FOREWORD

Fifty copies, only, of this magazine have been printed for the persons and institutions whose names appear opposite.

It is issued, not for profit, but to assist genealogical research and to provide for the preservation of authentic genealogical data.

The attention of librarians is especially called to "British-American Genealogy," page 3.

The editor will be pleased to receive any suggestions as to the contents of Volume II., which is to appear during 1907, under the title of Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania Genealogies. He may be addressed care of Pierpont, Siviter & Co., 119 Shady Ave., Pittsburgh, E. E.

DERIVATION OF THE NAME.

O'Laoghaire: Some genealogists derive this surname from the Irish "laogh," a calf, and "gair," an outcry; others from the Irish "leath," a half, and "gair," a laugh; and others from "lear," the sea, and "righ," a king, meaning "king of the sea."

TERRITORY OF O'LEARY.

"O'Leary, chief of Hy-Laoghaire or "Iveleary" and Iveleary, or O'Leary's Country, lay in Muskerry, in the County Cork, between Macroom and Inchageela."

EGE MEMORANDA

In August, 1906, the writer, with Mr. F. A. O'Leary, of Pittsburgh, spent a few days in the quaint little village resort of Boiling Springs, in Cumberland County. On the 26th of that month, during a ramble upon the top of the hill near "the Old Furnace", he came across a small disused graveyard, enclosed by a stone wall, the entrance being through a quaint cast iron doorway. The yard itself containing about an acre, was in a sad state of disorder—a mass of brambles and weeds, with only one stone bearing any sort of a complete inscription, viz.:

"In Memory of
Catherine Ege,
Mother of George and Michael Ege,
who departed this life
November 25th, 1786,
In the ——— year of her age

Stop, passenger, and weep,
But not for me.
As I am now so shall ye be,
Prepare yourself to follow me."

Upon inquiry the writer was informed that the subject of the inscription was "Old Madame Ege" and that "she was a heap of trouble to the British at Carlisle," and that she formerly lived in the mansion house near the Furnace, in fact the house had been built for her, and furnished in sumptuous style. Subsequently he was able to secure from Jared C. Bucher a pair of brass andirons which had been given to her by Baron William Henry Stiegle, the famous iron master of Mannheim.

The Catherine Ege of this inscription was evidently Anna Catherine Holz [Wood in English] who had married in Philadelphia, in 1745, *Michael Ege, who died January 19, 1759, leaving her a widow with two sons, George born 1748, and Michael born 1753. These young boys were brought up by Baron William Henry Steigle, their uncle by marriage, under whom they learned the details of the then infant iron industry, both becoming at their majority, proprietors and operative iron masters, George in Berks County, and Michael in Cumberland County.

Michael Ege II., born 1753, died August 31, 1815, married in 1772, Ann Dorothea Wolff, daughter of Peter Wolff of Spring Forge, York County, leaving seven children. The third son, Michael III., inherited from his father, the furnace and estate at Boiling Springs, "which he continued to operate with much success." He married Mary Galbraith, and had issue seven children.

III. Michael.

IV. Charles.

V. Peter F., born November 23, 1818. Died January 3, 1881.

VII. Mary, a daughter who married Judge Watts of Carlisle.

The connection of the Ege Family with Boiling Springs seems to have ceased in 1863, when the Furnace *Michael was the younger of the two sons of the founder of this family of Ege, in Pennsylvania, one Bernard [Peter] Ege, who, at the age of fifty years with his two sons, Jacob and Michael, aged twenty-five and twenty-three respectively, came to Pennsylvania from Wurtemberg, Germany, sailing from Holland in the ship "Freundschaft," arriving in Philadelphia Sept. 20, 1738.

passed into the hands of C. W. and D. V. Ahl, who operated it until 1885, when it was purchased by Jared C. Bucher, the present owner, in whose possession are many relics of the Ege's and their old time industry.

Margaretta, child of light—a pearl—from the Persian.

BOILING SPRINGS.

Altho' the village of Boiling Springs, was laid out as recently as 1840, by Abraham, son of Daniel Kauffman, we must look much earlier [1762] for the origin and use of the name as applied to the locality.

"One tract in Middleton [now South Middleton Township] in the County of Cumberland, containing 1,644 acres, surveyed in the name of John Rigby and Company, on the 8th, 9th, 10th, 12th days of July, 1762, and which was returned in pursuance of certain warrants by the proprietors of Pennsylvania, dated May 31, 1762, to "John Rigby, Francis Saunderson and Joseph Samuels and John Morris, Jr." This tract was divided into sixteen equal parts. John Armstrong and wife owned two in 1764, but re-conveyed them to Michael Ege II. in 1792. The whole tract passed by various conveyances to Michael Ege [the second of the name].

