begin to repay them. In each succeeding year he is expected to repay at least one-fourth of the money received. This expectation has been more than realized. Nine beneficiaries have already repaid their obligations in full. The total amount loaned to the nineteen beneficiaries who have finished their college course is $11,185.69. Of this sum $6,704.39, or more than 59 per cent. has been returned. The result of twelve years' experience seems to prove that with proper discretion in granting applications the plans devised for securing repayment of the money loaned practically eliminate the chance of loss. It is to be noted that the repayments referred to above include an increment of interest which is amply sufficient to defray the cost of administering the fund and by which it will be increased slowly but surely to large proportions.

The Alumni Society has never been incorporated, but the Scholarship Fund Association is a legal entity, incorporated under the laws of Michigan and fully empowered to receive real and personal property and to invest and expend the same for the purpose of its incorporation. Its treasurer may sue in its name to collect notes, life insurance, etc. Hence this work does not depend in any degree upon the life of one or more individuals, but will no doubt develop in greater measure when its progenitors have passed away. It was not until after two years' experience that the trustees determined, for the sake of stability, to have the work incorporated. As no existing statute seemed to cover their needs a general act was drawn up providing for the incorporation of associations for the establishment of Scholarships in the University of Michigan. Through the active help of George W. Bates, Esq., '66, Senator Joseph M. Weiss, '73, and Harlow P. Davock, Esq., this measure was enacted in September, 1893. In accordance therewith a joint meeting of members of the Alumni Society and Donors to the Fund was held March 13, 1894. Articles of Association were signed, trustees were elected, and the Detroit High School Scholarship Fund Association then began its legal existence.

The machinery of the Scholarship Fund organization makes it the safest and most desirable agency possible for handling educational bequests. From what has preceded it is evident that money entrusted to it will be expended only upon students who will be apt to produce the best results. No private individual could possibly give these students the constant attention through college which they receive from the trustees. By lending the money to students under proper safeguards, instead of giving it to them, their self-respect is preserved and they are taught the value of money as they would not learn it otherwise. A small bequest of $1,000 expended in this way will give at least 10 men and women a complete college course during the next fifty years and will be more than doubled with added interest at the end of the century. Is this not a wiser use for money than to bury it in piles of brick and mortar or under a marble shaft?

Persons who would like to contribute to a permanent endowment for the fund are urged to insert the following bequest in their wills:

"I give and bequeath one thousand dollars ($1,000) to the permanent endowment fund of the Detroit High School Scholarship Fund Association, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Michigan, to be used in aiding graduates of the Detroit High Schools to secure a college education in the University of Michigan."

If the Scholarship Fund should become exhausted, without hope of replenishment, the trustees would nevertheless feel amply repaid for their efforts by what has been accomplished for its thirty beneficiaries. But, as the widow's cruse did not fail, so the money at the disposal of the trustees has strangely kept pace with the demands upon them. When the first beneficiary was sent to Ann Arbor in October, 1891, the fund contained $786.64. With the thirtieth beneficiary half through his freshman year the available balance in the treasury is $2,153.96. The present average requirement per year exceeds $2,100.00.

The treasurer reports that the total receipts since the establishment of the fund have been:

From the Executive Committees and School
Organizations	$ 6,315 07
From the Donors	3,746 80
From Interest	1,417 04
From Repayments by Beneficiaries.....	6,704 39
Total receipts	$18,183 30

The expenditures have been:

To Beneficiaries, including
Insurance	$15,915 31
Cost of administration, including Stationery, Postage, and Printing	114 03
	$16,029 34

Cash on hand and bills receivable..... $2,153 96

This item will be increased by the final report of the Committee of 1902-03, who have so far turned over to the Treasurer of the Fund the proceeds of the Summer Excursions, amounting to $350.00.

It will be noted that the expense of administration for the entire twelve years has been less than .63 of one per cent.

The notes of beneficiaries now in the Treasurer's hands amount to $9,210 92. Experience indicates that these will be paid in full, but they are not counted as assets of the Fund.

The life insurance in force to protect these notes is $21,000.

Starting with one student, a boy, in the year 1891 the number of students at the University, sustained in whole or part by the fund, increased to two in 1892; to five in 1893; to six in 1894; to seven in 1895; to five in 1896 and 1897; to seven in 1898; to six in 1899; to ten in 1900; to eight in 1901; to thirteen in 1902; and to ten in 1903.

The discrepancy in the number of beneficiaries in successive years is due in part to their unequal distribution in the different classes, and consequent difference in the number graduated.

The total number of students sustained in the twelve years since the fund was established is thirty. Ten young men and nine young women have finished their college course. Five young men and five young women are now attending the University. Of these two are Seniors, three Juniors, three Sophmores, and two Freshmen. One student, a girl, left college in Sophomore year on account of her health, but may return.

The work has been sadly curtailed by lack of sufficient funds. The trustees have thought it advisable to retain a sufficient sum at interest to enable them to provide in an emergency for the beneficiaries already sent to College. If 100 more Donors could be secured the resulting revenue of $1,000 per year would relieve the trustees of much embarrassment in choosing between worthy applicants by enabling them to send at least four more students to the University every year.

The Hon. Henry D. Estabrook, who delivered the eloquent oration on "The Vengeance of the Flag" at the reunion of 1896, himself contributed $10.00 to the Scholarship Fund. In recognition of his services, for which he declined to accept any remuneration, it has been proposed to call one of the present scholarships after his name when established Ninety dollars have been contributed by relatives and friends of the late Mary C. Leete as a nucleus for a permanent scholarship to be known as the "Mary C. Leete Memorial." To make it operative this sum should be increased to $1,000.

