Warrington Meeting, in Warrington Township, about nine miles south-west of Newberry and midway between the present villages of Wellsville and Rossville, was regularly established¹ in 1745,² and a log meeting-house³ erected the same year on a tract of 29 acres and 156 perches, "near the Land of Stephen ²Minutes of Sadsbury Monthly Meeting; Samuel Smith in Hazard's Register, VII., 134.

³The following paper drawn up at that time is of interest as showing who were the subscribers to the fund for the building of the first meeting-house:

"We the Subscribers knowing the Necessity of Publick Worship, & being Destitute of a pice of Land to Set a Meeting House on Do Each of us Promise to pay the Respective sums under written in order to get a Warrent for 25 acres of Land adjoyning Stephen Alls Land, as witness our Hands: John Earl, 5s; Alexander Underwood, 3s; Thomas Cox, 5s; Joseph Garretson, 5s; William Garretson, 5s; Christopher Hussey, 5s; James Frazier, 4s; Isaac Cox, 3s; Samuel Underwood, 3s; Thomas Cook, 3s; Richard Wickersham, 3s; William Underwood, 3s; Peter Cook 1s. 6d."—MS. among title papers of Menallen Monthly Meeting.

This log meeting-house stood a little south-east of the present stone building, on a part of the tract that has since been enclosed in the grave yard. The foundations were discovered in the latter 80's by persons digging in the graveyard.

Eyles (Ailes) on a Branch of Conewago" Creek. A warrant, dated July 5, 1745, was issued for the land to be held in trust for the Society of Friends, but owing to an irregularity, the land was later, by proclamation, declared vacant and afterward granted by patent, dated 1 Mo. 22, 1767, from John Penn, Lieutenant-Governor, to William Garretson, William Underwood, William Penrose, and Peter Cleaver, in trust for the Society, the consideration being £9, 12s, 9d.¹

In 1769,² a new stone meeting-house was built near the old one.³ In 1782, it was found necessary to enlarge the building to almost double its original size in order to accommodate the Quarterly Meeting, and a stone addition was made to the north end.⁴ The following year the old end was thoroughly repaired and given a new floor and a new roof.¹ With the exception of a slate roof and other repairs effected in the latter 80's the old structure remains substantially as it was in 1782, and is still surrounded by a strip of the primitive forest. On account of the westward emigration the regular meeting was discontinued about the middle of the nineteenth century, and now meetings are held on only one First-day each year.

¹Patent (Recorded page 207, Patent Book A. H., Vol. 7, Department of Internal Affairs, Harrisburg, Pa.) and other title papers in possession of trustees of Menallen Monthly Meeting.

²A stone bearing this date may be seen in the south gable.

³At Western Quarterly Meeting, held in Chester County, 8 Mo. 21, 1769, Warrington Monthly Meeting reported "One new Meeting House built at Warrington near the old one." George McMillan, an Irish Friend, of Warrington, son of Thomas McMillan, from Ballinacree Meeting, County Antrim, notes in the credit column of his Account Book (1769-1795), which is in possession of the writer, a descendant, that March, 1769, there was "due by subscription to Wm. Garlison for bliding a New meeting house in Warnton, £3," and in January, 1770 "by ditto, £1." In the debtor column he notes: "May 5th, 1769, Payd to Wm. Garlison for sa'd subscription first by haling timber with wag[on] one day, 10s; by an order from Jacob Williams £1, 0, 2; ditto by Cash to Pay for Lime £1; ditto by Cash May 5th £1, 10s."

¹Benjamin Walker, a member of the Meeting, who resided on an adjoining farm to the south, was on the building committee, and in his Diary (1780-1786), a copy of which is in my collection, gives a detailed account of the work of construction. 4 Mo. 13, 1782, he is "one to provide Nesarceys and go on with Building an addishing to our Meeting house." 5 Mo. 16, they "agreed with ye Carpenters to Do ye work for the Meeting house; flowring (flooring) 6s by ye Square, Lining ye walls 7s-6d, Galoreer (gallery) 12s by Square, sash 7d pr Light, Sheters (shutters) 4s apeace, Doars 10s, Window Cases 4s-6d, Doars 5s 6d." 6 Mo. 13, 5th day, "at Meeting this Day we agreed with John & Jonah Thomas to Build a Stone End to the Meeting house and with ye Carpenters."

For several months afterward we find Walker turning aside from his many other duties and actively engaged in pushing forward the building of the meeting-house. One day (7 Mo. 30) he goes to York for lime; another he is hauling stone; and another (8 Mo. 7), he drives "to the pigeon hills for Lime 35 Bushels." 8 Mo. 8, "Ditto and halling Corner Stone from Ellhu Underwood." 8 Mo. 27 he is "halling the Summer Beam." By 9 Mo. 6, 6th day, the stone work had so far progressed that our diarist notes, "At our Meeting f[or] Suffrings Raising ye New End of ye meeting house." 10 Mo. 14, he hauled "Shingles from ye Meeting house to Wm. McMullins [brother of George McMillan] to Soak." By 10 Mo. 21, no doubt the shingles were sufficiently soaked, and evidently he is returning them, when he writes under this date, "halling Shinglas for ye Meeting house."

The addition was soon completed, and, 1 Mo. 2, 1783, we find the committee settling with "the Masons for Building ye new house and ther is Due to them £44-4-0."

Repairs on the old end were begun the following summer. 5 Mo. 27, 1783, they were "Striping the old Roof of[f]," and 6 Mo. 20, "halling Sleepers for the Meeting house." 8 Mo. 11, they were "taking up the Meeting house floore." 9 Mo. 26, Walker went "to Manahan to Allin Tarbutts for a Loard of Boards for ye Meeting." 11 Mo. 17, they settled "with the Carpenters that Built the Meeting house; It Came to £47-15-7½."

[Warrington Monthly Meeting recently has been re-established and meetings are held on First days (Sundays) at 11 o'clock to which everyone is welcome. The meeting house was repaired and restored in 1949 to its original plan.]