In 1762 Richard Peters, of Philadelphia, obtained a patent "for 368 acres of land, called Boiling Springs," and executed a deed to John S. Rigby and John W. Ketterer, under the firm name of Rigby and Co., for the erection of a furnace. This firm, about the same time purchased two ore banks situated at the foot of the South Mountain, a mile from the village. In 1764 Rigby and Co. conveyed the furnace to a company of four men: who carried it on until the year 1768, when Michael Ege became part and subsequently sole owner and began the erection of a rolling mill. At his death, in 1815, the furnace was given by will to Michael Ege, Jr., [III.], who carried it on until his death in 1829. From 1829 to 1847, it was operated by his widow, and the executors of his will. In the latter year it passed into the hands of Peter Ege, who operated it until 1859, when it came into the possession of his assignees, who in turn transferred to a new company. This company remodelled the old furnace and built a new forge.

In 1863 it passed into the hands of C. W. and D. V. Ahl, brothers, who operated it until 1885, when it became the property of Jared C. Bucher, who after a few years abandoned its use.

In August, 1906, I had the pleasure of visiting the old furnace and other buildings, and by the courtesy of the owner, was permitted to examine an old rusty projectile, bearing this partly obliterated inscription, "Adam Carr, fecit 17 [74]." This relic is said to be the foundry model of the projectiles used by the Continental Army, and it is claimed and apparently not without reason, that Boiling Springs was the site of the first manufactory of cannon in the American colonies.

The furnace stands, almost hidden by the dense shrubbery, away from the public road, its masonry almost as perfect as the day it was first used, altho' ferns are growing in the crevices of the walls, while birds have built a nest in its great open mouth, and owls and bats are living in the corners of its roof. Thus has the old building gone back to nature, and nature is, indeed, taking care of her own.

Carter, McCarty, McCarthy, Carter, This family were numerous and powerful in Connaught, and continued almost independent of British rule till the reign of Queen Elizabeth, since which time the name has been frequently anglicised, and used interchangeably. King John granted much of the land now held by them to Hubert de Burgh. The principal representative of the family in 1875 T. S. Carter, J. P., of Westport, owner of 37,773 acres.

Colwell, descended from Caldwell of that ilk in the shire of Renfrew, settled in Rhode Island, ancient Arms "Three piles issuing from the chief Sable, and in base, four Barrs waved. Gules, and vert, to shew water equivocally related to the name. "The family," says Mr. Crawford in his History of Renfrew, published very early in the Eighteenth Century, "continued for many hundred years, in good reputation, by intermarriages with honorable families, and indeed of late in the person of John Caldwell of that ilk, one of the Commissioners for the shire of Renfrew, about the year 1693. Their lands are now possessed by John, Earl of Dundonald.

In the new Register, in Lyon's office, at Edinburgh, Scotland. The Arms are given, party per pale azure and Sable, a Hart's Head, coupé or, and in chief, three wells or fountains, proper. John Caldwell of Glasgow, bore these Arms also, and they were used by the Caldwell—Colwell, settlers in England and Rhode Island.

O'LEARY MEMORANDA

The late Arthur O'Leary, ante p. 20, was one of the founders of the new R. C. Cathedral of St. Paul, Pittsburgh, Pa., and the first window, near the entrance in the west aisle of that church, is a gift from him, in memory of his parents.

The historical subject of the window is the first Mass celebrated in Pittsburgh, A. D. 1754. The celebrant being a French Friar, Denys Baron by name, who was at that time Chaplain to the French and Indian forces, stationed in Fort Duquesne. The Chapel within the Stockade of the Fort was dedicated to "The Chapel of the Assumption of the Virgin of the Beautiful River." This, too, is symbolized in the window.

BRITISH-AMERICAN GENEALOGY

The attention of Librarians and Genealogists is particularly called to the movement in Great Britain toward the publication of Parish Registers and Monumental Inscriptions.

As these classes of genealogical evidence are of the greatest possible value to American genealogists, and editions of such books are usually so ridiculously small, that in a few years their cost becomes almost prohibitive, it is urgently recommended that our readers become subscribers to the current publications of The Parish Register Society, and the Society for the Preservation of Ancient Monuments.

Among the most important undertakings in British-American genealogy is the collection and publication of the monumental inscriptions of the County of Suffolk, England. The first volume, containing all the inscriptions in the Deanery of Orford, is to be issued early next year. The edition will consist of Three hundred numbered copies, only. One hundred for the United States and Canada, and Two hundred for Great Britain and Ireland. The cost of transcribing the inscriptions—many of them ancient and dilapidated—is the generous gift of an English gentleman, so that the cost of the production of the book is materially lessened thereby, and the subscription price for Public Libraries will be only Three Dollars.