The first beneficiary to repay his entire obligation to the fund was Richard Sack, of the class of 92, who was graduated from the University in 1896. Mr. Sack was also the first beneficiary to become a subscriber to the Scholarship Fund. He is now a trusted engineer in the service of the Michigan Lake Superior Power Company, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

The next beneficiary to repay in full was Miss Dale Livingstone of the class of 90, U.

of M. '96. After graduating from the University Miss Livingstone did excellent work as an instructor in Latin in the Central High School. She afterwards spent a year at the American School of Classical Studies in Rome, and is now Professor of Greek and Latin in the Minneapolis High School. Miss Livingstone is also a subscriber to the fund.

Nine graduates, four young men and five young women, have repaid their obligations in full. Without exception the beneficiaries who have left college have taken creditable positions and are doing good work in the different walks of life.

Before the fund was established in 1891 many letters were received from prominent educators endorsing the movement. From these the following quotations are taken:

From President Angell of the University of Michigan:

Ann Arbor, February 21, 1891.

"My colleagues and I have been much interested in the plans formed in Detroit * * * to endow scholarships for students coming here. It is a great mistake to suppose that because the fees we charge are small many students are not debarred by poverty from coming here. I am constantly hearing of such cases. Hundreds of persons, I may say without exaggeration, apply to me annually for an opportunity to earn their bread by doing chores or by performing any kind of labor, saying that unless they can find such an opportunity they must abandon the hope of studying here. The public generally are unaware how very limited are the means of many of the students here under our roof. I think such help as you are thinking of affording through the generosity of the Detroit High School Alumni Association, either by giving or loaning money to deserving students, will be most timely. I trust you may succeed in your efforts."

Yours very truly,

JAMES B. ANGELL.

From Professor Martin L. D'Ooge:

Ann Arbor, February 19, 1891.

"My interest in the success of this enterprise is strong enough to do whatever I can to promote it. I can name several cases that have come under my own observation where even a hundred dollars a year would be a great help and boon to a poor fellow struggling to get an education. I have no sympathy with any efforts that aim to provide a young man with all things needful without any effort on his own part. I have seen a few instances where young men have been pampered and pauperized by undue aid and indulgent coddling. But I have seen a good many young men suffer in health and self-respect and buoyancy of spirit by being obliged to work unduly and to undergo sore hardships and severe privations for the want of a moderate amount of financial support. I know three young men in college now who belong to this class. One pays for his board by waiting at a table occupied by his fellow students, and two earn a part of their living by keeping books in stores. I know of a student who last year went through college on $77, and out of this he paid his college fees. What a help $100 would have been to this poor boy.

"I trust you will carry through your useful and generous project with brilliant success. If you have an income of only $300 you can keep two students here right along, for $150 a year with economy and a certain amount of self-help, will support a student."

With best regards,

M. L. D'OUGE.

Twelve years have elapsed since these letters were written and it is interesting now to note what our own beneficiaries think of the Scholarship Fund. The writers of these letters have repaid their loans in full.

————— Jan. 19, 1903.

Dear Sir: The Scholarship Fund has been of inestimable value to me inasmuch as it has made possible that which otherwise would have been well-nigh impossible. Based on earning capacity, as everything nowadays is considered, the money loaned by the Scholarship Fund has brought in immediate and handsome returns to me. It has furthermore been the means of my securing a college education, the advantages of which are self-evident to everyone. Moreover it has made of me a better and more intelligent member of the community, the value of which to the community as a whole, may not be measured in dollars and cents, but which nevertheless exists. Having been so fortunate as to enjoy its benefits I should by all means want to see the good work continued. Possibly in my case, possibly in the case of some others, the work has not been justified by the results obtained, nevertheless the grand total will appear on the right side of the balance sheet and that is all that can be expected.

Yours very truly,

————— Jan. 21, 1903.

My Dear Sir: I feel deeply indebted to the Scholarship Fund for its timely help to me in the University. I think I should, in time, have accomplished my course without its aid, but at a loss of much pleasure and, perhaps, some usefulness.

It would seem to me that the help thus afforded a person to complete his preparation for work before he has lost his enthusiasm for it, is of the highest utility and fully justifies the continuance of your very businesslike philanthropy.

It is while realizing that the business management of the fund must be quite a burden to the trustees, that I say that I myself would be glad, if I could, to do as much for another, if I knew that thereby I could add as much to the breadth of his life as you have added to mine.

Very truly yours,

In this connection it is proper to remind past and present beneficiaries of the fund that there is no more grievous fault than ingratitude. When you have repaid the money advanced for your college education you have yet to repay the time and thought and self-sacrifice which collected the fund and followed you through college. It should be your greatest pleasure to promote the cause of education in Detroit, to increase the reputation of our High Schools and to work faithfully for the Alumni Society in return for the help given you.

Enough has been written to prove that the original plans for the Scholarship Fund were not visionary, as some thought twelve years ago, but were founded on correct business principles. Doubtless this is the first instance in which the principal of a fund, intended to be permanent, has been used instead of the interest. The result has been very satisfactory. If the trustees had waited until the interest of the fund could take care of its beneficiaries, not more than one or two of those who are now in active life would ever have had a college education.

The reflex influence of this work upon the Alumni Society is not to be overlooked. What else has aroused the enthusiasm and rivalry of the Executive Committees of the past decade? In the near future the Society will be a tremendous power in shaping educational progress in Detroit. For this enthusiasm, rivalry and power credit must be given to the Scholarship Fund.

ficer with whom they are so filed, may be given in evidence, in any court of this State for or against said association. “And now it all is past. It seems a dream.
It came and went as comes and goes a gleam
Of sunshine, or the glory of a thought
By some old poet’s glad enchantment wrought.

* * * * *

The husk has perished. Its brief day is o’er.
The fine quintessence lives forevermore.”

From the poem of 1894.
